CAPONE SEEKS RIGHT TO SHIFT HIS GUILT PLEA

Dramatic Step Is Taken as Gangster Dreads Stiffer Term.

JUDGE WILL DECIDE ON REQUEST TODAY

Counsel Declares U. S. Had Approved Proposal for Leniency Suggestion.

Chicago, July 30 (A.P.).—"Scarface Al" Capone, dreading a stiffer prison sentence than had been anticipated, begged leave in Federal District Court today to change his mind and stand trial on twin charges of income tax dodging and violation of the liquor laws.

The move to change his previous plea of "guilty" to "not guilty" was made dramatically at the opening of the afternoon session of Judge James H. Wilkerson's court. Attorney Michael Ahern uttering a protest that Capone had assurance the Government would recommend leniency if he pleaded guilty to the three indictments.

In doubt as to the propriety of a change at this point, Judge Wilkerson called upon Government and defense to explain such a purported bargain, warned that the court could condone no agreement on its judgment and adjourned the session until tomorrow, promising to rule on the motion to withdraw the plea at 2 p. m.

Nervously Twitches Hands.

The heavy-set gangster, beads of perspiration rolling down his swarthy face, stood nervously twitching his hands before the bench, manifestly taken aback by the turn of the proceedings. He had anticipated a quick sentence, a night perhaps in the county jail and departure for Leavenworth Prison Friday night with the regular contingent of Federal prisoners. Attorney Ahern made it clear Capone would not have pleaded guilty without assurance the Government had agreed to a light sentence.

Capone's counsel asserted the Department of Justice had sanctioned a proposal of George E. Q. Johnson, district attorney, that leniency be suggested. Questioned by the court, Johnson said he had conferred with the defense, agreed to certain recommendations and received approval of Washington. He submitted the correspondence with the Attorney General to Judge Wilkerson, who said he would hold it confidential.

Agreed on Prison Term.

Ahern declared the Government and defense had agreed on a stipulated prison term and to have all sentences run concurrently.

"It's up to the officer who made the deal to carry it out," commented Judge Wilkerson, expressing his own confidence in the district attorney. "Executive officials have pardoning power but they can not transfer to the court a judgment which doesn't represent the cold, sober record. The

Exiled Bishop Asks Return to Spain

Cardinal Segura Expresses Willingness to Forgive His Enemies.

Toledo, Spain, July 30 (A.P.).—Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura, in a pastoral letter dated Belloc, France, has demanded the right to return to his charge in Spain "for the common good."

The cardinal was exiled by the government a few weeks ago. He is Bishop of Toledo.

Declaring that "the present trying moments of the church in Spain" had previously prevented his speaking openly, he said the government compelled him to leave Spain twice, not once, and expressed pity for "those who merit excommunication." He added, however, that he was "willing to forgive" his enemies.

Bulgarian King Saves Six Lives on Black Sea

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 30 (A.P.).—A dispatch from Varna said that King Boris of Bulgaria, at a great personal risk, today saved the lives of six persons who were threatened with drowning in the Black Sea.

The king, the dispatch said, saw the people from the window of his palace at Euxinograd near Varna as they battled a stormy sea in a small boat. He jumped into a motorboat with a mechanic and after a long struggle towed the boat into the bay at the foot of the palace.

Wiggin Agrees to Serve On World Bank Body

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank, has agreed to serve as the American member on the committee set up by the Bank for International Settlements, in accordance with the invitation issued by the recent London conference, to study the German financial situation.

JUDGE, PROSECUTOR OF CAPONE

Judge James H. Wilkerson (left), of the Federal District Court in Chicago, and U. S. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson. Judge Wilkerson will rule today on the motion of Al Capone's counsel to change the gangster's plea of "guilty" to "not guilty."

GIBSON SEES UNREST MENACING TO JAPAN

Vermont Representative and Colleague Call on Hoover; Discuss Possessions.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

That the next great political upheaval may occur in Japan, the land whose rulers measure their dynasty by centuries, was suggested by Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, in a statement made public yesterday on his return to Washington from a trip with other members of Congress through the Orient.

There are indications of political unrest in Japan which may produce "results astounding to the world," Representative Gibson said.

"Japan is a growing and developing nation," he said, "and appears to be a beehive of industry. Her people are industrious and progressive. She is rapidly and scientifically developing her possessions and mandates, and increasing her power in the Orient day by day. There are indications, however, of political unrest that may produce results astounding to the world."

The United States, Mr. Gibson said, should send its ablest diplomats and representatives to the Orient for "our major problems of the future will arise there."

Representative Gibson made public his statement following a visit, with Senator Dale (Republican), of Vermont, to President Hoover at the White House. Their visit, Mr. Gibson said, was merely a courtesy call and he made no effort to make any detailed report of his observations to the Chief Executive.

The trip of the congressional party through the Orient occupied three months. The party included Senator Oddie, of Nevada; Senator Robinson, of Indiana; Representative Dowell, of Iowa; Representative Vincent, of Michigan, and Representative Gibson. Representative Vincent accompanied the party as far as Honolulu, but died on the way home.

"China," Representative Gibson said, "is in a state of turmoil. It is claimed that 2,000,000 men are now under arms in that country. In the interior soldiers are everywhere. Summary executions are of common, everyday occurrence.

"It may be that combinations are forming and forces are mobilizing in this crowded section for a gigantic struggle between Communism and capitalism. If the coolies of China are organized under the red banner our civilization will be in great peril. The family unit, the barrier that has protected China thus far, may break under continued propaganda and repeated attacks."

GUNMEN'S BULLETS AIMED AT GAMBLER

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—The admission of Anthony Buzzone, a bookmaker, known as "Big Tee," that he was the intended target of the gangsters who sprayed death into the ranks of playing children Tuesday was regarded tonight by police as their "big clew" in the search for the ruthless killers.

Buzzone also was declared to have furnished detectives with a list of men he thought were in the automobile from which was fired a leaden hail, wounding five children, one of them fatally.

Squads of detectives tonight were trying to round up the underworld characters named.

Meanwhile, police found an abandoned green sedan with a broken left window which answered the description of the automobile used in the shooting.

The license plates had been stolen, the body and motor numbers altered and the front wheels locked with an unusual device police had never before encountered.

Three witnesses to the shooting were summoned in an attempt to identify the car.

A squad of detectives was dispatched late in the day to the Grand Central Railroad Station, but when they returned their superiors refused to say what the results of their mission had been.

Forty plain clothes men who Tuesday night were sent out to find Joseph Raol, alleged ally of "Dutch" Schultz in underworld activities, had not yet been recalled.

The wife of a bookmaker who witnessed the shooting was reported to have told Mrs. Devilaqua, mother of one of the victims, she could identify all the men, but has since refused to admit she could.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, talking to 1,200 members of the department at a mass meeting, called the shooting "a dastardly killing and maiming of children" and told his men:

"In the first six months of this year the police have killed sixteen racketeers and holdup men and

Gun-Running Scheme Evidence Is Lacking

San Francisco, Calif., July 30 (A.P.).—After an investigation, Chief of Police W. J. Quinn said today no evidence had been found of a plot here to "run guns and ammunition into China by way of the Philippines."

A dispatch from Manila yesterday said officials there had uncovered what appeared to be a gun-running conspiracy and that they believed the guns were to be shipped from here.

U. S. Investigates Boost Of Four Cigarette Prices

(Associated Press.)

A simultaneous advance in the prices of popular cigaret brands has precipitated an investigation by the antitrust division of the Justice Department to determine whether price fixing in restraint of trade is involved.

Although formal announcement was withheld, it was disclosed in high official sources late yesterday that the inquiry had been in progress for several days. It could not be determined at this time, officials said, whether action would be taken.

Four of the world's largest tobacco firms are involved in the investigation. They are the American Tobacco Co., the P. Lorillard Co., Liggett & Myers and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

On June 24 all four firms announced almost simultaneously that the price to jobbers of their popular brands would be raised 45 cents a thousand. The price charged by all four was set at $6.85 a thousand.

Contending that announcement of the inquiry might interfere with the result sought, officials at first would give only an intimation that action was being taken. Later, however, repeated questions brought positive confirmation of the department's move.

It was learned that no complaint had been made to the department concerning the price raise, but that antitrust division lawyers had become suspicious of a possible agreement to fix prices when all four firms acted in concert.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 30 (A.P.).—S. Clay Williams, president of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., said today he was not surprised when informed of the Government's apparent intention to investigate the recent increase in cigarette prices.

"While I have heard nothing of the investigation" he said, "it had occurred to me that such a move might be made since Federal authorities usually of their own volition, look into any commercial matters that attract widespread attention.

"There was absolutely no price agreement and this fact will be borne out by an investigation," he said.

BISHOP CANNON ASKS COURT TO ENJOIN SENATE

District Supreme Bench Requested to Bar Quiz by Nye Group.

USURPATION OF DUTY OF JUDICIARY IS SEEN

Dale, Committee Member, Discounts Action as "Old Charge."

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, resorted to the courts yesterday in his fight to block a senatorial investigation of his activities as chairman of the headquarters committee of anti-Smith Democrats in the 1928 Virginia presidential campaign.

Bishop Cannon, who sailed Wednesday for Europe aboard the Aquitania, petitioned the District Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition preventing the Senate's campaign expenditures committee from proceeding with hearing witnesses in the inquiry into charges that Cannon violated the Federal corrupt practices act.

Justice James M. Proctor was called on to issue a rule to show cause against Senators Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota; Robert F. Wagner, New York; Porter H. Dale, Vermont; Roscoe C. Patterson, Missouri, and Clarence C. Dill, Washington. He said, however, he would issue no such rule until notice has been served on the senators, and they present their views on the court's authority to entertain the case.

Claims Courts Usurped.

Representing Bishop Cannon, Attorney Robert H. McNeill charged that the committee in attempting to carry out a resolution enlarging its scope, introduced by Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, is usurping the functions of the judiciary and infringing the duties of the grand jury.

The petition asserted the Senate committee is without authority to hold the inquiry under the Glass resolution, because the judicial powers of the Government are vested in the courts of proper jurisdiction alone.

He declared the committee has no authority to investigate violation of any criminal statute by any individual acting in a nonofficial capacity, and that Congress has no power to enact legislation dealing with the manner of choosing electors, who as officers of their States are not subject to Federal Government control.

Dale Discount Suit

Senator Porter Dale, of Vermont, a member of the Nye Committee and an attorney, said yesterday the group plans to continue its investigations of the Tinkham charges in August. The meeting has been planned then, he said, because the committee found the three-year statute of limitations, one of Cannon's acts, will expire in September.

Chairman Nye is now at his home in Cooperstown, N. D., and other members are also away from Washington, but Senator Dale said he was taking up the question and expected to know in a day or two what action the committee will take in combatting the suit.

He dismissed the Cannon court arguments as "an old charge that

Zamora Approval Voted by Acclaim

Cortes Accords Ovation to Republican Chiefs in Cabinet.

Madrid, July 30 (A.P.).—The provisional government of President Alcala Zamora was given a vote of confidence by the National Assembly tonight. The vote was by acclamation.

Following in rapid succession short speeches by a dozen minority leaders, President Julian Besteiro surprised the assembly by reading an agreement in which the minority leaders expressed their confidence in the present regime.

He then asked a vote of confidence for the cabinet and it was given by acclamation, accompanied by a great ovation.

(Associated Press.)

Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury yesterday announced applications totaling $221,171,000 had been received for $60,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills dated August 3 and maturing November 2.

The highest bid was 99.896, equivalent to an interest rate of .41 per cent, and the lowest bid accepted was 99.854, equivalent to an interest rate of .58 per cent.

3 Robbers Get $40,000 From Canton, O., Bank

Canton, Ohio, July 30 (A.P.).—Three unmasked robbers, attired as railroad workmen, robbed the Brewster Banking Co. in southwestern Stark County of $40,000 in currency and bonds today. Two of the men, armed with pistols and the other carried a machine gun.

Banking officials said the bulk of the loot was in currency.

U. S. FLIERS REACH ISTANBUL; GLOBE PAIR HOPS FOR RUSSIA; LINDBERGHS SAFE IN OTTAWA

TEMPLEHOF ALMOST FAILS TO SEE THEM

Crowd Watching Return of Graf Unaware of Arrival of American Plane.

Koenigsberg, Germany, Friday, July 31 (A.P.).—The American round-the-world aviators, Hugh Herndon, jr., and Clyde Pangborn, were sighted over Koenigsberg at 2:20 a. m. (8:20 p. m. E. S. T.), flying in the direction of Kaunas, Lithuania.

Koenigsberg, East Prussia, is almost on a direct line between Berlin and Moscow. It is a little less than half way from Berlin to the Russian capital.

Berlin, July 30 (A.P.).—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr., Americans who hope to fly around the world in their red monoplane, took off from Tempelhof Airdrome here at 10:49 p. m. (4:49 p. m., E. S. T.) for Moscow on the third leg of their journey.

The fliers, who landed in England yesterday and hopped here from London this morning, expected to get away for Moscow nearly two hours earlier, but they were delayed by battery trouble which put their navigation lights out of commission.

Mechanics worked steadily at the field during the early hours of the night in an effort to make the necessary repairs. They expected to make the hop to Moscow without a stop and believed it would take from 12 to 14 hours.

Crowded Night at Tempelhof.

With their departure the Tempelhof Airport settled back to quiet after one of the most crowded evenings in the history of the famous field. The Graf Zeppelin arrived at the field from the Arctic only a short time before the Americans landed from London and it took off again for its hangar at Friedrichshafen a short time before the Americans left for Moscow.

The crowd kept police and officials at the airport running around in circles and the activity so confused the spectators it was not until long after the arrival of the Americans that the crowd knew that another pair of ocean fliers was saying "hello" to Berlin.

Several hundred persistent flight fans stayed to the last minute and while the Stars and Stripes fluttered from the airport mast the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and a cheer went up as the Americans took off.

Warned of Dirty Weather.

The airport bureau warned them they would have dirty weather for part of the way, but the fliers did not seem discouraged. They were anxious to leave because they were already many hours behind the time of the other round-the-world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, whose record they hoped to break.

The fliers left the Croydon Airport, near London, at 2:13 p. m. (8:13 a. m., Eastern standard time), after flying there from near Cardigan, Wales, where they landed yesterday afternoon after a flight across the Atlantic from New York.

They took aboard only about 300 gallons of gasoline at Croydon, just enough to reach here. The field at Croydon, they said, was too small for a take-off with a heavy load of fuel.

"The forced landing near Cardigan," Pangborn said at Croydon, "cost us just half a day. There was a bare chance that we would complete the round-the-world flight in six days until that happened, but now we will be somewhat longer. However, we'll beat the Post-Gatty record."

Man Is Killed in Ocean As Chute Fails to Open

Atlantic City, N. J., July 30 (A.P.).—Ray Forrest, 30, of Weatherfield, Conn., a parachute jumper, was killed tonight in an exhibition jump over the ocean near the end of the Steel Pier.

He jumped from a plane at an altitude of 1,600 feet and his parachute failed to open. He had been making jumps twice a day for a week.

Wales in Wreck; 3 Women Injured

Prince, Driving Own Auto, Is Shaken in Collision Near Golf Club.

London, July 30 (U.P.).—The Prince of Wales, whose skill as a rider has saved him in many falls behind the hounds, narrowly escaped serious injury late today in an automobile collision.

The heir to the throne was driving his own automobile away from the Sunningdale Golf Club when he collided violently with another machine. He was severely shaken, but otherwise uninjured, and later continued to his residence, at Fort Belvedere.

The prince's automobile was damaged slightly, but the other machine suffered more seriously.

Three women in the other car were slightly injured and taken to a hospital.

PANGBORN, HERNDON TRAIL POST RECORD

Round-World Fliers Hope to Catch Up by Making Short Stops.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon were far behind the time of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty on their way around the world today, but already, like Aesop's tortoise, they were creeping up on the fleeter hare.

Pangborn and Herndon got to Berlin today just 56 hours and 12 minutes out of New York; Post and Gatty had taken only 34 hours and 34 minutes. So on their landing at the German capital Pangborn and Herndon were 21 hours and 38 minutes behind the record.

But Post and Gatty stayed in Berlin 11 hours and 8 minutes, Pangborn and Herndon took off 3 hours and 19 minutes after landing, thus picking up 7 hours 49 minutes on their rivals. This put them only 13 hours 49 minutes behind schedule.

On the 1,000-mile flight from Berlin to Moscow they were expected to drop back some more, for their plane is far slower than the Winnie Mae of Post and Gatty, who made the leg in 8 hours and 52 minutes. It was considered improbable that Pangborn and Herndon would reach Moscow in less than ten hours.

But in Moscow again they hoped to take in a lot more slack. For Post

Foreign Minister Briand Is Taken Ill in France

Paris, July 30 (A.P.).—Aristide Briand, veteran foreign minister of France, was slightly indisposed today and could not attend a cabinet meeting. The nature of his illness was not disclosed.

The coauthor of the Kellogg pact has not been in the best of health lately and was fatigued by his work in the recent Franco-American negotiations here and at the seven-power conference in London.

LINDBERGHS ARRIVE AT OTTAWA AIRPORT

Complete 380-Mile Flight From Maine Is Made in 3½ Hours.

Ottawa, July 30 (A.P.).—Gracefully, with the touch of a master pilot, the monoplane which Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are using on their holiday flight to the Orient came down late today on the wind-ruffled waters of the Ottawa River.

The skillful descent in the first foreign country touched by the Lindberghs drew applause from a group of Canadian Royal Air force fliers and cheers from a crowd of 1,500 persons. The plane came to a stop beside the Rockliffe Airport at 4:36 p. m. (E. S. T.).

The big machine traveled slowly over the airport for several minutes while Mrs. Lindbergh flashed the news of their arrival by wireless to New York.

Leaving North Haven, Me., at 1:06 p. m. after bidding good-by to their young son and Mrs. Lindbergh's parents, the intrepid couple covered the 380 flying miles in three and one-half hours for an average of 105.6 miles an hour.

They had not been trying for great speed, Col. Lindbergh said, but were "just getting along nicely."

They were brought ashore in a yacht after Col. Lindbergh had made fast his plane. Then they entered the automobile of United States Minister Hanford MacNider. They paused a moment for photographers before an escort of Canadian mounted po-

Woman Flier Continues Britain-to-Tokyo Flight

Relief Not Expected Today As Heat Prostrates 29

Thundershowers Forecast to Dispel Torrid Conditions Fail to Arrive; District Building Employes Dismissed for First Time This Year.

The heat wave is expected to continue today and tomorrow without any marked relief. Predicted thundershowers for last night had not arrived early this morning and it is improbable that there will be any today, according to the forecast. Cloudy skies may help to reduce the temperature slightly today, it was said at the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Yesterday was a climatic duplicate of the day before with a maximum temperature of 97 degrees. Hourly temperatures corresponded on both days. The only difference being humidity. It was greater yesterday. Nine heat victims were treated at hospitals or by the Rescue Squad and 20 received treatment at the Census Bureau, which was closed at 2:30 o'clock.

Employes at the District building were given a half holiday for the first time this summer on account of the heat. They were dismissed at 1:30 o'clock. Other government employes freed from sweltering offices were those at the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Labor, Interstate Commerce Commission, Quartermaster Corps, Munitions Building in temporary quarters in the Potomac Park area, adjutant general office, Public Health Service, Treasury Department and government supply offices.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the temperature was 84 degrees, at noon 93, at 3 o'clock 95 and at 4 o'clock 97—an hour-for-hour duplicate of the day before. The thermometer at the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk did not quite reach the 102 mark, the high point of the preceding day, but came within a shade of reaching it.

After reaching the maximum of 97 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the thermometer at the United States Weather Bureau took a sudden nose dive, dropping 22 degrees in as many minutes. The temperature was 87 at 8 o'clock last night. This was due, it was said, to a nearby electrical disturbance which was expected to bring a storm to Washington.

Gas fumes and heat caused the collapse of Joseph Mayo, 34, while he was working in the Washington Gas Light plant at Twenty-sixth and G streets northwest. Several hours after he was admitted to Emergency Hospital, he became delirious and walked from his bed, out of the build-

Coste Welcomes Aviators Who Seem to Eclipse His Distance.

BOARDMAN CLAIMS NEW WORLD'S MARK

Spectacular Performances Make Day Greatest Since 'Lone Eagle' Paris Hop.

(Associated Press.)

Audacious airmen traced a series of spectacular performances across the sky paths of the world yesterday in perhaps the greatest day of flying since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh crossed the Atlantic from New York to Paris.

With a degree of precision seldom, if ever, equaled in the air, Russell Boardman and John Polando set their monoplane down in Istanbul, Turkey, 49 hours and 20 minutes after leaving New York for what they claimed was a new long distance nonstop record. They calculated the distance at 4,948 miles, or 85 miles more than the former mark established from Paris to Manchuria by the French flier, Coste.

Feats of Others Continue

Skimming around the globe in an effort to better the Post-Gatty time, Hugh Herndon, jr., and Clyde Pangborn reached Berlin and then set out for Moscow at 10:49 p. m. (4:49 p. m. E. S. T.). A fog over the British coast had shoved Herndon and Pangborn far behind the Post-Gatty schedule, but the brevity of their stay at Berlin enabled them to pick up several precious hours. When they pointed their plane toward Moscow they were 13 hours and 49 minutes behind Post and Gatty.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, bound for the Orient, flew the 370 miles separating North Haven, Maine, and Ottawa, Ont., in three and a half hours.

Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, en route from England to Tokyo, left Sverdlovsk, Russia, for Kurgan and the Graf Zeppelin returned to Berlin after a six-day Arctic cruise.

James Goodwin Hall, New York broker, reached Ottawa via Albany, N. Y. He plans an attempt to set a speed record from Ottawa to New York.

Fliers' Arrival in Turkey

Istanbul, July 30 (A.P.).—One of the greatest flights in the history of aviation ended here today when the American fliers, Russell Boardman and John Polando gently eased their plane, Cape Cod, down on Turkish soil at 1:20 p. m., after a nonstop flight from New York.

The fliers traveled a distance they calculated at 4,946 miles in 49 hours and 20 minutes. It is extremely probable they established a world's record for long-distance flight by eclipsing that of Dieudonne Coste, who flew from Paris to Manchuria to set up the previous world's record.

The pair was greeted at the airdrome by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, by Turkish aviation heads and other officials, as well as by the French aviator, Coste, himself. Coste, with a group of other French aviators, is in Istanbul on an air tour.

Congratulated by Coste.

The two fliers were given an ovation which, for the moment, almost made them forget their intense desire to sleep. Coste was one of the first to shake their hands, congratulating them on their feat.

The crowd at the field, while not unusually large, made up in noisy welcome what it lacked in size. The aviators were assisted from the cockpit by Ambassador Grew, who introduced them to the Governor of Istanbul, while a squad of Turkish police presented arms. Obviously tired, but smiling happily, the aviators expressed great delight at having reached their goal.

"It was a fine trip," Boardman said, "and naturally we are very happy at having accomplished our purpose of beating the world's nonstop record. The hardest part of the journey was last night's flying over the Alps.

"The trip over the Atlantic was fine. We had no storms or bad winds, but we did encounter a great deal of fog. As a matter of fact, we saw the water only once after Newfoundland, but after that just floated along in a sea of fog which totally obscured the ocean."

Polando sketched the route from New York.

"It was over New York, Newfoundland, Ireland, London, Paris and the Alps," he said. "Between the Alps and Istanbul we crossed, during the night, a lot of places which we ourselves could not distinguish, but two of which may have been Belgrade and Sofia.

"Our first sight of land after crossing the Atlantic was Ireland, which we sighted yesterday at 1 p. m. Greenwich mean time (8 a. m. Eastern standard time)."

Ambassador Grew and his daughter, Anita, arrived at the field before dawn and waited for ten hours at the bleak and windy airdrome for the plane's arrival.

A European radio agency had announced that the plane had landed in England, thus discouraging many people who would have been on hand to greet the fliers. But Ambassador Grew insisted on staying.

"If the radio dispatches should be inaccurate," he said, "and the nonstop flight to Istanbul realized, it would be too wonderful a thing to miss. I'll wait here all day."

The crowd had considerably thinned when the plane was sighted.

Guests of Government.

Both airmen were in fine spirits and apparently in perfect health, but for a short time after landing they seemed somewhat stunned by the comparative silence, after listening for so many hours to the roaring motor. They soon recovered their hearing, however, and talked to American and Turkish officials for half an hour before motoring to Istanbul, where they expect to remain three days as guests of the Turkish government.

At the airdrome they ate cake and drank punch, in which they were toasted by Turkish officials. Asked whether they preferred punch or lemonade, Polando laughed and said: "What I want more than anything in the world is a bath."

The Turkish Aviation League plans to present medals to the fliers. Invitations were given them to attend a banquet given by the league tonight at which Dieudonne Coste was present, but the fliers asked to be excused and went to bed instead, promising to attend banquets later when they have caught up on their sleep.

Messages Dropped in France.

"Istanbul looks very beautiful to us," Boardman said, "and we are very happy to be here." He expressed their keen appreciation for the Turkish welcome. The modesty and friendliness of the aviators so appealed to the Turkish crowd that the remark "What nice men!" in Turkish was frequently heard.

The fliers said they dropped many messages over France, but they had not learned whether any had been picked up.

Ambassador and Mrs. Grew are to give a tea in their honor at the summer embassy at Yenikeuy near the Black Sea next Saturday, to which all members of the American colony and many Turkish officials have been invited.

In discussing the flight afterward, the aviators disclosed they had just enough fuel to reach Istanbul. Only ten gallons was left in the ship's tanks when they landed.

Polando handed the Governor of Istanbul a letter from President Hoover to Mustapha Kemal as soon as they arrived.

Naval Aeronautics Chief Warmly Praises Flight

Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics, yesterday issued the following statement regardnig the flight of Russell Boardman and John Polando from New York to Istanbul:

"We should be especially proud today of our commercial and civil aviation. Every transatlantic flight this summer has been successful. Yesterday we regained the long-distance nonstop record flown by an American pilot in an American designed, built and powered airplane.

"United States naval aviation salutes the pilots, the designer, Bellanca, and the motor builders who have brought new achievements to American aviation. The successful flight from New York to Istanbul measures the progress made in aviation since Lindbergh's pioneer flight to Paris. Its significance is that airplanes can now fly from America to Europe and carry an effective war or mail load."

and Gatty stayed in Moscow 11 hours 30 minutes. By staying just long enough to fuel and grab a bite to eat Pangborn and Herndon could jump 10 hours toward their rivals' mark all at once.

And that would put them within 4 hours 57 minutes of the Post-Gatty time up to the point of departure from Moscow, and it was after Moscow that Pangborn and Herndon expected to put on their tortoise act in real earnest.

Once out of Moscow, Pangborn and Herndon planned to fly almost continuously, one piloting while the other slept. It was even considered possible in their plans arranged before they left that they might make only two intermediate stops after leaving Moscow, one in Siberia and one in Alaska. They could do this in jumps just about the length of their flight from New York to Wales.

Should they be able to do this, Moscow to New York in three hops of about 3,500 miles each, with stops only long enough to fuel, they would easily beat the Post-Gatty record, despite the comparative slowness of their plane.

Australia to England Flier Reaches Singapore

Singapore, Straits Settlements, July 30 (A.P.).—J. A. Mollison, Australian airman, who is attempting a flight from Australia to England, arrived here from Batavia, Java, today. After a short stay, he resumed his flight in the direction of Cadah in the Malay States.

Thus far Mollison is a day ahead of the record made by C. W. A. Scott last June over a similar route.

ARCTIC TOUR ENDED, GRAF AT HOME PORT

Pleasant Trip Described by Commander to Crowds at Tempelhof.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, July 31 (Friday) (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin landed here from her Arctic cruise at 5 a. m. today (11 p. m., Thursday, Eastern standard time).

Berlin, July 30 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, Germany's widely traveled giant dirigible, landed at Tempelhof Airdrome at 6:38 p. m. today (12:38 p. m. E. S. T.) from its Arctic cruise amid the lusty cheers of thousands of Berliners who flocked to the airdrome instead of going home from work.

The big ship, which had been away six days, circled over the field at 6:20 p. m., swung about for a turn over Berlin and then slid down into the airdrome over a sea of waving handkerchiefs.

"It was a splendid and highly successful cruise," Dr. Eckener said. "Some people may have thought we were out in a dreadful region of ice and extreme cold, but from the very beginning we never doubted for a moment that this would be a relatively easy trip.

"As a matter of fact, it was the most pleasant journey imaginable. Often we enjoyed skies of Italian blue and we never were bothered by the discomforts of the Arctic."

So intent was the crowd on watching the Graf land that the red monoplane of the transatlantic fliers, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, slipped down into the airdrome a short time afterward almost unnoticed. A newspaperman and one police officer recognized the plane first and ran out to meet Pangborn and Herndon.

The Graf rose into the air a short time later and headed for her home port at Friedrichshafen.

One of the passengers aboard the ship said the Zeppelin did not cross the North Pole.

Cancer of Breast Deaths Declining

90 Per Cent of Cases Held Curable if Treated in Time.

Paris, July 30 (A.P.).—Treatment of breast cancer was discussed today at the third International Congress of Radiology at the Sorbonne.

Presenting records of breast cancer treatment, Dr. George E. Pfahler, of the University of Pennsylvania said that "instead of succumbing to dread cancer, records now show every reason for patients to hasten for treatment, as they have an increasing chance of complete cure."

Out of a total of more than 1,000 cases, Dr. Pfahler reported that 45 per cent were treated successfully, although many were advanced cases.

"Ninety per cent of breast cancer cases now are curable if taken in time, and radium, X-rays and surgery are used in combination as the case dictates," Dr. Pfahler said.

Head of Canadian Police To End 45-Year Service

Ottawa, Ont., July 30 (A. P.).—Commissioner Cortlandt Starnes will retire tomorrow as head of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with the rank of major general, it was announced today.

His retirement comes after 45 years service. Major General J. H. MacBrien, former chief of staff of the Department of National Defense, succeeds him.

Senate in Mexico Favors Extra Tax

Industry, Commerce and Agriculture to Pay Added Levy.

Mexico City, July 30 (A.P.).—The Senate tonight approved a petition of the government, passed earlier by the Chamber, asking for authority to declare an extraordinary tax on the gross receipts of all industry, commerce and agriculture in Mexico.

The tax is to be put into effect Saturday by decree in the government gazette.

The president was also authorized to levy special taxes on electric power, transports, tobacco, matches and other products, and to make drastic cuts in salaries of government employees as a means of meeting a budget deficit. These levies also will become effective Saturday, it was understood.

Six Hurt, 200 Rescued, In Genoa Building Fire

Genoa, Italy, July 30 (A. P.).—Six persons were injured and 200 rescued from grave danger tonight as flames swept the tallest building in Genoa, in the first major fire the city has seen in 100 years. Thirty girls dropped five floors into police nets without injury.

The building was the seven-story Palazoo Di Via Venti Settembre.

lice cleared a path for the MacNider machine.

The flight was uneventful and enjoyable, said Col. Lindbergh. A newspaperman who congratulated him on the expert landing was assured by the smiling colonel that "it was nothing at all."

Mrs. Lindbergh said the plane's radio, which on other legs of the tour had proved troublesome, had worked excellently.

Midevening dinner was served at the MacNider home and a number of air force men who have flown the sparsely settled route the Lindberghs will traverse on the northerly legs of their flight were present.

An inducement in stopping at Ottawa was that Col. Lindbergh could have the opportunity of gaining from government officials much information that will be valuable on his flight.

The next leg of their journey will carry them to Moose Factory, 461 miles away, but the time of their take-off for that place was not immediately announced.

Col. Lindbergh later said he would confer tomorrow afternoon with the government air and radio officials and the start for Moose Factory would not be made until Saturday at the earliest. He said he could announce no definite time for his departure.

Some Canadian fliers have inquired why Col. Lindbergh plotted his course so far to the north after he leaves Ottawa, but he had no comment to make to reports when asked why a southerly course, dotted with settlements, was not preferable.

Meantime, Capt. F. W. Mawdesley, who last September traversed a part of the Lindbergh course, pointed out the long stretches of water on the route, which would be available for landing the couple's pontoon-equipped plane.

Capt. Mawdesley said the only really dangerous part of the Lindbergh flight would be a stretch of about 100 miles westward to Fort Reliance from Baker Lake. This territory, in which Maj. John Hornsby and two British youths perished, presumably from starvation, several years ago, is virtually uninhabited, he said.

Hall Lands Plane Before Lindberghs

Reaches Ottawa and Will Seek Mark on Return to New York.

Ottawa, Ontario, July 30 (A.P.).—James Goodwin Hall, New York stockbroker, landed at Rockliffe Airport at 4:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) today, a few minutes before the arrival of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. He flew here from Albany, N. Y.

Flying the same type of machine as the Lindbergh plane, excepting for the pontoons, Hall was mistaken by the crowds for the expected visitors. Not until he descended to the ground was the mistake discovered.

Hall announced he would try to establish a nonstop air record for the run home to New York from Ottawa.

CURATOR'S SON HELD AS RUM PLANE FLIER

Youth Who Spurned College Career May Be Deported From U. S.

Newport, Vt., July 30 (A.P.).—Narada Coomaraswamy, 19-year-old son of Dr. A. K. Coomaraswamy, curator of the Hindu department of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, was locked up in Newport Jail tonight facing possible deportation as an alien. His three-place cabin monoplane, which immigration officials said he preferred to a college career, was seized at North Craftsbury today and held tonight at Swanton Airport as an alleged caravan for smuggled liquor.

Immigration Inspector James Ford, before whom he was given a hearing, told the unusual story of the youth's falling in with liquor smugglers after he had parted from his father because of differences.

The young pilot wanted a career as an aviator instead of going to college, Ford said. The father gave him $200 and the plane. After obtaining his pilot's license at Boston, the youth went barnstorming to the North.

When his finances were exhausted he fell in with a gang of smugglers, and admitted, Ford said, making four trips to Canada for liquor.

Deputy Collector of Customs Herbert Rice today went to a farm in North Craftsbury, 30 miles from the border. On a plateau 2 miles from the village the plane was found. Coomaraswamy was arrested yesterday by customs officials who said they had evidence of liquor smuggling. The first intimation of the alleged activities came recently when a plane made a forced landing at Sheffield, but took off again before authorities arrived.

Immigration officials said the youth was a British subject and entered this country last September. The allegedly admitted trips across the border formed the basis of the charge of illegal entry.

Details of the case were sent to Washington today. No further action was contemplated until a return decision is received here. The youth, meanwhile, is in jail because he has been unable to obtain $500 bail.

CHILE MAY ADVANCE MONTERO TO CHIEF

Despite Refusal, Petition Is Circulated to Request His Candidacy.

Santiago, Chile, July 30 (U.P.).—Despite the announcement today by Vice President Juan Esteban Montero, head of the government since President Carlos Ibanez was deposed, that he could not be a candidate for the presidency in elections to be held soon, various representative groups today continued efforts to make him the only candidate.

A petition calling upon Montero to accept the candidacy was being circulated, and was understood to have the backing of bankers, political, commercial and industrial leaders.

The Senate today approved a bill creating a commission to control operations on the stock exchange, as well as to control bills of exchange and consignments of gold out of the country.

Montero proposed to Congress today economies in the administration amounting to 30,000,000 pesos ($3,600,000), which he said would balance the budget for the year.

Argentine Deportee Denies Revolt.

Buenos Aires, July 30 (U.P.).—A denial that prominent leaders of the Personalista faction of the radical party, who were deported yesterday for alleged subversive activities, were connected with the recent military revolt in Corrientes was made in a letter written by Dr. Marcelo T. De Alvear, former president of Argentina and one of the deportees, and made public today by the government. De Alvear requested the letter not be published until after his departure.

Brazil Loosens Foreigner Ban.

Rio de Janeiro, July 30 (U.P.).—Provisional President Getulio Vargas today decreed that foreigners who have been working in Brazil for ten years will be considered Brazilians in order to include them under the recent law requiring that two-thirds of all business staffs be Brazilian citizens.

Flying Company Plans 10 Per Cent Fares Cut

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Frederic G. Coburn, president of American Airways, announced today that a reduction of 10 per cent will be made in round trip rates over the entire system.

The fare reduction will affect 58 cities throughout the country, from coast to coast and from Canada to the gulf.

English Town May Enact Surrender of Cornwallis

Ancestral Home of Washington Family Sends Here for Pageant Material Which Includes Controversial Yorktown Scene of Revolution.

Now that the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commission has given the Lord Cornwallis surrender scene planned for its pageant a brief respite, comes the startling revelation that there is a possibility that the British leader's surrender may be reproduced in a pageant in Merry Old England itself.

All the row over the scene arose when it was suggested that its reproduction at the Yorktown pageant might offend the sensibilities of English guests at the celebration.

But the town of Washington, County Durham, England, has muddled the situation in this regard even more through its plans for a pageant, and the likelihood appears to be that the principal scene will be that of Lord Cornwallis surrendering to Washington.

Washington, formerly known as Wessyngton, is the ancentral home of the Washington family. It decided to honor George Washington and in planning its celebration, turned to the George Washington Bicentennial Commission for aid.

Frederick Hill, headmaster of a large school at the County Durham Washington, who is arranging the celebration, wrote to Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the commission, for information concerning pageantry in the American programs.

Mr. Bloom will send him the outline of the complete programs of his commission, having as their grand climax, a scene reenacting the historic occasion when the troops of Cornwallis laid down their arms before Washington and his army 150 years ago.

CAPONE CASE IS KEY IN U.S. PROSECUTION

Success or Failure of Plan to Jail Big Gangsters Is Hinging on Result.

(United Press.)

Al Capone was put on a new kind of spot yesterday, and the Federal Government's campaign against gangsters was there with him. It was admitted frankly that Capone's case was the keystone of the Federal effort against gangsters. Upon his treatment will depend the success or failure of the system by which criminals have "taken pleas" and gone smilingly to jail.

Attorney General William D. Mitchell and Assistant Attorney General G. A. Youngquist have worked on the Capone case personally. William J. Froelich, special assistant to the Attorney General, is in Chicago assisting the Federal prosecutor on it. Neither Mr. Mitchell nor Mr. Youngquist would comment on yesterday's developments, on the ground that comment would be improper while the case is under judicial consideration.

The Government's entire campaign against gangsters has been, in a way, a compromise. The gangsters are being punished for mass murder that has scandalized the country. But the offenses with which they are charged in court are such as many men expiate by suspended sentences and fines—evasion of income tax and violation of liquor laws.

Terms Fixed in Advance.

When the Government went into the prosecution of gangsters several months ago, State and local governments having failed, it adopted a system, well known in criminal courts, by which the length of the term to be served was agreed upon in advance between the Government prosecutor and the criminal, in friendly, "businesslike" manner.

The system, though not judicially recognized, is an old one. It has grown up because of the technicalities by which a wealthy criminal may delay, if not defeat, justice. Prosecuting attorneys who have obtained pleas of guilty for defendants in return for a promise to recommend a sentence of an agreed length have taken the view that, after all, the big idea is to get the criminal in jail; hence that the ends of justice are served as well as if there was a long, expensive trial the result of which was uncertain.

In the recent prosecutions of Capone men in Chicago, there have been pleas of guilty, brief, dignified court hearings, a sentence, no long speeches by counsel, no prayers to justice.

Capone's Case Important.

As in the thousands of cases of petty liquor-law violations, for which small fines have been the penalty after a "bargain day" plea of guilty, the idea was to keep the courts reasonably clear, to show that even if some crime does pay there's a tax on it and to put as many big criminals in jail as possible.

Thus Capone's case, as involving big gangsters, assumes importance to the Government. All the other cases in Chicago, it is admitted, have been preliminaries. The test is, first, whether Capone goes to jail as the big shot, the chief, and thus proves the law bigger than the big criminal; secondly, whether he goes in such peaceable and contented manner as will encourage other gangsters to plead guilty.

Rough treatment for Capone will mean endless complications in the Government's campaign. All the legal brakes will be brought out—motions, objections, demurrers, writs, appeals. The gangster goes to court with particularly unclean conscience. He has boasted of his crimes. The Government to him has meant only a big, one-way iron door, opening inward. The concession by which he has been permitted to "take a plea" has shown him that the door may work two ways, that he may go into prison for an agreed period and emerge to get a new start either in prosperous retirement or in organizing a new gang.

Hillquit Held Traitor By Jury of Communists

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—A crowd of about a thousand persons, which acted as "a jury" in a "trial" arranged by the Communist party tonight decided that Morris Hillquit, one-time Socialist candidate for mayor, was a traitor to the working classes.

Hillquit's "trial," held in an opera house, was based on his acceptance of a post as counsel for the "White Guards," former oil land owners under the Czarist regime who are seeking to regain properties nationalized by the Soviet government. Hillquit now is in Russia.

CAPONE MAY SHIFT HIS PLEA OF GUILTY

Counsel Declares U. S. Had Approved Proposal for Leniency Suggestion.

Secretary of the Treasury has power to compromise on civil and criminal liability. All recommendations will be considered but in the end the court must rule on the record."

The court, he said, must hear all evidence to determine for himself the degree of guilt. The Government has said it is ready to prove Capone broke the dry laws 5,000 times between 1924 and 1929, and that from 1924 to 1929 his income was more than $1,000,000. The defense emphasized that the Government had agreed there would be no submission of evidence and no questions asked of Capone.

Corridors Are Guarded.

Squads of police and detectives surrounded the Federal Building and guarded its corridors against disorder while the world's most notorious gangster made his swift entrances and exits. Capone drove his own automobile to the Loop for the morning session, but arrived in a cab with his attorney after luncheon.

He was jovial enough in the courtroom, albeit uncomfortably hot. He answered the sallies of his neighbors with general good humor, but there was no friend or relative there to comfort him as he awaited the word that would take him to the penitentiary. He had said his farewells.

"I don't want them down here," Capone said. "I forbade them to come, and, anyway, there's nothing to this at all."

He was feeling fine, he insisted. Was he nervous?

"Oh, a trifle, of course. I'm only human."

(Associated Press.)

Attorney General Mitchell declined to comment yesterday on the assertion of counsel for Al Capone that Mitchell had approved an agreement under which the gang leader would receive a lenient sentence in exchange for a plea of guilty to charges of income tax evasion.

Mitchell said he preferred to wait until the case was closed in Chicago before he made any statement. He indicated, however, he would make a statement at that time.

Dry Chieftain Praises Work Against Capone

(Associated Press.)

The work against Scarface Al Capone by a group of young prohibition agents who came to be known as "the untouchables" drew praise yesterday in a statement by Arthur H. Briggs, superintendent of the California Antisaloon League.

Briggs asserted that "when the Federal Government labeled its keen and incorruptible investigators who were sent out to get Al Capone as 'the untouchables,' it acquired new rights to the public confidence in prohibition enforcement."

Prohibition Director Woodcock, although giving official commendation to the group of young agents who piled up evidence against Capone, objected to the name "untouchables." He said he felt all the men in his service should so naturally refuse to accept bribes from violators that instances of such refusal did not deserve special praise.

The California dry leader maintained also that if prohibition had not already proved its value as "an economic measure," its service "in the present period of depression would have demonstrated beyond any doubt its worth as a social safeguard."

February Favored For Arms Parley

Acting Secretary Castle Says Date Is Acceptable to Five Nations.

(Associated Press.)

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department said yesterday the Geneva disarmament conference probably would be held in February, as scheduled.

Castle said England, Italy, Germany and the United States were ready to go ahead with the conference at that time. The Secretary did not include France among the nations mentioned. The French government has intimated that February is a bad time for the conference because it is just before the French elections.

Officials here have not been informed, however, whether France will ask for a postponement.

Wage Maintenance Favored By Group of Trade Leaders

Gifford, Willard, Crowley and Straus Are Among Those Saying They Do Not Contemplate Reductions in Their Corporations.

(Copyright, 1931, United Press.)

New York, July 30 (U.P.).—Wage levels must be maintained in the opinion of a group of business leaders who contributed to the United Press symposium.

Walter S. Gifford, Daniel Willard, P. E. Crowley and J. I. Straus were among those who said they did not contemplate wage reductions in their corporations.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., reiterated a statement made in April in which he said, "Every effort must be made to maintain wages."

"I said I believed we should make every effort to maintain wages," he declared. "This is still my view. In the effort to keep a maximum force at work, full-time employment has not been possible for all employes in all parts of the Bell system, but there has been no reduction in wage rates."

Other executives expressed the opinion that where it is impossible to maintain as large a force of workers as in normal times efforts should and have been made to keep the maximum number of workers employed even on part time.

"I am not in favor of reducing railroad wages at the present time," said Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. "I can not speak for other interests and what I say is simply an expression of my own opinion at this time."

"As yet the New York Central lines have not considered a reduction of wages," said P. E. Crowley, president of that organization.

J. I. Straus, president of R. H. Macy & Co., said:

"I believe wages and salaries should not be reduced as long as dividend rates are maintained. Consideration of reduction of wages and salaries should be after reduction of dividends are forced. Following my statement at the President's conference in November, 1929, we have repeatedly announced to our organization that it was not our intention to reduce wages, but that their cooperation was essential. Our business shows improvement and it is our hope and expectation that we shall be able to continue present salaries and wages."

T. G. Lee, president of Armour & Co.:

"The salary and wage question presents a different problem to every individual company. I prefer not to discuss it."

"Thanks. Nothing to say," read a telegram from Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co.

L. J. Noah, president of the American Woolen Co., also declined to comment.

PROBE DUE IN PLOT TO BRING IN ALIENS

Doak Orders Wide Inquiry After Arrest of Two on Permit Charges.

(Associated Press.)

A Nation-wide investigation to uncover any plots for bringing aliens into the country illegally has been ordered by Secretary Doak as a result of the arrest of two men in New York on charges of selling fraudulent return permits.

The Secretary revealed this yesterday and said the New York inquiry was only at its inception. He indicated other arrests might be expected and that the department was doubtful whether the "man higher up" yet had been taken.

Simon Rothberg, a clerk in the New York Immigration Bureau office, and Lino Pizzalo, alleged promoter of the scheme, were arrested by immigration officers and turned over to the New York Federal Courts. They were charged with having sold permits usually granted aliens who leave the country after entering legally, to aliens unable to enter at from $175 to $250 each.

Doak said he felt the clerk probably was only a tool for some one else and indicated the ring might have international ramifications.

"If there isn't some one higher up," he said, "how can they go to Italy and get the man's picture, his signature and other information?

"The investigation will be pushed to a finish regardless of where it hits. I am going after these people who are robbing poor aliens, no matter where it leads."

Ten thousand more immigrant aliens left the United States than entered during the fiscal year ended June 30.

The Labor Department announcing yesterday immigration figures for the year said the tide began turning against immigration last November with the result that there were 30,482 more departures than arrivals during the eight months. Immigrants admitted to the country during the year totaled 97,139 and departures were 107,376. These figures do not include tourists or aliens admitted on business.

There were 18,142 deportations during the year, compared with 16,631 in the year ended June 30, 1930. Almost half the deportations were to Mexico, 8,789 leaving via the Southern border. Five thousand and sixteen were sent over the Canadian line and 2,437 were sent out on ships sailing from New York.

Cohan Finally Provides American Theme Song

By JOHN J. DALY

IT BEGAN to look like a long, hard winter. The American Red Cross started a cooperative movement amongst the different relief organizations. The American Federation of Labor, in formal statement, called for shorter hours as a panacea for unemployment. The Governor of Oklahoma, "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, went out on the warpath against the bakers. The only ray of sunshine was the refusal of a Federal judge to make a secret treaty with Al Capone.

Then came word that President Hoover had been visited at the White House by George M. Cohan, the well-known song and dance man. Mr. Cohan, whose song, "Over There," inspired a nation to war-like deeds, took with him to the Executive Mansion a copy of his latest contribution to the lore of Tin Pan Alley, "Father of the Land We Love." Dedicated to the memory of George Washington, it is proposed that this be the national anthem for a year.

Representative Sol Bloom, who is associate director of the Bicentennial Commission, and an old showman himself, announces that the song has been copyrighted, but will not be sold; that the commission will see to its free distribution in schools, clubs and organizations throughout the country. The music has been arranged for bands and orchestras by the leader of the Marine Band, and it will be broadcast over every radio outlet in the Nation, sung by every man, woman and child—and this is the inspirational note of it all, that at last an official song is let loose upon the Nation. Now the choristers and the songbirds may break loose in melodious chorus, or solo, as they like; at any rate they may sing and still be within the law.

FOR some time there has been a sort of apathy toward "The Star-Spangled Banner," the song. The lyric is majestic, true; though no one seems to know it, by heart, beyond the opening words, "Oh, say, can you see——." The late Nat Wills always complained about that line. Only milkmen, he contended, could see by the dawn's early light.

The fault, however, with "The Star-Spangled Banner" lies mostly with the music—a high note that no male singer except Caruso has approached with any degree of comfort. The Cohan song, while the music has yet to reach the masses, will undoubtedly be encompassed within the range of ordinary vocal chords, following the mandate of the popular ditty, "Sing Something Simple."

No one knows when the President is to call his Cabinet together for the first rehearsal. There are, as the newspapermen avow, some splendid voices in the Cabinet. Easily, a double quartet might be selected from that distinguished group, and these singers drafted to broadcast the strains of the national melody over the country, as the peans from the pipes of Pan echoed over the Grecian landscape.

Or Congress: The Senate sextet would go big over the radio singing the new song. Here's the sextet: Bingham, soprano; La Follette, contralto; Ashurst, first tenor; Smoot, second tenor; Borah, basso; Watson, basso profundo. Not a discordant note in the bunch.

• • • •

THE idea has infinite possibilities: A Congressional Choir, for instance, to sing not only this composition of Cohan's, but any number of excerpts from the repertoire of American composers, such as "Rally Round the Budget, Boys, but Don't Forget the Old Folks at Home."

There are soloists, too, in both branches of Congress. Nothing could be more delightful than to hear Senator Brookhart sing, "The Brewer's Big Horses Shan't Run Over Me," or Moses warbling, "Where the Wild Jackass is Roaming in the Gloaming," or Swanson's swan song, "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginia, Land of Cornwallis and Corn." Request numbers would be popular; which would give George Norris a chance to sing "O Sole Mio."

At last the Nation is getting somewhere in the realm of music. America, after all these years, is to have a theme song. There is plenty of precedent. Greece had its Homer; Rome, its Virgil. Ireland had Tom Moore. Now comes Cohan, bard of Columbia, with a lyric to thrill the heart of America.

RED CROSS MAY AID RELIEF OF JOBLESS

Local Chapters Ask Approval of Plans to Cooperate Next Winter.

(Associated Press.)

Local Red Cross chapters may cooperate extensively with other agencies in unemployment relief this winter.

This prospect appeared yesterday when it became known that requests for the attitude of national headquarters toward such participation had been received and that officials regard the decision as one for the local chapters to make.

National headquarters is barred under its charter from participating in unemployment relief. Heretofore, most local chapters have adopted the attitude of the central organization, although a few have done general relief work, particularly in rural sections, for a number of years.

The queries, however, are from chapters, some of them in the large cities, which previously had viewed the situation growing out of the industrial depression from the standpoint of headquarters.

No Hard and Fast Rules.

Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman, said yesterday the ban on assisting in unemployment relief was not regarded as extending to cooperation in such work by local chapters.

He added, however, that consultations with local chapters were still going on and that officials would insist that they should not pledge the national organization in any way.

"If they should cooperate in local relief programs and finding their resources exhausted, should ask us for funds," he said, "they would probably be denied. We are making no hard and fast rule, however. Our action will depend upon the circumstances which may develop."

He emphasized that the work local chapters may do does not mean a change in viewpoint on the part of headquarters and said no amendment to the Red Cross charter to enable it to participate in general unemployment relief was contemplated.

In Addition to Emergencies.

The cooperation of the local relief chapters, he said, is aside from that given during national emergencies regarded as "acts of God," such as droughts and floods. In those cases the central organization directs the raising and expenditure of the money.

Chairman Payne said indication of a change in attitude on the part of local chapters had not been numerous. He would not comment on whether the movement might become widespread.

The majority of the funds of the Red Cross, aside from reserves, is in the hands of the local chapters. For each member headquarters receives 50 cents. The remainder of the contribution remains with the local chapter.

Chairman Payne was called to the White House Wednesday for a conference on the unemployment situation with President Hoover. On leaving, he said he believed his visit marked the beginning of a cooperative movement among the different relief organizations.

The GIRL About Town

I CAN hardly wait for the latest news from Chile. The reason for my anxiety is that we want that Senor Carlos Davila, Chilean Ambassador at Washington, to ascend the throne, or whatever you call it, as the new president of that republic. The ranks of the Davilas in diplomatic Washington never seem to lessen, however. No sooner is Don Carlos gone just in time to get the presidency when he arrives in his homeland, than Honduras sent us another Davila to fill the gap. The President met him yesterday, Senor Celeo Davila, and he looks attractive. When Secretary Stimson calls the roll of diplomats and he comes to the name of "Davila," at least two envoys will answer, the new one of yesterday and the Roumanian Minister, Mr. Charles Davila. I hope they never mix their consignments of diplomatic "hootch."

Thinking about George Cohan's new bicentennial song, "Father of the Land I Love," for which he gets no cash, but millions in publicity, who should I meet coming out of the Army and Navy Hotel but Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, the last living Washington born at Mount Vernon and the great-great-great-grandniece of George Washington. Mrs. Howard has her wonderful cane with her, made of a tree at Mount Vernon. Isn't it strange that she has not been named on any of those bicentennial committees and commissions? Somebody may wake up after a time and find that George Washington has some collateral descendants right in the city of Washington who would lend authority and distinction to bicentennial plans.

I CAUGHT a glimpse of Mathilde Townsend Gerry Welles with Sumner Welles Wednesday night as we dashed by the Annapolis Roads Club. Mathilde looked like a midsummer night's dream with her blonde bobbed hair, sunkissed skin and black bathing suit. Mathilde must rejoice that her mother made a will that could be probated right away. They are quite novel in this season of will contests, caveats and testamentary incapacity debates.

A little further on we heard talk about "high flying world flights," and I insisted that we stop and look in a window. We were rewarded for our pains. There was Dr. Hugh M. Young, of Baltimore, giving a dinner, and handsome Gov. Ritchie—what a whiz he would be in the White House, the best looking President since Chester A. Arthur!—and Senator Hiram Bingham and some other summer widowers spinning yarns. Of course, I am not a politically minded woman, but it is only natural to ask what those aviation lights, Republican and Democrat, were doing at that after-midnight confab.

COLORED VOTER BAN IN TEXAS SUIT BASIS

Action in Supreme Court Is to Force Democrats to Raise Bar.

(Associated Press.)

L. A. Nixon, a Negro living at El Paso, yesterday again asked the Supreme court to award him damages because he was not permitted to participate in Democratic primaries.

In March, 1927, the Supreme Court, in a suit brought by Nixon, held that a law of Texas which prohibited Negroes from voting in Democratic State primaries was invalid and that Nixon had a right of action for damages against the Democratic officials.

The Texas Legislature repealed the law following the Supreme Court decision and provided that the Democratic State executive committee could restrict the right to vote at primaries to white Democrats. Under the act the Democratic executive committee issued instructions restricting the primaries to white Democrats.

Nixon would have the highest court review a suit for $5,000 damages which he brought against James Condon and C. H. Kolle, election judges of the Ninth Precinct at El Paso, for refusing on July 28, 1928, to supply him with a ballot and permit him to vote in Democratic primaries held that day.

The Federal district court dismissed the suit, holding that the action was that of a political party and not of the State. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the rights conferred in the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments applied to State action and not to action by political organizations; that Texas had merely recognized the existing right of the Democratic State executive committee to fix the qualifications of its members and that the election officials who refused to permit Nixon to vote at the Democratic primaries were appointed by the Democratic committee and were not State officers.

Shaw, Astor Visit To Russia Ended

Party Leaves for London via Berlin After Day of Sightseeing.

Moscow, July 30 (A.P.).—George Bernard Shaw and Lady Astor ended their first visit to Russia tonight, leaving for London by way of Berlin after nine days of intensive sightseeing and conversations with notables of the Soviet Union.

The members of the party, which also included Mrs. Shaw, Lord Astor, his son David and the Marquis of Lothian, expressed delight with the hospitality extended by the Soviet hosts.

Police Pay Price For Murder Clew

$15,000 Raised for Aid in Locating Slayers of Vivian Gordon.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—The "price" which a mysterious informant demanded for clews leading to a solution of the murder of Vivian Gordon, Broadway character, was met today by New York police, although the slayer or slayers are still at large.

A check for $15,000 raised by subscription, was turned over to Police Commissioner Joseph P. Mulrooney by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association to be given to the informant.

Paris Art Men Reported Planning to Help Berlin

Paris, July 30 (A.P.).—The Havas Agency said tonight that the principal art and antique dealers of Paris are forming a syndicate to offer a loan of 1,000,000,000 francs (about $40,000,000) to Germany on advantageous terms. The loan would be secured by the works of the masters in the galleries of Berlin, Munich, Dresden, Cologne and other places.

It was said the plan called for exhibiting the pictures in France while they were being held as collateral and charging admission fees.

FINANCIAL EXPERTS END BERLIN SESSION

Deny Report That Situation Is Viewed Skeptically; Off for Homes.

Berlin, July 30 (A.P.).—The so-called "freezing commission," on which were financial experts of several nations who grappled with the task of surveying Germany's needs and formulating a plan to leave foreign credits undisturbed in the country, ended its labors tonight and the foreign delegates left to return home.

The commission issue no statement regarding its conclusions, but unofficial sources said that a plan had been drafted and an agreement, at least on essentials, had been reached.

In the meantime the Cabinet has been working in almost uninterrupted sessions to plan a way out of the nation's economic difficulties and it was said today that Chancellor Bruening might make public a comprehensive plan of action by the end of this week.

Denies Skeptical View.

The "freezing commission" made no statement at the close of its session except to issue a denial of a newspaper report that "the situation was viewed skeptically in Berlin."

The Berliner Tageblatt said tonight a full agreement had been reached with British banks and an agreement "on essentials" with Americans. It also said a plan had been drafted to be submitted by banks of issue to other foreign banks for approval.

The plan provides, among other things, that German bank acceptances respecting reimbursement credits shall carry an additional lien upon those industrial concerns in whose favor such credits are granted.

According to the Tageblatt separate negotiations with various countries will follow immediately. The paper added, however, "it is generally believed that it will be difficult to avoid a short moratorium pending these separate negotiations."

The Reichsrat today approved the coining of 100,000,000 marks' worth of 5-mark silver pieces.

Sidetracking of Politics.

Among the far-reaching plans which the government is considering putting into effect after the immediate difficulties of the next few days have been mastered is an effort to sidetrack politics and deal directly with the people through two state commissioners representing labor and capital.

It was expected that Hermann Schmitz, managing director of the Dye Trust, will be the representative of capital and industry and that Karl Bachem, manager of the Arbeiter Bank, a workers' institution, might probably represent the interests of the working classes.

SNOWDEN FORESEES BRITISH BUDGET CUT

Says Country Is Sound and Denies Reports of Bankruptcy.

London, July 30 (A.P.).—Considerable economies are necessary to make Great Britain's balance next year, Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden told the House of Commons today, but the country's financial position is sound.

Although the outlook is serious, he said, there was no truth in a seeming impression that Britain's budgetary position was in a hopeless state of bankruptcy.

Instead, he said that it was more satisfactory than that of any other great country.

To relieve national finance of some of the war debt load, its heaviest burden, he said, a large saving in interest would be effected by a plan he has for a huge conversion war loan.

The government, he asserted, is seriously considering the report of an economic commission, which is understood to have recommended drastic cuts in expenditures.

"London remains the best market in the world for foreign investments," the chancellor declared, "and the government intends to keep the sound position of British credits unimpaired."

Caraway Opposes Haste In Repaying Farm Loans

(Associated Press.)

Senator Caraway said yesterday he would ask that the Agriculture Department modify its position that drought loans be repaid the Government in full out of the first crop money received by farmers.

"Such a policy would make the Government the most arbitrary lender in the world," the Arkansas Democrat said. "It is foolish to contend that farmers must turn over their entire crop proceeds and keep nothing for food and clothing."

Senator Caraway referred to letters written this week by the seed loan office advising borrowers and buyers of farm products of the Government's first mortgage and notifying them that "payments of your Government loan, plus accrued interest, if any, should be remitted to this office before any of the proceeds are turned over to you or any other party."

He said he planned to ask Congress in December to make the drought relief money a revolving fund until the affected States have fully recovered.

"You can't expect people to recover from such a disaster in one year," the senator said, adding he did not expect much of the money to be repaid this year.

Lord Kylsant Is Sentenced On Falsification Charge

Draws 12 Months' Term and Is Placed in Jail Pending Bail.

London, July 30 (A.P.).—Lord Kylsant, one of the most prominent figures in British business and finance, was convicted today in Old Bailey criminal court of being concerned in the publication of a Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. prospectus which he knew to be false.

He was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment in the second division, which allows him certain visitors and mail. He is a director of the Royal Mail Co. He was acquitted of two other charges connected with the publication of allegedly misleading company reports.

Dramatic were the closing scenes of the trial, in which legal luminaries of the country engaged.

The 68-year-old peer, one of the tallest men in England, listened as if in a dream as the judge pronounced sentence. His face was white and haggard and he seemed hardly to realize where he was until a warder tapped him on the shoulder and guided him to a cell below the court.

Here he had a meeting with Lady Kylsant a half hour later. She was unable to stand the strain of attending court during the final day of the trial, but motored from their home to see her husband after the verdict was announced. She was in a state bordering on collapse and two men virtually carried her up the steps of the court.

Lord Kylsant later was taken to Wormwood Scrubbs Prison pending the result of an application for bail, which Sir John Simon announced he would raise tomorrow.

Sir John also gave notice he would appeal the sentence.

Associated with Lord Kylsant in the charges regarding the company reports, but not that connected with the prospectus, was the auditor, H. J. Morland. He was acquitted.

GOV. RITCHIE WARNS INDUSTRY OF CRISIS

Says Government Will Act in Unemployment Unless Business Does.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 30 (A.P.).—Gov Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told the Virginia Bar Association tonight that if industry and business will do nothing about unemployment during periods of depression, then Government will.

"No thinking person wants the State or the Nation to provide for labor in times of enforced idleness, if industry will recognize and fulfill its obligation to do it," the governor said.

"Along one road lies the opportunity for initiative and constructive effort on the part of American business to discharge its responsibilities to the labor whose toil and sweat in the shop is as essential as the brains and directing hand at the desk.

"Along the other road lies, I believe, the ultimate certainty of legislation which may prove hurtful to business itself and to the community, a drain on the public treasury, and a departure from American institutions."

Ritchie described himself as a "fighting advocate" of "more business in government and less government in business," but added that unless industry realizes that the problem of unemployment is primarily its own, it is going to find government undertaking to solve it. This, he said, will put government in business more than it has even been."

Col. Thomas Ball Indicted in Theft

Former House Member Is Accused in 1927 Land Transaction.

Houston, Tex., July 30 (A.P.).—Col. Thomas H. Ball, active in the Democratic party of Texas and former member of Congress from this district, was indicted today by the Harris County grand jury on a charge of felony.

The charge related to a land transaction alleged to have occurred during 1927 between a company of which Col. Ball was president and the port commission here, of which he was, and is, legal counsel.

The indictment charged theft of certain checks involving land purchases made by the port commission in 1927. Bail was set at $5,000. Col. Ball, who is 72, said it is unthinkable that an indictment should have been returned. He was credited with being the father of Port Houston, as he was in Congress when the first appropriation for the deepening of the Houston ship channel was obtained. The port now is worth more than $20,000,000.

Ford Radio Permit May Be Rescinded

U. S. Examiner Asserts That Stations Are Primarily Private.

Examiner Walker of the Radio Commission yesterday recommended denial of the application of the Ford Motor Co. for renewal and modification of licenses for its aeronautical and airway beacon radio stations at Dearborn, Mich., and Lansing, Ill., on the ground that the purpose is "primarily private."

The examiner contended the scarcity of frequencies suitable for such stations, together with the needs of the Commerce Department in establishing and maintaining aids to air navigation precluded the granting of the applications. The report is subject to action by the commission, now in recess.

The examiner said that although the airports at Lansing and Dearborn were used by planes other than those of the applicant, they "are maintained primarily in the interests of the owner."

Oil Men of New Mexico Wire Murray Approval

Hobbs, N. Mex., July 30 (A.P.).—"Stay in there and pitch," the Hobbs oil people have telegraphed Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, regarding Murray's oil program.

The price of crude in the Hobbs pool went from 10 cents to 25 cents a barrel yesterday and 109 business men, oil field workers and oil men sent Murray a joint telegram of commendation.

The Hobbs pool increase instigated by the Humble Co. affects eighteen other producers in the field.

American Sentenced To Death in Mexico

Mexico City, July 30 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the newspaper Excelsior from Torreon said that Judge Jose Mijares today sentenced Mapp Garrett, an American colored man, to death for the shooting of Anthony Wessendorff and H. W. Garrow, cotton dealers of Houston, Tex., eight months ago.

The man was also sentenced to pay approximately $50,000 damages to relatives of the victims.

BETHLEHEM STEEL SLASHES DIVIDEND

Cut in Half to 50 Cents Is Less Drastic Than Was Expected.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation slashed its disbursements to common stockholders in half today.

The cut was less drastic than expected in some financial circles, as was reflected in a temporary rally of $1.75 a share, in the stock in the San Francisco Curb Market. The New York market was closed when the announcement was made.

E. C. Grace, president of Bethlehem, the second largest unit in this basic industry, interviewed after the quarterly directors' meeting, said the corporation had made no reductions in its rate of either salaries or wages. Directors at their quarterly meeting made no recommendations on the subject.

Asked if wage reductions had been considered in the industry, Mr. Grace replied, "I don't know of any general discussion of wage rates or of any conference called to discuss the subject." He explained, however, that working hours not only of mill workers but of office workers as well had been reduced, and compensation adjusted accordingly.

Grace Not Optimistic.

Mr. Grace was not optimistic over the immediate business outlook, saying, "I don't see any indication yet of a pickup in business. I must say that we pray for an improvement rather than anticipate it."

Nevertheless, taking a long range view, he was mildly cheerful. "Industry in the United States never was in a sounder or better position to take care of itself in a depression than it is today," he said, explaining that in 1921 Bethlehem operated at an average rate below 28 per cent of capacity all year. This compares with average operation for the second quarter of this year of 41½ per cent of capacity, and a current rate of 37. He added, however, that new business in sight was not sufficient to sustain the 37 per cent rate.

Dividend of 50 Cents.

Bethlehem directors ordered a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, against $1 paid in the previous quarter. At their April meeting, they had reduced the boom time quarterly payment of $1.50 to $1.

There had been considerable difference of opinion in Wall street as to what dividend would be ordered, and while a 50-cent payment had been widely forecast, there was a considerable feeling in financial quarters that a sharper reduction might be made.

wounded six, but apparently this is not enough.

"Don't be last on the draw. If it should happen we know who is responsible for the 107th street killing and we should come upon him, have no hesitation in giving it to him and giving it to him above the waist. If I meet him I will not hesitate."

Mayor Walker told the bluecoats to "call on the Almighty to give you superhuman power to bring to justice the dogs responsible for this killing."

Meanwhile, the wave of indignation over the shooting was growing. The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children put its entire staff of special officers at the disposal of authorities and announced it was considering the award of a gold medal to Florence d'Amelio, one of the shooting victims, for her attempt to save a baby nephew from death.

A. J. Engelman, former secretary of the cooperative board of safety, in a letter to Commissioner Mulrooney, charged police methods are antiquated and urged that "authorities bring their methods of battling for law and order up to a scale far superior to those used by gansterdom in overthrowing them."

In a telegram to President Hoover, Representative Andrew L. Somers, Democrat, of the Sixth Congressional District, called the "shooting orgy" an "eloquent evidence of the benefits of prohibition."

Mayor Walker said he "naturally feels the same as everyone else about it," and added he had confidence the police would "handle things satisfactorily."

WICKERSHAM SORRY FOR PENAL REPORT

Bates Replies That Nearly All Suggestions Have Been Followed.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Wickersham of the President's Law Enforcement Commission yesterday sent to Sanford Bates, superintendent of Federal prisons, a note of regret that the commission's last report had not spoken more favorably of the Government's improved penal machinery.

Making no differentiation between Federal and State institutions, the commission's report lashed out at the "present prison system" as antiquated, inefficient, as failing either to reform the criminal or protect society and as contributing to crime through brutal treatment of prison inmates.

Bates' answer, given to newspapermen, was that his bureau during the past year had put into effect nearly every one of the commission's 22 recommendations.

Report to Mitchell.

It was learned also that the Federal prison superintendent had written a report to Attorney General Mitchell in which he listed each of the commission's suggestions and beneath it reported the task either done or under way so far as the Government was concerned.

In its scathing denunciation of the prison system, the commission made little mention of Federal institutions, and virtually every one of the examples it cited as bad was a State or local institution.

In his note yesterday Wickersham pointed out that in a report by 24 experts, appended to the commission's study, there was a resume of efforts to improve the Federal prison system. Bates was one of the 24 who wrote this report.

"I wish," Wickersham wrote, "that more reference had been made to this history in the report of the commission itself, because I think the legislation is epoch-making and the changes in the whole system of penal management and control and the custody and training of offenders is really revolutionized by the legislation which you have promoted and the changes which you have made."

Not Sufficiently Discussed.

When asked his opinion of the Wickersham report, Attorney General Mitchell said he thought Bates' work had not been sufficiently discussed.

Along with his letter yesterday, Wickersham sent to Bates a copy of the report. The note was mailed from 40 Wall street, New York, where the 70-year-old commission chairman has resumed his private law practice after more than two years of work with the commission here.

He plans to return to the Capital shortly to present to President Hoover a fifteenth report of the commission, detailing its expenditure of the $500,000 appropriated by Congress. With the submission of this report the commission's work finally will be done, since fourteen reports already have been sent to the White House to be made public at intervals throughout the summer.

The Associated General Contractors of America yesterday pictured the Wickersham Commission's views on convict labor as at loggerheads with President Hoover's employment relief policy.

Edward J. Harding, managing director of the organization, in a formal statement, attacked the commission's statement that prison labor on public works was least injurious to capital and labor and most advantageous to the State.

"The premise is entirely without foundation," Harding said, referring to the commission's recommendation for adoption of the prison labor policy as "in direct opposition to the relief policy of President Hoover and his administration."

AUTHOR DIES

MRS. MARY T. WAGGAMAN.

MRS. WAGGAMAN, 85, AUTHOR, SUCCUMBS

Widow of Doctor Had Been Writing Professionally Since Girlhood.

Mrs. Mary T. Waggaman, for many years well known in literary circles here, died last night at her home in Hammond Courts, Thirtieth and Q streets northwest, following a brief illness. She was 85 years old.

A native of Baltimore, Mrs. Waggaman had been a resident of Washington for more than 60 years. She was the widow of Dr. Samuel J. Waggaman, who died in 1913. A professional writer since girlhood, Mrs. Waggaman was the author of numerous serials, short stories and poems. Within the last 15 years she had written more than 35 children's books, cherished by small folk throughout the United States.

Mrs. Waggaman was educated in the Mount De Sales Convent at Catonsville, Md. Shortly after beginning her career as a writer, she was declared the winner of a short-story contest over 3,000 other participants. He story was lauded by Irvin Cobb, one of the judges of the contest.

She was widely known in Catholic activities here, having been the author of many articles for Catholic periodicals.

Surviving Mrs. Waggaman are six children, Miss Mary T. Waggaman, Mrs. Charles P. Neill, Miss Josephine M. Waggaman and John McKee Waggaman, of Washington; Samuel J. Waggaman, of Los Angeles, Calif.; and William H. Waggaman, of Lakeland, Fla.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow from the Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Divorce of Vanderbilts Is Step Nearer Courts

Reno, Nev., July 30 (A.P.).—Domestic troubles of the Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr's moved a step nearer the divorce courts today when Samuel Platt, attorney for Vanderbilt, completed service of papers on Mary Vanderbilt and filed notice that he wished the case set for hearing.

The action, it was learned, was intended to expedite the matter of a property settlement out of court. Just when the case will go to trial has not been determined although Monday, August 10, is considered a likely date.

CAPT. JONAS PLATT, OF MARINES, IS DEAD

Was Decorated by Both Navy and Army for Heroism in World War.

Capt. Jonas Henry Platt, U. S. M. C., died yesterday at the Naval Hospital after a long illness. He entered the hospital for treatment June 3, and had remained there from that time until his death.

Capt. Platt was born in 1886, in New York, and was commissioned in the Marine Corps in September, 1917, after having had commissioned service in the Naval Militia of Ohio from August, 1916. During the World War he served with the Foreign Shore Expeditionary Service in France from March, 1918, to July, 1919.

He participated in the Aisne-Marne defensive, attached to the Forty-ninth Company, Fifth Regiment Marines, where he was wounded in June 1918, and was evacuated to a hospital. After he was discharged from the hospital he assumed command of Marine Guard Company No. 2 at Brest, France.

From January to June, 1925, he served in Haiti, and was later ordered to Philadelphia to act as officer in charge of the Marine recruiting bureau. He served in that capacity until April, 1929, when he was transferred to Washington as aid to the major general commandant. In September, 1930, he was sent to Quantico as a student in the field officers course.

Capt. Platt was awarded the Army's Distinguished Service Cross and the Navy Cross, and was cited twice by the War Department. His citation for the Navy Cross was "for extraordinary heroism in action near the Bois de Belleau, Chateau Thierry, when he continued to direct the operations of not only his own but another platoon after he was seriously wounded in the leg early in the engagement."

Plans for the funeral services and interment had not been made last night. His nearest relative is a brother, Harold L. Pratt, of Providence, R. I.

U. S. Woman Must Serve Term.

Havana, Cuba, July 30 (U.P.).—The supreme court today refused to commute the life sentence of Mrs. Ruth Kinsley, an American, who was convicted of killing her husband, a Colombian, at Camaguey last year.

WORLD COOPERATION OPTIMISM IS FELT

Newton D. Baker Speaks as Politics Institute Opens in Massachusetts.

Williamstown, Mass., July 30 (A.P.).—On an optimistic note of international conciliation and cooperation, the Institute of Politics opened here this afternoon with an hour-long speech by Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under the Wilson administration.

Three hundred men and women enrolled as students for the month-long institute and several hundred invited guests attended the invocation at Chapin Hall on the campus of Williams College. Afterward a reception was held at the home of Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of the college, and institute chairman.

Mr. Baker referred to his summary of postwar economic and political problems as the reflections of a man in the street offered for the information of experts. Some of the experts who heard him were Luigi Villari, of the University of Rome; Prof. Herbert von Beckerath, of Bonn University; Charles A. le Neveu, president of L'Union Coloniale; Dr. William E. Rappard, director for the School for Higher Education of Geneva; Prof. Theodore E. Gregory of the London School of Economics, some leading American Ecopomists and students and writers on economic and political subjects.

Tariff Adjustment Need.

Need of openly discussed treaty and trade arrangements and tariff adjustments was stressed by the former war Secretary.

World diplomacy has grown away from the "felonious atmosphere" of pre-Spanish-American War days, Mr. Baker said, adding that the Versailles treaty was a good starting point for future progress.

"Statesmen who dealt with postwar reconstruction have done far better than the world had a right to expect," the former Secretary said, "and have succeeded in shaking off the shackles of the old diplomatic method."

"Among nations as among men, ideals have a better chance when we are poor. The tide of colonial expansion militated against harmony among nations. The World War brought the revelation that the strongest nation, like the bee, dies when it uses its sting. The song of the victor died when he contemplated the cost of the victory."

Because of this realization, Mr. Baker said, the League of Nations has grown and gained in prestige.

Mr. Baker pointed to the budding of innumerable leagues and agencies for the study and dissemination of facts on international relations.

Public Opinion Steadier.

"Because of this," he said, "the American people who have grown up in a tradition of isolation, welcomed President Hoover's moratorium proposal, and it was welcomed not only by political intelligentsia, but by the man in the street, the artisan and the small business man.

"Public opinion rarely has shown itself steadier, more competent or more restrained than in the critical moment when, if the world was to be saved, action was necessary and criticism could only weaken the helpful forces stirred into action."

Public opinion will inject a better atmosphere into the disarmament conference next year, Mr. Baker said.

"Each delegate will have learned from the people of his country that the public has little patience with technicalities and excuses which disguise nationalistic pretensions. They will back those leaders who act on the principle that the way to disarm is to disarm."

"The Briand-Kellogg pact outlawed war as an instrument of national policy, and it would be wise if the tariff were outlawed as an instrument of economic policy," Mr. Baker said.

Flier Dies as Plane Falls Near Crewless Radio Ship

Lieut. Fisher, "Man Who Couldn't Be Killed," Is Victim When Wings Collapse Over Pacific; Body and Craft Not Recovered.

San Diego Bay, Calif., July 30 (U.P.).—Lieut. T. G. Fisher, 34, a Navy pilot who was known as "The Man Who Couldn't Be Killed," fell to his death today when the wings of his powerful combat airplane collapsed and the plane fell into the Pacific Ocean.

Fisher was engaged in aerial shooting practice with the radio-controlled destroyer Stoddert at sea off the Coronado Islands as a target. The Stoddert was immediately halted by radio, but the fact that it was without a crew prevented his rescue.

Neither his body nor the plane had been recovered tonight.

The destroyer Perry, from which the Stoddert was controlled, was three miles distant when Fisher's ship, speeding in a power dive while he raked the vessel with machine gun fire, was seen to collapse.

Fisher had figured in a number of narrow escapes since he became attached to North Island Navy Flying Station several years ago. A year ago, his plane went into a inverted spin, and he was forced to "bail out."

His parachute became entangled in the falling craft, but he disengaged the ropes and fell safely in San Deigo Bay.

Three years ago, while piloting a seaplane from Seattle to San Deige, his craft fell into the ocean off Ventura, Calif., four members of his crew drowning. Fisher reached shore safely.

He was picked up by a fishing boat. Such occurrences earned for him the name of "The Man Who Couldn't Be Killed."

Available records tonight failed to show his home. He was unmarried.

STANDARD-VACUUM OIL MERGER VOTED

Stockholders of Companies Approve Plans for Giant Consolidation.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Creation of a new billion dollar oil corporation—the Socony-Vacuum Corporation—became an assured fact today.

Approval of the merger of Standard Oil Co. of New York and Vacuum Oil Co. to create the new industrial giant was voted at separate meetings by stockholders of both companies. The merger brings about the first consolidation of two units of the original Standard Oil Co., from which the two companies were segregated in 1911.

Merger of the two companies also closes an important chapter in the oil industry, during which the Federal Government sought to prevent the consolidation and carried the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The Government acted shortly after the merger proposal was first announced in February, 1930, and contended that it would be in violation of the original Standard Oil dissolution decree and of the Sherman antitrust act.

he United States Circuit Court of Appeals held that the merger would violate neither the dissolution decree nor the Sherman act. The court held the project was an entirely new undertaking, and the intent and purpose of the merger was solely to meet the normal and natural business necessities of both companies.

TREASURY'S BUDGET REDUCED $6,000,000

Department Obeys Hoover Order to Cut Unneeded Expenditures.

(Associated Press.)

Slashing all unnecessary expenditures for the 1933 fiscal year, the Treasury had complied with President Hoover's economy instructions by eliminating $6,000,000 from its budget.

This saving is exclusive of the Federal building program which was enlarged by Congress at President Hoover's recommendation to alleviate the unemployment situation. It calls for an expenditure of $120,000,000 in 1933 as compared with $60,000,000 appropriated this year and will make the total Treasury outlay $314,000,000 or $54,000,000 more than was appropriated for the present fiscal year.

Deducting the public building program, the Treasury's budget for 1933 will total $254,000,000 as compared with $260,000,000 in the present year.

Acting Secretary Mills has been conducting hearings in which the various Treasury bureaus have submitted their 1933 estimates. He made extensive cuts in these and reduced them by $23,283,000.

Ford to Suspend Plants for August

Excess of Parts Is Reason; Assembly Lines Are to Continue.

Detroit, July 30 (A.P.).—Officials of the Ford Motor Co. announced today that the company will suspend manufacturing operations August 1 and will not reopen during the month.

The announcement said that operations would be continued on the assembly line in Detroit and 11 of the 36 assembly branches throughout the country.

"A large bank of parts has been built up at all plants, and outside parts producers have been notified not to make shipments after July 29 and during August," the announcement said.

Senator Stephens, Ill, Is Slightly Improved

Memphis, Tenn., July 30 (A.P.).—After a "very good night" United States Senator Hubert D. Stephens was described by one of his attending physicians today as "slightly improved."

Dr. J. A. Crisler, sr., said the Mississippi senator had a "fighting chance" for recovery. Stricken at his home at New Albany, Miss., Senator Stephens was brought to the Methodist Hospital here, where an operation for acute gangrenous appendicitis was performed Tuesday.

CANNON ASKS COURT TO BAR SENATE QUIZ

they bring up against all these committees."

Injunction Something New

"We realize that we're under the jurisdiction of the courts," he said, "but on the other hand, it is my personal opinion that the courts cannot take jurisdiction of a resolution of the senate. For a court to enjoin members of Congress from acting under such a resolution would be something new."

The complaint that Bishop Cannon violated the corrupt practices act in his anti-Smith campaign was filed with the committee January 21 last by Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts. Five days earlier Senator Glass succeeded in getting his resolution empowering the committee to hear any complaint in violation of the corrupt practices act adopted by the Senate. Later the bishop brought a $500,000 damage action against Tinkham for statements by him in the press.

Bishop Cannon said the committee failed to make any reply to his protest of May 6 against inquiry into the Tinkham announced and that it has publicly announced it intends to hold further hearings on the basis of the Tinkham complaint.

Attorney McNeill said he will serve notice on the senators for a hearing before the court August 12.

CHEATING THE LAW.

"Scarface" Al Capone's latest effort to escape condign punishment for violation of the prohibition and income tax laws has been fittingly interrupted. Capone has made himself ridiculous by pleading guilty to these crimes and then trying to change his plea when the court manifests a disposition to base his sentence on the records rather than on the advice of the prosecuting attorney.

Having failed to escape the toils of Federal investigators, Capone has been trying for the last several weeks to make laughing stock of the Federal courts. He is charged with 5,000 separate offenses against the prohibition act, and with evasion of taxes on an income of more than $1,000,000. Capone knew that his accustomed immunity to legal penalties would not impress the Federal court. So he arranged to plead guilty in the hope of getting a light sentence. Apparently the prosecution entered into a compromise with him, agreeing to recommend a short sentence that would cover all his offenses in consideration for the guilty plea.

Prosecutors throughout the country were severely censured for this practice in a recent report from the Law Enforcement Commission. To avoid the work of prosecuting offenders attorneys for the States and the Government too frequently reduce charges and recommend light sentences in consideration of guilty pleas. Clever crooks are thus allowed to cheat the law, while prosecutors pat themselves on the back for having secured technical convictions. It is a vicious practice that should be more frequently challenged in the courts.

Al Capone has admitted his guilt. Now he contends that he admitted it only because the prosecution held out hope of a short sentence. Prosecutors who have agreed to compromise with the gangster should be severely censured. They have no authority to fix sentences, nor to bribe individuals into pleading guilty. But that does not alter the fact that the gangster has admitted his culpability.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, who refused to recognize the "compromise" between the gangster and the prosecution, has moved to put justice on a higher plane. He has informed criminals as well as prosecuting attorneys that the courts can not be trifled with. Whether defendants plead guilty or are convicted they should be meted out punishment commensurate with their offenses. If they are naive enough to plead guilty on promises of leniency that do not come from the courts, they should suffer the consequences. How could Capone be allowed to change his mind because he faces a more severe punishment than he expected?

THE "BUTLER PLAN."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, has returned from Europe, bringing a new store of ideas on how the United States can save the world. He visions grave consequences arising from the competition between capitalism and communism in Europe, and calls upon America to intervene. In short, Dr. Butler seems to see no hope for civilization unless the United States takes the burdens of the disordered economic world upon its own shoulders.

As a first move in the direction of Utopia he would call an international conference of economists to solve the depression. "Tried men of affairs of equally high standing" would be brought together from all parts of the world. They would diagnose the business depression and prescribe "therapeutic" remedies to be applied by governments, notaby by the Government of the United States.

Dr. Butler knows of no organization better qualified to initiate this movement than the International Chamber of Commerce. Indeed, the last meeting of the International Chamber gave a demonstration that warmed Dr. Butler's heart. Any conference sponsored by that organization could be expected to adopt the "Butler plan," which is to revive the world at the expense of the United States. When the International Chamber met in Washington last spring its whole attention was centered on projects to reduce the United States to the level of the rest of the world.

But why go to the trouble of assembling delegates from all nations when the advice of Dr. Butler is available? What more eloquent tongue could urge the American people to cancel Europe's debts, amounting to $11,500,000,000? Could any body of experts make a more majestic assault upon the American tariff than the globe-trotting president of Columbia? Dr. Butler knows what's wrong with the world. Why should not the American people recognize this fountain of wisdom and set civilization on the right track without waiting for an international conference to confirm his views?

There seems to be only one thing wrong with the whole suggestion. Whether this plan of economic salvation is initiated by Dr. Butler himself or by an international conference there are ten chances to one that the American people will be too pig-headed to accept it. Not having the enlightenment that comes of much foreign travel, the average citizen is not able to see how conditions could be improved by opening the American market to dumping from every part of the world. His economics are not advanced to a point where he can perceive how the ruin of American industry and the increase of unemployment in this country could make the world prosperous. Nor can he understand Dr. Butler's more subtle thesis that this country faces ruin unless taxpayers are saddled with the $11,500,000,000 debt owed by Europe.

Under the circumstances the most practical move would be to educate the obstinate American public as to its responsibilities. It might be advantageous to call a conference of educators to determine why all America is out of step with the distinguished president of Columbia.

OCEANS GROW SMALL.

New York to Turkey—4,984 miles—in 2 days 1 hour and 20 minutes! American fliers have established a new record for distance flight. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning Istanbul, or ancient Constantinople, as the former capital of Turkey is better known in this country, welcomed Russel Boardman and John Polando and flashed the news to a waiting world of their safe arrival. No word had come from the intrepid fliers from the time they took off until they landed right on schedule to be welcomed by the American Ambassador and an enthusiastic, cosmopolitan reception committee of many thousands. It was another triumph of American flying skill and excellent navigation through much stormy and foggy weather.

The round-the-world fliers—Hugh Herndon, jr., and Clyde Pangborn—took off at the same time as the plane headed for Turkey. Their first objective was Moscow, but fogs forced their descent in Wales. Safely over the Atlantic, they continued their flight to London, Berlin and Moscow yesterday, following the course of Post and Gatty in an attempt to lower once more the short course around the world at the great circle.

Yesterday also saw the definite departure of the Lindberghs from the United States for their much-heralded flight to Japan. They left the Morrow home at North Haven, Me., for the Canadian capital, Ottawa, where they were to spend the night, hopping off again this morning toward Tokyo, some 7,000 miles away. While they are not attempting any record-breaking flights against time and space, millions of well-wishers will be waiting frequent reports on their safe progress.

The double conquest of the Atlantic by American fliers under trying weather conditions renders new and eloquent tribute, not only to the skill of the aviators, but to their planes, their engines and to competent navigation. Such feats are striking evidence of progress in navigation of the air. The Atlantic has been crossed many times this season without a single casualty. Boardman and Polando completed their big hop with a fine record to their credit. Herndon and Pangborn are still on their way in the Grand Circle Handicap. Anne and Charles are headed into the setting sun to fly until West turns to East. Anne—licensed pilot, competent radio operator—has proven herself a fitting mate for the Lone Eagle who set the pace for ocean flights.

STATE TRAINING SCHOOLS.

Many efforts are being made to train State and Federal employes along advanced lines. Cooperation is sought from the colleges in providing studies suitable for aspirants to public positions and various branches of the Government have provided courses of training. One of the new types of schools is that for penal guards established by Maryland.

Operated jointly under the employment commissioner and the administrative officer of the prison department, this school was opened on July 7, 1931. Although the size of the class is limited to 40 students, the number of applicants for enrollment was far greater than this number, so many were of necessity turned away. The classes are held two evenings a week for a term of five weeks. Instruction on the proper method of dealing with the criminal mind and its psychological aspects, modern ideas of prison administration, and the various responsibilities of the guard are reviewed. This type of training shows the progress that has been made in the general attitude toward prisoners.

Guards are also taught how to protect themselves. Boxing, jiu jitsu, the use of firearms, gas masks and night sticks are taken up. Stress is laid on the fact that a knowledge of expert methods will enable the guard to handle recalcitrant prisoners without having to resort to the most extreme measures.

Arrangements have also been completed for the training of nurses and attendants in the largest State hospital for mental cases. In the future satisfactory records in these schools will be a prerequisite for positions in institutions of this type. The facilities which have recently been established in Maryland and the increased severity of examinations for applicants will no doubt result in a greatly improved personnel.

VALUE OF EXPORT TRADE.

In all the discussion of effects of the depression, hard times, poor business, nothing is so much exaggerated, nothing so lends itself to demagogic argument, as talk about the importance of foreign trade to the United States and its effect upon the prosperity of the country. Yet every calculation reemphasizes how relatively unimportant the total bulk of foreign business is in comparison with the vast American home market.

The American people realize a national income of about $90,000,000,000 a year. Not more than 5 per cent of this great sum is spent for foreign goods. An active foreign market for American exports is useful because, as a rule, it absorbs surplus stocks and makes it possible for the United States to purchase goods that are not produced in this country. But less than one-tenth of the movable products of this country are exported and since a large proportion of our products, like services and building, are not movable, it is plain that exports comprise much less than 10 per cent of the national output.

Another fallacy, Dr. Wilford I. King, professor of economics at New York University, points out, is the belief that slack business abroad is the important cause of poor business in this country. It is, he claims, more nearly true that foreign trade declines because domestic trade declines, than that adverse foreign conditions cause a falling off in domestic trade.

If the net profits received from all foreign trade of the United States should be lost it would amount to no more than the loss of profits coming from the increase in domestic business in every average two-year period.

Curious as it may appear, many American producers of raw materials and manufactured goods do not seem to realize the importance of the home market. No producer in any other country in the world has a market to compare with that of the United States. The big lesson of the depression is that production must be properly geared to the consuming power of this Nation for continuous prosperity, counting upon foreign trade only to the minor extent that is its due.

OCEANOGRAPHY

By FREDERICK G. FASSETT in the Boston Transcript.

In the midsummer heat it is pleasant to give thought to the wide stretches of the sea, where the breezes play across the waves. This year, because of the activities of the Coast Survey in charting Georges Bank, public attention is frequently directed to the wind-swept waters off the New England coast. The latest bit of news from that region is the report of the discovery of a whirlpool there. It is said that it whirls out instead of inward, as whirlpools are popularly supposed to do. There is here, perhaps, a new evidence of the contrariness of New England character.

Our whirlpool, concerning which further information may be forthcoming, is not likely, however, to rank among the great whirlpools of the seas. It will not become in future years the source of tradition as that which tells of Jupiter transforming Charybdis into the mighty whirlpool in the Straits of Messina. Nor is it likely that any great rock will be found nearby to play the part of Scylla. Neither will our New England whirlpool enrich the language as did the Norwegian Maelstrom with its reputation of sucking vessels and whales to destruction. It was this fable from the Northland that led to the calling of many an irresistible movement a maelstrom.

This science of oceanography is one of fascination for the curious as well as for the men who give their lives to its pursuit. For example, the novice has read of great ocean depths. He knows that there are places at which there are miles of water between the ship on the surface and the bottom of the sea. But he has an added realization of such distances when he reads such a passage as this, taken from one of the publications of the Coast Survey:

> Nothing is so impressive of the magnitude of the depths of the ocean as the watching, second after second, minute after minute, for a half hour or more, the rapidly revolving drum from which the sounding wire is unwound in its downward fall; and when the bottom is struck and the shot is automatically detached, as indicated by the slight slackening and tremor of the wire conveyed to the surface, there comes a sudden realization of the three or four miles of elevation of the observer above the bottom of the ocean.

Coast survey work off the New England coast just now deals with waters that are shoal. But there are places in what may be called American waters where some of the greatest of ocean depths are found. These are adjacent to islands belonging to the United States in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. North of Porto Rico, a sounding of 4,662 fathoms, or about five and one-third land miles, has been obtained. Off the east coast of the Philippines there is a deeper depression in the ocean floor. There the ocean bottom is below the level of the sea a distance of 5,348 fathoms, or slightly more than six miles.

But these are not the greatest known depths of the oceans. The German cruiser Emden, while en route from Celebes Island, in the Dutch East Indies, to Nagasaki, Japan, discovered and recorded an ocean depth of 34,416 feet, or about six and one-half land miles. This is described as a depth greater by more than a mile than the greatest known height of the Himalayas. Before the voyage of the Emden the greatest known depth of the sea was 32,644 feet off the east coast of Japan. With such great "deeps" it is not surprising to be told that in mean depth as well as in size the Pacific exceeds the other oceans.

From the deeps of the Pacific to Georges Bank is a long leap, but the story of the greatest ocean depths is a chapter in oceanography as well as the work now in progress in nearby waters, and it is a chapter that incidentally goes to show how little is really known about the ocean depths. Nobody yet can say whether or not the greatest depression in ocean floors has been found, and nobody can say what new discoveries may be made right here at New England's doorstep. Last week it was a whirlpool. Next week it may be a discovery that the whirlpool had disappeared, or it may be the discovery of another such valley as that first located last year.

Here again is reminder of how little is known of the ocean depths. It is pointed out, for example, that incomplete volcanic cones on a flat ocean floor may be found once but not again because of slight errors in giving their position. So, also, it may be that a slight error in the position of a ship will result when soundings are made in giving the impression that a change in the sea bottom as depicted on a chart has recently occurred. And when such a mistake is made, an earthquake is the explanation that immediately suggests itself.

POST HASTE.

Germany gets her first chuckle in a long time out of the French offer of a big credit to England—also with strings to it.

The Chili pepper in the air will make several other Latin-American dictator presidents take stock as to whether their rule is up to snuff.

We believe in that old saw about the soul of wit being found in brevity, but would have conceded it a wise crack if that Chicago judge had read Capone a sentence 30 years ago.

Don Quixote Murray Butler didn't learn anything useful for America while in Europe. He is home again and preparing to talk on tariff reductions and silver stabilization.

As the Red Cross can not undertake unemployment relief under its charter it may be necessary to have a Blue Cross next winter.

The Haitian Congress repudiates its treaty with the United States. Get American agents and Marines out quickly before they change their minds.

If the Cornwallis surrender is deleted from the Yorktown pageant for fear of offending the English, all reference to George Washington should also be carefully eliminated, since he was a British rebel.

When Gov. Murray gets the price of oil up to a dollar a barrel this week he says he will tackle the high price of bread. Wrong end, Bill. It isn't the few cents a day spent for bread at retail prices that is making the row, it's the farmer who wants better prices for wheat in wholesale bunches.

Do American automobiles pay their way? Well, one way and another in fees and taxes they contribute more than $1,000,000,000 a year, which is about 20 per cent of their valuation.

Senator McKellar says Germany probably is not any worse off than America financially. Credit is a pretty good test. Germany has been trying for months to effect a loan of $500,000,000; this country could borrow twenty times that amount in one day, any day, at half the rate of interest.

The Yorktown Sesqui Commission is seeking the right man for the role of Washington, one who will match him in character as well as looks. No one who did cherry tree lying in his early youth need apply.

The strategic position for a job is now located just below the white-collar salary-cut deadline.

The New York garment workers' strike for higher wages at this time looks suspiciously like a 'backfire started against a threatened cut.

KEEPING DOWN.

We kept up with the Joneses though the pace was rather swift,
And little joy it brought us of renown.
Now the leaner days have taught us it is wise to practice thrift,
So with the Smiths this year we're keeping down.

When the Joneses bought an auto, we stepped out and bought one, too.
When the Joneses went to Europe so did we.
But now our eyes are on the Smiths and everything they do,
So this year we're as careful as can be.

The Joneses kept us busy. It was weary work to roam
And expensive high-falutin' folks to be,
But now we have discovered if the Smiths can sit at home
And be happy and contented, so can we.

It is really quite the fashion, as you travel round about;
No one ever seems to notice hat or gown.
It was keeping up with Joneses that completely wore us out.
With the Smiths it's so much easier keeping down.

The Sponge Can't Absorb Pure Water if the Water You Provide Is Unclean

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE normal child is a mimic.

It learns by absorption, without conscious effort.

You will hear parents say: "Billy inherited that from his father." But Billy did nothing of the kind. He acquired the trait by watching his father and unconsciously mocking him.

Thus every parental criticism is in some measure a confession.

Some time ago a troubled father said to me: "I wish you would tell me what to do about my boy. He told me a fib yesterday."

What could I say? I knew the father well; and I knew that the boy, caught in mischief and assured of punishment, had adopted the tactics suggested by his father's example.

If a man habitually resorts to "white lies" to escape embarrassment and wriggle out of difficulties, and his child is witness to the success of such strategy, how in the name of common sense can he expect the child to choose a more honorable course in a similar predicament?

Teaching a child to tell the truth is a simple matter if you show it how.

A school teacher of my acquaintance says she has given up all hope of teaching her pupils to speak correct English. The little they learn in the schoolroom is erased from their memory by the speech they hear at home.

The child may use correct grammar in composition, but it will persist in saying, "Have you saw Bill?" and, "I done et dinner," if it talks that way unrebuked outside the schoolhouse.

Learning as a duty or in obedience to command isn't a natural process. The natural way to learn is to absorb by observation. And the latter method is the one by which children learn nine-tenths of the standards that make character.

The child will intentionally mimic the thing it considers admirable. But quite without intention it will copy the ways of adults in other instances, for it is traveling a new road and its only guide is the example of others.

Telling a child what it should do usually is a waste of breath. Without your viewpoint, the child can see no logic in your precepts. It doesn't remember because it isn't convinced.

But it does remember example, and follow it. It absorbs manners and standards as naturally as a sponge absorbs liquid.

Thus child training is made simple and easy. You provide the perfect example and nature does the rest.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Heflin Redivivus.
Louisville Courier-Journal.

The news that the Senate subcommittee considering the contest of former Senator Heflin, of Alabama, against his successor, Senator Bankhead, is likely to report in favor of declaring the seat vacant, thus throwing the matter into the Senate, may come as a surprise to many and as a keen disappointment to others who had felt that the gentleman had practically definitely been retired from public life.

So far, in only 10 counties out of the 67 in the State, 17,000 questionable ballots have been set aside for investigation, and if this rate is borne out in the rest of the counties, Senator Bankhead undoubtedly would be unseated.

The fact that "Tom" Heflin is personally obnoxious to many is quite aside from the question involved in this case. It is, briefly, this: Can a member of a party conscientiously rebel against, or refuse to support, a nominee of that party without incurring the danger of being ostracized, if not by regular methods, then by fraud at the ballot box?

Vare on Top.
Baltimore Sun.

The statement was ventured some days ago that, while there appeared to be blood on the moon in the political skies of Philadelphia, it was too early to jump to the conclusion that the split in the Republican organization would result, as was being freely predicted, in "the bitterest primary fight" the city had ever witnessed. Consequently the news that it is all over but the shouting is in no sense surprising.

It is Boss Vare who emerges on top with the scalps of his foes dangling at his belt. This wary old machine leader has captured the opposition, horse, foot and dragoon, and is now laying down the terms upon which the foe will be permitted to return to favor. And though hoary with age it was a shrewd trick at that which won the fight. With a majority of his ward leaders in the other camp, without a candidate who appealed to independent citizens and with an independent candidate, J. Hampton Moore, former mayor, in the offing, Vare adopted the old rule—if you can't beat 'em, join 'em!

Agricultural Politics.
Detroit News.

The old saying, a burned child fears the fire, may or may not have its application to the question, what will the political parties do with the farm relief program in their conventions next year? Surely the present administration has had a lesson that should prove a warning to all political platform-makers of the future.

At the moment, the major activities of the so-called farm leaders are the making of loud outcries against the iniquities of the Farm Board "fiasco." The implication seems to be that the policy of instituting a special agency of Government abundantly supplied with public funds to assist the farmers' cooperative marketing organizations and attempt to sustain prices of farm produce, was something foisted upon the farming population by a designing Government in Washington.

No memory beyond the normal length is required to recall the fact that every detail of the present policy was evolved among those interests that play to the farmers without party distinction; that substantially the same program was accepted by both political parties, doubtless against the better judgment of a large part of party leadership, and has resulted strictly in accordance with economic laws to which the scheme in many ways ran counter.

In the Cards.
New York Times.

In Washington "to do some chores for his constituents," Senator Moses did somewhat grudgingly another chore. "It is not in the cards," he said, "to take the nomination away from President Hoover."

The sullenness of the Old Guard or any other Republican politicians amounts to little. Factors beyond their control or his will decide.

He is sure to be renominated if he wants to be. He deserves renomination. Whatever the event, he can at least play the part of a wise and resolute man. If disappointment and defeat are in store for him, they will have their dignity. They will come from exterior and irresistible causes in comparison with which any mistakes he may have made will be as a popgun to a thunderstorm.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Street Car Companies Are Advised to Lower Their Fares to Compete With Taxi Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer has for some time watched with interest the transportation systems of this city, particularly the street car lines, which have for years cried for increased fares.

Today we are in the midst of a most interesting so-called taxi war brought on by price-cutting. We again, as usual, find the two traction companies complaining to the Public Utilities Commission about their losses. It is most pathetic the way they picture their so-called losses twice induced by good causes. It is time now for a showdown and it is up to the car companies either to give the service to the public which they are charging for or to petition the commission for permission to return to the 5-cent fare, which is commensurate with the service they now give.

In the wave of reductions of prices we find the Washington car lines continually asking for increases and crying hard times. Yet they never stop to consider the service they give the public.

New York has a 5-cent car fare and a 10-cent bus fare. Both lines give service, both systems get patronage

There are only two car lines in the city giving partial service and one is on each company's line, namely the Fourteenth street line of the Capital Traction and the F street line of the WRECO. In general, the majority of the lines on the WRECO do not give 5-cent service.

These two companies have been paying dividends to stockholders off of their profits for poor service long enough. It is now time for the Washington public to join in with the taxi companies and force them to reduce fares or give better service.

The taxi companies need to be commended for such a timely venture, as the public needs this type of stimulant. We have been asleep too long and the car lines have reaped fat profits at our loss.

HOWARD C. ALLEN.

Writer Thinks Cooperative Effort Is Essential to Keep Wheels of Industry Rolling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Individualism under present economic conditions is in its decline. Even capitalism has repudiated the principle in practice in recent years, operating through gigantic monopolies and chains.

The most striking survival of the individualist today is the American farmer. Has he met with even moderate success? Another survival is the independent banker who is gradually going under. Then there is the independent merchant. Ruin also stares him in the face. Think of the millions of unorganized individuals in the working class. Most of them are in the weak soup line.

The individualist can not compete against the power of mass money. This power is held by the few at the top. They are not individualists. They cooperate closely among themselves. They will soon possess the Nation, body and soul. But can they retain the possession of the billions of surplus wealth produced by labor and farmer and merchant the past generation? No, because every time they "economize" by reducing their pay rolls another million or so of producers stop producing and worst of all, stop buying. Billions in wealth is just so much dross without the purchasing power of the masses. Thousands of machines are already standing in virtual idleness the country over. Thousands more will soon join them.

A Glowing Tribute Is Paid to the Late Rev. Homer J. Councilor For His Long Service to Community.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with interest and approval the well-deserved tribute paid to the late Rev. Homer J. Councilor by a member of the Filipino Club of this city in The Post of July 27. Having heard and seen Mr. Councilor in action—having heard him speak on many different subjects and occasions—having been in a position to see and know what he has done to uplift and help others, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude, I can heartily indorse all the many tributes that have been paid to this noble, upright Christian gentleman. It can be truly said of Mr. Councilor that "none knew him but to love him, none named him but to praise."

Those who attended Mr. Councilor's funeral and saw the immense throng of people from all walks in life, and also the large number of floral tributes, can testify to the high respect in which he was held by all who had the pleasure to know of him and his service to the community.

TIMBER BODY URGES LIMIT IN PRODUCTION

Cut in Imports and More Small Homes Favored Also by Board.

(Associated Press.)

Limitation of production to a minimum, reduction of imports and efforts to increase building of small homes and farm buildings were recommended by the timber conservation board yesterday as a means of assisting the lumber industry.

Reporting to Secretary Lamont, the board set forth a series of recommendations along with statements of general conditions in the industry.

The board urged that withdrawals from stocks of manufacturers between July and December, 1931, should be not less than half the indicated excess stocks of 4,500,000,000 feet and, suggested further:

That during that period production be limited to the minimum "which financial and community exigencies will permit."

That consideration be given by individual manufacturers to timing reduction in production so as to inflict minimum hardship on dependent employes.

That lumber importers reduce their importations.

Consideration of Agencies.

That consideration be given by private and public agencies "to the practicability through improved, extended and better coordinated means of deferring financing and otherwise of converting potential demand for building into active demand, especially for farm, business buildings and small homes."

That consideration be given by the industry to the possibility of uniting sales facilities in different regions.

That the Conservation Board make further survey and report on current and prospective supply and demand at the end of the third quarter of 1931.

That the Census Bureau assemble information to permit accurate segregation of soft and hard woods.

The report said additional farm buildings were needed, but that no general increase in lumber uses in that direction may be predicated on present prospects of farm income.

Readjustment of Costs.

Readjustments of other elements of building costs must be made before a substantial general increase in building can be expected, it added. During the last year lumber prices were said to have dropped 24 per cent; cement, 14 per cent; steel, 8 per cent; paint, 21 per cent, and brick, 7 per cent.

Prospects were least promising in commercial and industrial building, the report continued, because of a surplus of office and store space and plant capacities, leaving residential construction as "the least saturated major building types."

In most localities there are ample residential facilities, but no "general surplus of small dwellings," it said.

"The greatest present opportunity for increased building activity lies largely in this direction," it added, "the extent of this realization being in large measure dependent upon the character, extent and reasonableness of terms available for financing."

"Until the present real estate mortgage situation shall have been improved substantial financing of real estate developments is not expected," it said. "The prospect is of further curtailment of new buildings of the types ordinarily dependent for financing on bond issues. This reflects the obviously weakened credit position of the construction industry."

Floods in China Bring Out Troops

Water Covers Area of 30 Square Miles and Is Threat to Hankow.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was informed yesterday that martial law has been ordered in the flood threatened city of Hankow, China, because of the large number of refugees from the surrounding stricken territory.

The report was from Consul General Walter A. Adams, who earlier had said the city was threatened by an almost record breaking flood level on the Yangtze River.

Wednesday night the embankment of the Hankow-Peiping Railway broke at a point 26 miles below the city, Adams said, and the water is now flooding an area of 30 square miles, including many Chinese villages, the Hankow Race Club and recreation grounds and an important foreign residential area known as the Jardine estate.

NEW TRAVEL RECORD IS SEEN FOR HURLEY

Trip to Philippines, Starting Saturday, to Climax Army Survey.

(Associated Press.)

While primarily designed for other purposes, Secretary Hurley's trip to the Philippine Islands, starting tomorrow, will complete a record-breaking inspection tour of the War Department's activities.

By the time he has finished his second year as Secretary of War in December, Hurley will have inspected personally virtually all of the Army's 185 military posts scattered throughout continental United States and its island possessions and the flood-control activities which are also carried on by the department.

Every Secretary of War does a lot of traveling, but few of Hurley's predecessors saw so many centers of Army activity as the present Secretary will have by the time he returns.

Hurley started his traveling as Assistant Secretary when he visited the Panama Canal Zone and Porto Rico. Last summer he toured the length of the Mississippi inspecting flood control works. More recently he inspected Army posts in the South and Southwest.

On his present trip he plans to stop at several of the Army posts in the Central and Western States on the way to Seattle, where he sails August 8. After inspecting the Army's activities in the Philippines and Hawaii he probably will visit more of the continental posts on his way back to the Capital.

Ptomaine Poison Hits 30 at Picnic

Two in Serious Condition, Eleven in Hospitals After Club Outing.

Reading, Pa., July 30 (A.P.).—More than 30 persons were stricken with ptomaine poisoning today while on an outing in Carsonia Park here. Eleven were in hospitals, two of them in a serious condition, and more than twenty others were able to go to their homes.

Picnickers collapsed on amusement devices, along the midway and in various sections of the park. The first-aid station at the park was overtaxed and some of the victims were hurried away in ambulances.

Source of the poisoning was believed to have been potato salad eaten at a restaurant. The manager of the place said 600 persons had been served during the day, but he did not know just how many had eaten of the salad. The outing was that of the Lancaster Automobile Club.

there has not suffered appreciably from the world-wide depression, Mr. Gibson said. Referring to the movement for independence, he said:

"There is an insistent demand for independence by the politicians. I am convinced that notwithstanding all their efforts, propaganda and dramatic demonstrations the people are not a unit for it.

"Filipins now enjoy a pretty full measure of freedom and liberty. They might not have as much with independence."

Praising the United States' government of the islands as "the greatest success in colonial administration the world has known, Mr. Gibson concluded that "every Filipino should thank God for America and yield full appreciative loyalty to the flag which has protected him."

Turning to Guam and citing the action of the Guam Congress in formally renewing its pledge of allegiance to the United States, Representative Gibson declared that "we have failed to discharge our duty to these people and to the world," urging legislation providing for citizenship and a bill of rights. "To retreat in the least degree from an attitude of whole-hearted helpfulness to the people of Guam would make a dark page in our history," Mr. Gibson said.

Consolidation in one executive department of supervision of administration of all territorial and insular possessions was recommended by Mr. Gibson, who promised that a bill providing for such consolidation will be introduced in the next session of Congress.

CALIFORNIA LEADING IN GOLD PRODUCTION

$47,247,600 Mark in 1930, While Silver Amounts to $19,538,029.

(Associated Press.)

Gold and silver valued at $66,785,629 were produced in the United States and the Philippine Islands in 1930 with gold accounting for $47,247,600.

Announcing these figures yesterday, the Bureau of the Mint said that of the total of 2,285,603 ounces of gold, Alaska produced 407,356 ounces valued at $8,420,800, while California led the way in gold production with 450,289 ounces valued at $9,308,300. South Dakota produced 406,297 ounces valued at $8,398,900.

Utah led in silver production with 14,451,266 ounces valued at $5,563,738, while Idaho produced 9,710,150 ounces valued at $3,738,408 and Montana 8,596,956 ounces valued at $3,309,832.

The 1930 gold production was $1,596,300 more than in 1929, while silver showed a decrease of 10,579,741 ounces as compared with the preceding year. The largest year's production of both metals was in 1915 when gold totaled $101,035,700 and silver 74,961,075 ounces. The 1930 production by States:

Dirigible Hangar Bids to Be Asked

Huge Structure Will Be Erected at Sunnyvale, Calif., Station.

(Associated Press.)

Preliminary notice has been given prospective bidders that the Navy will receive estimates for the construction of a huge dirigible hangar at Sunnyvale, Calif.

Specifications will be completed by the Bureau of Yards and Docks by about August 1 and until that time the closing date for receiving bids will not be set. The hangar will be the first and largest unit of the $5,000,000 Naval Airship Base at Sunnyvale.

Bids will be asked on two different jobs—erection of the hangar itself; and grading and laying foundations. The notice calls for a hangar "approximately 1,138 feet long, 310 feet wide and 198 feet high," making it second in size only to that of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation at Akron, Ohio.

The two contracts are expected to total from $1,500,000 to $1,750,000.

French Leaders to Get Virginia Hams as Gifts

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 30.—Gifts of twelve Virginia hams of a famous brand, which were cooked and prepared in Fredericksburg, will be presented to President Doumergue of France and other high government officials next month by a delegation of Virginians to the French Colonial Exposition in Paris.

The hams were purchased by C. Bascom Slemp, official American representative at the exposition.

Alleged Swindler Asks Test of Habeas Corpus

Chicago, July 30 (A.P.).—Attorneys for John ("Jake the Barber") Factor, alleged swindler of British stock investors, asked Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today for a writ of habeas corpus to test the sufficiency of the warrant and complaint on which he is held. If the writ is granted, Factor's counsel said they would seek his release on bail.

Nickel Plate Railroad Omits Both Dividends

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Directors of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (Nickel Plate) today omitted the quarterly dividends of $1.50 each on the common and preferred stocks.

Second Baltimore Siamese Twin Dies

Death Comes as Doctors Plan for Another Operation.

Baltimore, July 30 (A.P.).—Death of the second "Siamese twin" today brought an end to one of Baltimore's strangest medical cases.

Dorothy Forster, the surviving one of the conjoined pair, died at Mercy Hospital, where she and her sister Mary were born July 7, to Mrs. Albert Forster. Mary died last week.

Death came to both of the children when they were reported to be gaining strength for a second operation, planned by physicians to restore them to normalcy after their strange birth.

When born Mary and Dorothy were joined by a common intestinal tract. It was severed and the baby girls parted by one of the few such operations known to medical science.

Cuban Freed in U. S. Of Firearms Charge

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Jorge de Zaldo, 35-year-old Cuban, was freed today of charges of violating the State antifirearms act for lack of evidence. He was one of two men arrested Monday when a trunk full of medical and military supplies, believed to have been intended for Cuban revolutionists, was found in an East Side garage.

De Zaldo is the son of a prominent Cuban and was educated in American schools. He is said to be an exile from Cuba, where he is known as a polo star.

Regrets Here Davilas Will Not Return

Chilean Ambassador and Wife Were Notable in Society.

When Mme. Davila, long recognized as one of the cleverest of the Latin-American women in the Capital, departed for her home in Santiago early this month, she perhaps knew that she had seen the last of Washington, for many months at least. Her husband's resignation as Chilean Ambassador to the United States, rumored several weeks ago, has just been tendered to his government, and if Mme. Davila returns, it will be a visit of short duration, to supervise the moving of her household from the spacious embassy on Massachusetts avenue.

Thus the Capital loses one of its most interesting foreign characters, and no less regrettable is the loss of her husband, intellectual and witty, whose wealth of knowledge on a variety of subjects aroused constant admiration among those fortunate enough to make his acquaintance here. Mme. Davila departed before the ambassador, who left the country only recently, before President Carlos Ibanez was forced from office. He was advised of the change in government while en route to Santiago.

An artist of great ability, Mme. Davila combined her official duties as the wife of an ambassador with hours of work in her studio, where she executed many paintings during her residence in Washington. With a penchant for the modernistic in her interpretation, Mme. Davila applied to the interior furnishings of the embassy the striking originality which is characteristic of her paintings. Modernistic effects in drapery and furniture were introduced by her in the stately drawing rooms and dining room, where her friends, cognizant of her ability, gathered to admire the changes she made from time to time.

Like her art, Mme. Davila's costumes were cubist in design. She affected black and white, practically to the exclusion of colors, and "bias" lines. Modernism even found expression in her jewelry, which was cubistic to a degree of enviable perfection.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was the guest in whose honor Mrs. William Huntington, of Bradenton, Fla., entertained a group at luncheon on her yacht, the Maribel, anchored not far from the yacht club pier. The guests included Mrs. Huntington's hostess, Mrs. Davis B. Wills, wife of Maj. Wills; Mrs. William P. Wooten, Mrs. Charles H. LeFevre and Mrs. George Y. Worthington.

Princess Cantacuzene, who went abroad early in the month, is in Paris, where she has as her guest her sister-in-law, Princess Serge Cantacuzene, who makes her home near Paris.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Volney O. Clark have as their guests at their home in Lakewood, N. J., Mrs. Lawrence Smoot and Mrs. Rudolph Kudlich, of Chevy Chase.

Frosts Will Take Up Residence Here Soon.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Leon C. Frost will come to Washington September 1 when the former will assume his duties at the navy yard. Commander Frost has been on duty at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. They have taken an apartment at the Boulevard. Mrs. Frost was formerly Miss Katherine McNeal, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton and their son, John, jr., are spending the summer at Jamestown, R. I. Dr. and Mrs. Victor Alfaro, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, are occupying the Hamilton residence in Spring Valley.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Switzerland, Mr. Etienne Lardy, who arrived in New York early in the week from Europe, has returned to Washington and has taken possession of his apartment at Wardman Park Hotel. Mme. Lardy remained abroad and will come to Washington in the early fall. Mr. Lardy holds the position of counselor of the legation, and in the absence of the Minister, Mr. Marc Peter, he is acting as charge d'affaires.

Mr. and Mrs. David Batcheider, of Virginia, frequent Washington visitors, will be hosts during the late summer and early autumn to the former's mother, Mrs. June Batcheider, of Paris who has been occupying an apartment in New York since her arrival in this country early in June. She will return to Europe in October.

Senor Jorge Cardenas, who has been associated with the editorial staff of the Bulletin of the Pan-American Union, will leave today for New York, where he will be for a short time before sailing for South America, where he will make a tour of the Latin-American countries, including also Mexico and adjacent lands. Following his survey of the countries south of the equator, Senor Cardenas will return to New York, where he will be on the staff of one of the metropolitan newspapers.

A member of an old Colombian family, Senor Cardenas came to Washington in April to assume his duties on the Pan-American magazine. Prior to that time he had been a student at Columbia University.

American Club In Paris Host To Le Breton

Naval Attache Is Making Many Friends in New Post.

The guest of honor of the American Club in Paris the other day was Capt. David McDougal Le Breton, U. S. N., recently appointed Naval Attache at the embassy in Paris. He was the chief speaker of the occasion, an event featured by the welcome extended the club's newest member. The celebration was to have taken place earlier in the summer, but events and the rush of affairs leading up to important diplomatic conferences incident to President Hoover's debt moratorium prevented the "party."

The luncheon was held at the Restaurant Langer and was attended by practically every member, as Capt. Le Breton, it seems, has quickly and easily formed many friendships since his residence in the French capital.

With Mrs. Le Breton he went to France about June 1 to assume his duties, having been appointed attache after several years service on the U. S. S. Hannibal, sailing for the most part in the Caribbean Sea. Capt. Le Breton succeeded Capt. George W. Steele, who, with Mrs. Steele, returned to this country a short time ago and is in command of the aircraft division of the Atlantic fleet. Mrs. Steele has established headquarters at Norfolk.

With Capt. and Mrs. Le Breton in Paris is the officer's mother, Mrs. Le Breton, who returned to Paris in the early summer to greet her son and daughter-in-law after three months on the Riviera.

Maj. Gen. Henry Jervey, retired, and Mrs. Jervey have arrived at the Powhatan for an extended visit. They recently motored to Richmond from Charleston, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hume, accompanied by their son, Lawrence Benet Hume, will leave tomorrow for Rehoboth Beach, Del., where they will spend several weeks.

Col. Irvin L. Hunt, U. S. A., and Mrs. Hunt have returned from Governors Island, N. Y., and are now occupying their home in Foxall Village.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Ramsay, who have been motoring in the south of England, will go to Scotland for several weeks before proceeding to Geneva for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. Ogden L. Mills and her daughter, Miss Dorothy R. Fell, and Mrs. Philip Stephenson have arrived in Narragansett from Newport on the yacht Avalon and were joined at the Dunes Club by Mrs. Mills' father, Mr. Philip S. P. Randolph.

Anne Johnson Bride in June of G. U. Student

Wedding Secret Because of Fear of Parental Objection.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubert Johnson yesterday anounced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anne Johnson, to Dudley John Scholten, of Kalamazoo, Mich., the marriage having taken place at Ellicott City, Md., on June 10.

Friends of the couple said that the marriage was carried out secretly because of a fear of parental objection because of the bride's youth and the fact that the bridegroom had not yet completed his education.

Mr. Scholten is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Scholten, of Kalamazoo. He was a law student at Georgetown University, and during his residence in Washington he occupied the lodge on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, Rossdhu, in Braemar Forest, near Chevy Chase.

Miss Johnson, who was to have made her debut here next year, was a student at the Fermata School at Aiken, S. C., and following her graduating there she attended a school in Italy where her roommate was Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of Ethel Barrymore. She is a member of the Washington Junior League.

Mr. and Mrs. Scholten have gone by motor to Michigan, where they will spend the summer in a cottage on Lake Michigan. Mr. Scholten will complete his course in law at Georgetown before deciding on a permanent residence.

Mrs. Charles R. Herson, wife of the United States Trade Commissioner in Budapest, sailed on Wednesday on the George Washington for Paris, where she will act as one of the hostesses at the colonial and overseas exposition in the American section.

Miss Vrooman Visiting In New England.

Miss Jane Vrooman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Vrooman, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Zimmerman at their camp on Lake Kezar, Me. With her hosts and their daughter, Miss Marion Zimmerman, she will tour the New England States and Canada by motor, visiting Quebec and Montreal. Late in September Miss Vroomen and Miss Zimmerman will motor to Washington, visiting Boston, New York and Atlantic City en route home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stitt have gone to Maine for the midsummer and are now at Kennebunkport before going to Poland Springs for a part of August.

Miss Russell Will Become Naval Bride

Changes Announced for Ceremony Here Tomorrow.

Miss Fanny Russell, whose marriage to Ensign Richard Stottko Andrews, will take place tomorrow afternoon in the Church of the Pilgrims, has made a few changes in her group of bridesmaids owing to the inability of two girls to serve in the bridal party. For her maid of honor Miss Russell will have Miss Emma Bellamy Williamson, of Wilmington, N. C., whence comes two of her bridesmaids, Miss Susan Carr and Miss Mary Graham. The other two girls will be Miss Anne Holloway, of Washington, and Miss Frances Stearns, of Falls Church, Va.

Ensign Algrey, whose name was included in the first list of ushers, can not serve and Ensign C. L. Gaasterland will take his place in the group of six men, all ensigns.

Tonight the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Russell, will give a dinner at the Chevy Chase Club for the bridal party. Last night Miss Holloway entertained at dinner for the bridesmaids and yesterday Miss Stearns was hostess at a charming luncheon for the maids. She entertained at her home in Falls Church.

Ensign Andrews and his bride will leave after the wedding on a motor trip to California, stopping en route for a brief visit with the bride's cousin, Mrs. B. B. Reynolds, in Wilmington and with the parents of Ensign Andrews, Mr. Frank Ellery Andrews, forestry supervisor, and Mrs. Andrews, in Santa Fe, N. Mex. Ensign Andrews will be attached to the U. S. S. Colorado at San Pedro.

Rear Admiral Arthur J. Heffron was the guest of honor at a dinner held last evening at the Shoreham Hotel. Those present included naval officers who last year were attached to the staff of the commander in chief of the United States fleet, at which time the admiral was chief of staff.

Admiral Heffron's flagship, the U. S. S. Bushnell, arrived at the Navy Yard yesterday and will sail today for the West Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, who went abroad earlier in the summer, are in London.

Mr. George Angus Garrett has joined Col. Frank Veech, of New York, at Newport, where they will be at the Meunchinger-King for the remainder of the week.

Dr. John S. Boggess, of the United States Public Health Service, and Mrs. Boggess; Mr. John K. Caldwell, chairman of the American delegation to the International Narcotic Conference; Mr. Sidney O'Donoghue, of the American Embassy in Berlin, and Miss Frances E. Wolf, special assistant to the American Commission at

Mr. Robert McFadden has gone to Chicago, where he is staying at the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin T. Simmons and Mrs. Simmons have gone to their farm in North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Caldwell left last night for New York, from which port they will sail today for Europe. They are touring the continent on a general sightseeing trip, spending quite some time in France and Italy, returning to their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel on September 10.

Minister South Sails for Portugal.

The United States Minister to Portugal, Mr. John Glover South, sailed yesterday for Europe on the S. S. Vulcania.

Capt. Henry T. Wright, U. S. N., who is stationed at Newport News, Va., has come to Washington, accompanied by Mrs. Wright, and will be at Wardman Park Hotel during their stay here.

The Netherlands Minister to Great Britain, Mr. Rene de Marees van Swinderen, and Mme. van Swinderen, who was Miss Elizabeth Glover, of Washington, have moved to Danny Park, Hurstpierpont, Sussex, where they will reside until late in the autumn.

Dr. Warren Hunt was host to a small party at dinner last evening on the Shoreham terrace.

Here From Chicago

tending the Paris exposition, will arrive in New York today on the President Harding.

Former Senator and Mrs. Guy D. Goff, whose stay in Paris covered the early spring, are now touring the continent and will return to Paris prior to sailing for America on August 11.

Commander and Mrs. William C. Horton have returned to their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel from a two months' visit on the West Coast.

Becomes Bride of Giles Greville Healey, Yale Man.

In the presence of a small company, the marriage of Miss Jane McDill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John R. McDill, of Washington, to Mr. Giles Greville Healey, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Healey, took place Wednesday afternoon in New York at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Rex S. Clements and was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Ingels, 1 Beekman place.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, had as her attendant Miss Katrina Hincks. Mr. David Carter was best man for Mr. Healey. The engagement was announced in Washington early this month, although at that time no plans were made for the wedding. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Healey will reside in New York.

The latter was graduated from Holton-Arms School in Washington and received a degree a year ago from Vassar College. Mr. Healey, who is a grandson of the late Gen. Warren M. Healey, U. S. A., was graduated from Yale in 1925.

Maj. and Mrs. Sidney E. Brady and their daughter, Lelia, are visiting their relatives, Postmaster and Mrs. William M. Mooney, at their residence, 4407 Eighteenth street northwest. Mrs. Brady before her marriage was Miss Lelia Speer. She and her sister, Bessie Speer, now the wife of Maj. Leonard Sparks, will be remembered as talented musicians during their school days in Washington.

The Bradys are motoring to Fort Bragg, N. C., where the major will be stationed for the next two years.

Mr. John A. Manning, Wilmington, N. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Manning, of this city, is visiting his parents at their summer home in South River Park, Md. Miss Elizabeth Hines, of Wilmington, N. C., and Miss Ann Brown, of Rocky Point, N. C., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manning this week.

MADONNA LILIES.

WE are approaching the time when we must plant Madonna lilies. What could be more inspiring or more truly beautiful than a plot of these lilies and hardy larkspur?

Among all the garden lilies the lovely Madonna rules supreme, combining fragrance, stateliness and beauty. It adds a touch of chaste refinement to any garden, no matter whether it be a garden of acres or just a wee city plot. Because of their purest white color these lilies fit into any garden scheme. The best effects can be obtained by planting them throughout your border in clumps of from eight to ten or even twelve bulbs.

You may plant Madonna lilies any time from the first of August until the last of September, but I think it is wise to give them as much time as possible to become well established before frost, therefore, get them into the ground some time this month or early next month. They bloom from late June well into July and from year to year their beauty increases.

These stately lilies, unlike some of their near relations, are not one bit particular about their surroundings. They will thrive equally well in sun or shade, but prefer partial shade to be at their best. They are so easy to grow! If people only realized what little care they required we would see more of them. In Europe these lilies are to be seen in even the smallest peasant garden where they receive no attention. There they are said to thrive better than in more favored situations.

Various kinds of soil seems to suit this lily of the annunciation, but always exercise some care in planting one of these bulbs. Set it 8 inches deep, and to assure it against rotting in the ground before root action takes place give it a dressing of clean sand all around the bulb. This also prevents pests of various kinds from getting at it and allows any excessive moisture to pass away freely.

All lily bulbs will root more quickly if you place a few handfuls of peat, finely broken up, under the bulbs when planting them.

The Madonna lily requires a great deal of moisture when growing freely and any check for want of water will retard the development of the gorgeous spikes of flowers which they are so capable of producing.

These lilies once checked by reason of drought, or, in fact, by any other cause, rarely recover their health.

Bulbs of Madonna lily set out at this time will flower most profusely next June.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF today is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:10 a. m. to 11:05 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:50 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:40 a. m. to 1:20 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

July 31 is, according to astrological indications, unfavorable both for travel and social engagements. Those who are naturally moody or changeable will find themselves exceedingly unsettled. Family or business changes are inevitable. Commercial matters will have to be handled with great care.

Children born on this July 31 will be long-lived and blessed with a considerable degree of natural success. They will be determined, well-balanced, and have keen vision. They will be endowed with a strong sense of justice. Their home ties will be, at all times, dear to them.

If born on July 31, you are genial, clever, whole-souled, intellectual and discriminating. You are an independent thinker, have practical ideas, and possess the ability and energy to carry out any plans you may devise. You are capable of concentrated, earnest effort, and your tolerant viewpoint, your readiness to scrap nonessentials, and your quick perception will bring you more than ordinary success.

You have something of the artist in you, and can fully appreciate good music and good paintings. You spare criticism, but never stint praise. Apparently, you are very frank and outspoken. As a matter of fact, however, you often employ speech to disguise, and not to express, your thoughts. Only in the innermost family circles do you discard all restraint, and give free, unbridled utterance to your opinions and ideas.

Your disposition is a likable one, and your friends—loyal and steadfast—are legion. You are as far removed from scandal-mongering as the East is from the West. In your home, you are seen at your best. You are considerate and thoughtful of others, and bestow on your mate that ideal attention and unselfish service which can not fail to bring in its train a reciprocal understanding and an enduring love.

Successful people born July 31:

2—Ben Foster—Artist.

3—Anthony S. Aronsky—Musical composer.

4—John W. Garrett—Railroad president.

6—Austin Carey—Forester.

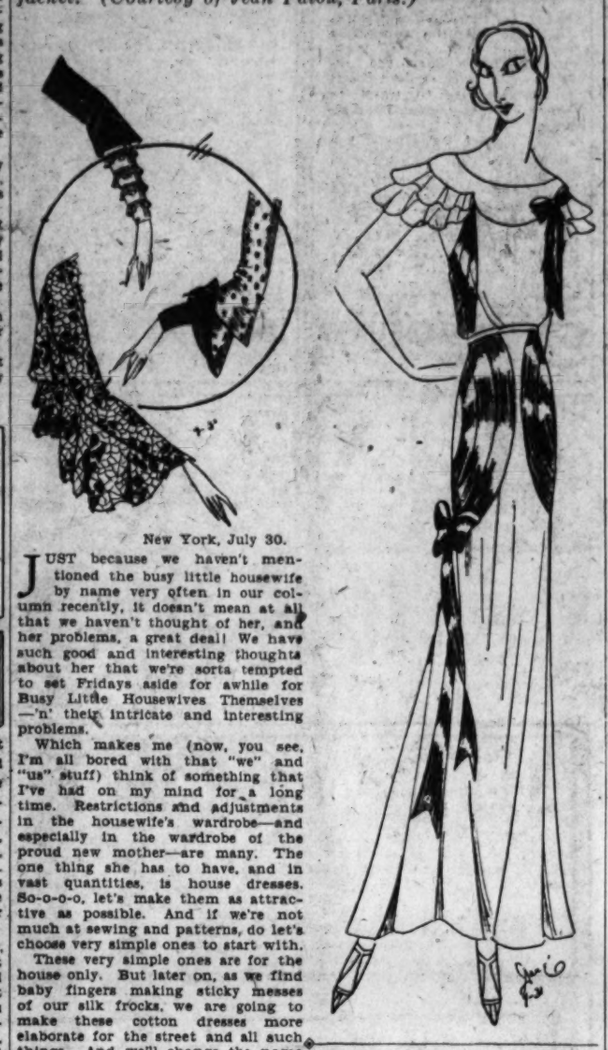
Jane Interprets the Mode

An unusual and striking black satin informal evening suit with a white satin upper part, and a semitailored black satin jacket. (Courtesy of Jean Patou, Paris.)



New York, July 30.

JUST because we haven't mentioned the busy little housewife by name very often in our column recently, it doesn't mean at all that we haven't thought of her, and her problems, a great deal! We have such good and interesting thoughts about her that we're sorta tempted to set Fridays aside for awhile for Busy Little Housewives Themselves—'n' their intricate and interesting problems.

Which makes me (now, you see, I'm all bored with that "we" and "us" stuff) think of something that I've had on my mind for a long time. Restrictions and adjustments in the housewife's wardrobe—and especially in the wardrobe of the proud new mother—are many. The one thing she has to have, and in vast quantities, is house dresses. So-o-o-o, let's make them as attractive as possible. And if we're not much at sewing and patterns, do let's choose very simple ones to start with.

These very simple ones are for the house only. But later on, as we find baby fingers making sticky messes of our silk frocks, we are going to make these cotton dresses more elaborate for the street and all such things. And we'll change the name from house dresses to cotton frocks, or morning frocks, or what have you.

And then, before we do replenish our silk dresses, of which we always must have one or two, of course, we're going to make 'em up first in cotton, and then, correcting all mistakes, in silk!

'N' we talked and talked and talked—but as I finally proved my point I didn't care how much verbosity (ahem!) had been wasted! We were discussing how an evening gown could be suitable for daylight dining and dancing—undeniably "evening" in character, of course—different, yet in good taste. And the way I won my deahs, was to sketch for them the Jean Patou evening suit which I show you today. The black satin skirt is ankle length, with restrained fullness at the bottom, the top of the suit is white satin, and the black satin jacket bases its charming novelty on its semitailored lines.

• • • •

Aren't you glad that somebody did something about daylight evening affairs? Our usual evening things do seem sadly out of place under the light of day, now don't they?

• • • •

Afternoon frocks, and morning ones, and sports dresses, not to mention suits and coats, are very important in one place—their sleeves! And I've sketched a few for you to show how important.

• • • •

Have you looked at afternoon frocks and Sunday night frocks and handmade blouses lately? If so, you can't have escaped seeing how beautiful they are, and how expensive—and the reason invariably given for this expensiveness is, "But, Madame, that collar—those cuffs—are hand made!" 'N' because the beauty and unusualness given by these hand touches have appealed so much to you, you generally pay the price! You can't find anything simpler than the directions for hand work of many kinds than I give you in this week's illustrated leaflet, or anything lovelier or more individual than the finished results—so you'd better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this leaflet, and make the beautiful things yourself at very small cost.

• • • •

MAKING A LOST CONTRACT.

A LEAD is the right to play first. A lead is also the obligation to play when you have taken the preceding trick. This right is sometimes of value; at other times it is an "old man of the sea," whom you are anxious to shake from your shoulders.

There are hands that can be made only by throwing the lead to a chosen opponent at the correct moment. Proper timing of the play is as essential as placing the lead where you want it to be. Hands of this type are usually based, when there is a trump, upon the elimination of all the cards of one or more suits from both the closed hand and the Dummy.

The hand below is an example in which, against the best defense, game can be made in no other way than by the elimination of all the hearts in the Dummy, the one outstanding trump from the West hand and the use of a card in the spade suit to throw the lead to the chosen opponent to force a desired lead at the right time.

	♠ A J ♥ 7 ♦ K 10 4 ♣ A Q 10 8 6 5 3

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.) The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Dbl. (1)	3♣ (2)	Pass
5♣ (3)	Pass	Pass (4)	Pass

1. West is not quite strong enough to make a Jump Overcall; i. e., a Jump bid in spades over South's Opening bid. He holds 3½ honor-tricks and can support either a spade or a heart declaration. Actually, East and West can make four spades in play but, of course, cannot buy the contract at that price.

2. North has strong assistance for the club bid and, of course, shows that fact at once.

3. South's hand is much stronger than was shown by his Opening bid of one club. He raises the contract to game.

4. North can not bid for a Slam. The bidding has not indicated that the combined holding in honor-tricks would justify such an attempt. West holds at least 3 honor-tricks, as shown by his Double.

West opened the spade King and this South won with the Ace. Apparently he must lose a spade and either one or two diamonds, dependent upon the location of the missing honors in the diamond suit. The Double seemed to indicate that West held the Ace and thus if South led a diamond from the North hand, the contract would probably be defeated 1 trick. There was, however, one chance for South to make his contract and that was to force West to lead the diamond suit. This could only be done in one way and that was by eliminating spades and hearts from both the Dummy and the closed hands. South immediately started on the work of elimination by leading the singleton heart to the Ace in the Dummy. Another heart was led and trumped in the closed hand and Dummy was then put in with a trump to lead the third round of hearts. This also was trumped by the Declarer and another trump placed the lead in the Dummy so that the last heart could be led. This the Declarer trumped as he had the stage now set to make his contract rather than leaving it to guess work. The Opening lead by West had been the spade King. This lead indicated that he also held the spade Queen. After trumping Dummy's last heart, the Declarer led the spade Knave and West was saddled with the lead. If he led a diamond, South must make his King. The lead of any other suit was just as disastrous as the Declarer would discard a diamond in the Dummy and thus lose only one spade and one diamond. In actual play, West led the diamond Ace and followed, as a forlorn hope, with a small diamond. South won the second round of diamonds and reaped the reward of a well-bid and well-played hand.

TODAY'S POINTER.

"The Finesse' Value of Honors."

Excepting Aces and long sequences, the bidding value of lower honors is based upon their finesse value in actual play. The precise trick value of single honors such as K x and of combined honors such as A Q or K J 10 depends on the position of missing higher honor (or honors) of the same suit. As it is prudent to assume that the missing higher honor is held by one of the opponents and not by partner the chances are then exactly half for or against a successful finesse. In bidding valuation we have accordingly half or probable trick values in distinction to the full trick estimate for Aces and King-Queens. Two such half trick values are about equivalent to an Ace.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Men Without Honor.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am heartbroken and I hope that you can help me. It is a man, of course, and I have loved him for years. He has always sworn that he loved only me. Now I know different. He denies nothing. And does nothing. He ought to marry me. But I will never try to make him. His attitude is that he is not married and therefore free to go with another if he chooses. Which is true. But what about the demands he made upon my love? Do they mean nothing? It has been over three years. When I asked him about what I had heard he said I could "take him or leave him," but there would be no arguments as to his affairs. Then he took his hat and left. Two weeks later he called me up and when he came he acted as if nothing had happened. I asked him if he was going to give the other girl up and he said he "thought he had made it plain" that the matter was none of my affair. He is well-fixed and of good family. So am I.

Now, he still comes and still demands my love as before. I can't imagine living without him. But how can I help despising him under such circumstances? He is dragging our love in the dust, degrading me. I see him three times a week and would miss him terribly, but this is worse. Can you tell me how to appeal to such a man? BLANCHE.

You do not happen to be dealing with a man. You are dealing with what some woman gave the world in place of a man. In want he would steal. If safe from detection he would murder or commit any other crime. He is devoid of innate decency—which is born in a man, or left out. It can never be added, never be conferred. It is the gift of blood. He has it not. Married to you he would treat you as he wished—and he would see to it that the treatment was sufficient to insure your leaving him—thus relieving him of the consequences of leaving you. He is the nearest we have to a "criminal type." He is the type that is capable of anything. They fill our prisons. And unfortunately—our orphanages, through the offspring they leave to their fate. Those of them who merely defraud women usually escape punishment. Women are reluctant to bring men to justice. And so they go their way.

Having found out his true character, if you continue to even see him, you are the one who is to blame. You are the weakling. And your fate will be the fate that always awaits the woman who consorts with the criminal type. I have watched them, these women. I have stood in the warden's office of a great prison and watched them standing in line—in the rain. Waiting to see these outcasts. The women who "could not give them up." The women who knew, but were too weak themselves to do anything about it. Women like you.

You can save yourself—or lose yourself. This man may never see a prison. But he is branded with the brand of Cain nevertheless. For there is no crime greater than the crime of degrading a woman through her love. And that is his crime—toward you, and toward the other woman also. It is sheer depravity for you to see him. And if you do, you are of that sisterhood who wait outside of prisons in the rain. Unhappy victims of their own weakness. With the heights of life before them and the highway stretching wide they choose the ditch as their level.

It is for you to decide.

Witness Explains Huge Russ Fortune

Green Bares How Woman, Capital Man's Kin, Made Money.

Special to The Washington Post.

Ridgway, Pa., July 30.—George J. Green was recalled to the witness stand today to reveal the financial dealings of the late Claire H. Russ, who left an estate valued at $1,113,288, which is being contested by George Eben Russ, of Washington, D. C.

Green was on the stand for eight hours, and explained how Mrs. Russ made her fortune. He pictured Mrs. Russ as a shrewd woman in stock dealings. All witnesses called today were for the petitioner, Eben Russ. They explained where Mrs. Russ secured her money.

Tomorrow the defendants in the million-dollar controversy will offer evidence to prove that they are lawful heirs to portions of the estate as stated in Mrs. Russ' will.

Fifth Bids Are Refused For Yacht Mayflower

(Associated Press.)

For the fifth time the Navy yesterday rejected bids received for the former presidential yacht, Mayflower. The only bids received on July 23, when the last attempt to sell her was made, were $7,666 by the Boston Iron & Metal Co., of Baltimore, Md., and $1,100 by the Borough Metal Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y. The lower bid was rejected outright because of failure to comply with specifications.

After consideration the Baltimore company's bid was turned down yesterday. The Mayflower cost the Government $430,000 when bought in 1898.

Stabilization Stock to Be Held for Statement of Policy.

(Associated Press.)

Carl Williams, cotton member of the Farm Board, said yesterday stabilization supplies of cotton would be withheld from markets pending preparation of a new statement of policy which is understood to be under consideration.

The period during which the board had agreed not to sell any of its holdings expires today. Williams said he doubted whether a new statement would be ready.

He said the board had loaned up to July 1 $117,000,000 to cotton cooperatives and the Stabilization Corporation which a year ago bought 1,300,000 bales from the 1929 crop surplus.

Harrison and Dickinson To Radio Tariff Debate

(Associated Press.)

The Columbia Broadcasting System announced yesterday that Senators Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, had accepted invitations to meet in a debate on the tariff.

Harrison challenged Dickinson to a debate after the Iowan asked just what rates in the Hawley-Smoot bill the Mississippian thought were too high. The announcement yesterday said the date for the radio debate tentatively had been set for August 29.

POLICE HEAD ADMITS GUILT; IS DISMISSED

Capt. William Campbell Is Given Jail Sentence, $100 Fine on Theft Charge.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Police Capt. William W. Campbell, of Alexandria, yesterday entered a plea of guilty to petit larceny in connection with the alleged theft of groceries from the market stall of Chauncey Bros. and was sentenced in police court to six months in jail, this sentence being suspended, and fined $100. His plea of guilty was entered by Attorney Robinson Moncure, who appeared before Judge William S. Snow with Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan. Capt. Campbell remained in an anteroom and did not appear in open court.

Immediately after sentence was announced in the courtroom Capt. Campbell appeared before Judge Snow, Attorneys Moncure and Bryan and newspapermen in the anteroom and sentence was formally pronounced. The only comment made by the police official was that he considered he "had been done an injustice." After the hearing City Manager Wallace Lawrence informed Capt. Campbell that the city would immediately dispense with his services.

When court convened Attorneys Moncure and Bryan appeared before Judge Snow and after a conference in low tones, in which the opposing counsel apparently informed the court of the agreement on the part of Mr. Bryan to reduce the charge from a felony to a misdemeanor, the sentence was announced. Commonwealth's Attorney Bryan stated later that he had recommended leniency on account of Campbell's large family and also because he thought he had been sufficiently punished.

The complainants, Chauncey Bros., are also understood to have recommended leniency. Under the original charge a maximum penitentiary sentence of ten years could have been imposed.

City Manager Lawrence will now, it is understood, receive applications for the vacant post of police captain, although it is not considered probable that an appointment will be made for some time to come. Under the city ordinance the appointment will be made by the city manager, who will report his action to the city council at its next meeting. The council has adjourned for its summer vacation and will not meet again until September.

An advance detail of Company I, First Infantry, Virginia National Guard, locally known as the Alexandria Light Infantry, left yesterday for the State military reservation at Virginia Beach to prepare for the coming of the company, which will entrain at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning for a fifteen-day encampment.

The advance detail was under the command of Second Lieut. John S. Arnold and included Sergt. John B. Higgs, Corpl. Paul W. Allen and Privates (first class) Gray, Bufano, Pence and Crouch. They will draw supplies and perform the necessary preliminary work before arrival of the main body of the company, under the command of Capt. W. Cameron Roberts and First Lieut. W. M. Glasgow.

According to Capt. Roberts, the local company is in excellent condition, and he expects to take at least 63 men to camp and perhaps the maximum allowable number of 66.

The creditors of the Snyder-Kane-Boothe Corporation have approved the terms of a deed of assignment recently made by the company and ordered it recorded. The sale of the insurance business of the company to Harry Hammond for $2,000 was authorized, the purchaser to assume all obligations, this price being based upon appraisals made by two local insurance men.

The meeting of the creditors was conducted under the direction of J. Randall Caton, jr., and John Barton Phillips, trustees. The trustees will liquidate the holdings of the concern, which consist of 53 pieces of real estate, although there will be no forced sale of the properties, it was announced.

Plans are being perfected for the entertainment tomorrow of 50 boys selected to be the guests of the Forty and Eight Society at the farm of Clyde S. Lanham, near Franconia, the party to leave Gadsby's Tavern at 10 o'clock in the morning. The place for the outing is on Accotink Creek, and swimming facilities will be available for the boys.

Mrs. Fannie Cecil Bain, aged 76 years, widow of William E. Bain, died Wednesday at her home, 407 Duke street. She was a native of Wheeling, W. Va., but had made her home in this city for many years. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home, and burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Rockville Will Buy Fire-Rescue Wagon

Prettyman Is Elected Head of Department After Welsh Quits.

The Rockville Volunteer Fire Department has decided to buy a rescue wagon at a cost of $6,750, and has elected William F. Prettyman president of the department, to take the place of F. Barnard Welsh, who resigned after a protest against the purchase.

Mr. Prettyman is head of the Montgomery County Bar Association. He was unanimously elected after Mr. Welsh's resignation had been accepted. The name of the retiring president was inscribed on the honor roll of the department. Mr. Welsh protested against buying the wagon on the grounds that the department could not afford it.

The department also indorsed Alfred L. Geiger, of Kensington, and president of the county firemen's association, for a post on the executive board of the State association. The place is vacant due to the election of Eugene Raney, of Kensington, as vice president of the State body.

Candidates Will be Heard.

Col. Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County, and John W. Rust, of Fairfax County, Democratic candidates for the nomination for the State Senate at the primary to be held next Tuesday, are announced as the principal speakers at the mass meeting to be held tonight under the auspices of the Cherrydale Citizens Association in the Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock. A. B. Honts will preside.

Montgomery Heads to See County Camp Units Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., July 30.—The Montgomery County Commissioners will visit the camp tomorrow to inspect the two Montgomery County units of the First Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard, the Service Company from Silver Spring and the Howitzer Company from Kensington.

The commissioners will be met by Capt. Joseph Cissel, of Silver Spring, regimental supply officer, who in civil life is counsel to the county commissioners, and Capt. Ward W. Caddington, commanding the Service Company, who in civilian life is deputy clerk to the county commissioners for the suburban district. Capt. Clarence V. Sayer, commanding the Howitzer Company, also will be on the reception committee.

The commissioners and other county officials will be shown the camp and samples of the daily routine of the soldiers. A feature of their visit will be dinner in the mess of the Service Company. The commissioners will be received by Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer of the regiment, and Lieut. Col. Amos W. Woodcock, executive officer. It is probable that a regimental parade will be held in their honor at retreat.

Other sights of interest in the locality of the camp will be included in the program, one of them being a water power mill where road materials are ground.

The officials of the First Regiment will hold their annual military dance tomorrow evening at the Buena Vista Spring Hotel. Large numbers of friends and relatives are expected.

The various units of the regiment remained on the firing ranges practically all day, shooting for records. Excellent scores were turned in, and it is believed that an unusually large number will qualify for badges.

Headquarters Company, Third Battalion, again won the best kitchen rating today, making the third day in succession. The company comes from Pocomoke City. Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, of Laurel, won second place today. Col. D. John Markey, commanding officer, and Lieut. Col. Woodcock gave an exhibition of jumping this afternoon.

Sergt. Charles S. Voigt, of the Service Company, turned in one of the best scores of the year on the rifle range today. His score card showed a total of 242 out of a possible 250.

The talking moving pictures, which are a nightly feature at the camp, are drawing as large a crowd from the neighboring towns as from the camp. Approximately 2,000 persons viewed the show last night and an equally large number was arriving tonight. The presentation of the pictures is under the supervision of Maj. F. C. Reynolds, chaplain of the regiment, now a Baltimore pastor, but formerly of Washington.

Camp Ritchie Officer Is Thrown by Runaway

Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., July 30.—Capt. F. Lester Smith, of Frederick, regimental adjutant, furnished wild west show thrills today for more than a hundred recruits who were being drilled on the parade ground, and other officers and men who were in the vicinity.

The captain was one of a party of officers being given instructions in equitation, otherwise known as horseback riding, by Lieut. Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, on the parade ground. Col. Woodcock had given the order to gallop horses and the group started forward at a brisk gallop. Capt. Smith's horse stepped in a soft spot and lurched sideways, causing the captain to "lose his stirrups." The animal then ran away. Those who watched feared that the captain would be struck by overhanging limbs, but he managed to get through to a soft turf beyond, where the horse threw him. Capt. Smith refused to let the incident shake his nerve and climbed back on the horse for further riding.

859 COWS TESTED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The report of C. F. Muddiman, official tester of the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2, for last month shows that 859 cows were tested. Of this number 95 cows were dry, 77 produced 40 or more pounds of butterfat and 28 cows met the honor roll requirements. The average production of the association was 636.4 pounds of milk and 25.44 pounds of butterfat.

A herd of pure bred Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey cows owned by Mrs. S. Ulfelder won herd honors, averaging 817.8 pounds of milk and 36.93 pounds of butterfat. The average of this herd has not been below 31 pounds of butterfat since the beginning of 1931.

The individual cow record was won by a pure bred Holstein cow belonging to Joseph A. Wheeler. The production of the cow was 1,656 pounds of milk and 62.9 pounds of butterfat. Second high honor was won by a cow owned by John S. Barbour with a production of 1,530 pounds of milk and 62.2 pounds of butterfat, while third honor was won by a cow from Sunset Hills Farm which produced 1,605 pounds of milk and 60.9 pounds of butterfat.

Owners of cows making the honor roll for the month by producing more than 50 pounds of butterfat have been listed as follows: C. T. Rice and Wheeler & Crippen, 4 each; Kenelworth Farm, 3; T. Bentley Mason, John S. Barbour and Mrs. S. Ulfelder, 2 each; A. C. Ritchie, J. C. Storm, Wallace Carper, O. T. Wright, Jenkins & Wilson, J. A. Wheeler and Kidwell Brothers, one each.

John C. Mackall, of Langley, in announcing himself as a Democratic candidate for nomination as member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Fairfax County, stated that he fully realized the duties and responsibilities connected with that office and if elected could assure the people of Fairfax County that he would diligently and intelligently study all questions for the best interests of the county and State.

Mr. Mackall declares that experience has taught him that campaign pledges made by political parties and candidates are broken either deliberately or because of the impossibility of performance. He states this fact has convinced him that it is unwise to make promises or pledges on questions which may or may not be brought before the next session of the Assembly and therefore he declined to announce any specific platform except pledging that he would do all that was beneficial and possible for the county if elected.

Mr. Mackall is a native of Fairfax County. He served as a second lieutenant in the Air Corps during the World War, leaving the University of Virginia where he was studying law. After the war he returned to the university, graduating in law in 1921, and has been engaged in law practice in Fairfax County and Washington. He is a director in the National Bank of Fairfax, the County Fair Association, the Fairfax & Alexandria Building & Loan Association and the Great Falls and Dranesville Highway Co.

Charles W. Womer, giving his address as 1707 Prince street, Alexandria, was arrested yesterday morning by Lieut. J. H. Woodson of the Southern Railway police on a charge of breaking the seals on two box cars and taking four baskets of peaches. Lieut. Woodson stated that he was assisted by Special Policemen C. E. Cannady, C. T. Gooda and J. Daniels, yesterday morning in surprising Womer and two other men taking the peaches from the cars and hiding them in bushes in a field alongside the railway between the Fruit Growers Express plant and Seminary in Fairfax County. The other men escaped.

Womer was brought to Fairfax and given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman. He pleaded guilty to a charge of housebreaking and stealing the fruit, but refused to divulge the identity of his companions. He was held for the action of the grand jury at the September term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court. He was lodged in the Fairfax Jail on failure to provide a $500 bond.

MONTGOMERY AUDIT LIST IS CHALLENGED

Chevy Chase Man Declares Recommendation Made Was Improper.

Claiming that members of the advisory committee of the Montgomery County Civic Federation improperly used the name of that body, Thomas W. Fitzgerald has written a letter to the county commissioners asking that the list of auditors approved by the committee members be disregarded. The federation and the bankers of the county were each asked to furnish a list of twelve accounting firms recommended to make an audit of the county books for the past sixteen years.

Mr. Fitzgerald, a Chevy Chase accountant, said that the federation should either call a special full meeting to make up the requested list, or choice of an auditing company should be restricted to the twelve firms recommended by the bankers.

The accountant's letter also suggested that the contract for the audit should be awarded on the basis of competitive bids. He believes, however, that the bids should be asked for on the basis of a low price per diem, as it is almost impossible to estimate the length of an audit. If the total cost is too low, he says, there might be a tendency to skimp the work, whereas there would be no such tendency on a per day basis.

Mr. Fitzgerald pointed out that a Baltimore or Washington firm could probably do the work more cheaply than another, as there would be no sustenance cost for the auditors.

Montgomery Road Widening Planned

Washington Man Is Low Bidder for Changing Two Bridges.

The State roads commission has decided to widen and improve two roads in Montgomery County, with a total length of 4 miles, it was announced yesterday by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, a member of the commission.

The road from Kensington to Wisconsin avenue, through Garrett Park, will be widened from 12 to 20 feet by the addition of macadam shoulders. This stretch is about 1½ miles long. The road from Redland to Norbeck also will be finished. This project also will be of macadam and will be about 2½ miles long. Both roads were on the schedule previously proposed, and both will be charged to the county road fund.

A Washington contractor, G. B. Mullan, was the low bidder for the widening of the two bridges 2 and 3 miles north of Bethesda on the Rockville pike. The work will be done in connection with the widening of this highway.

The Washington man quoted a price of $7,355, while the Kelly Construction Co., of Baltimore, bid $7,512. The Fredericksburg (Va.) Construction Co. estimated the cost at $8,210. The contract has not yet been awarded.

Rockville Water Bids Will Be Opened Soon

Bids for the new water and sewage system in Rockville will be opened August 12, according to the mayor and council and the special advisory committee named in the bill authorizing a $50,000 bond issue for the project.

The specifications were drawn up by Requardt & Smith, of Baltimore, and provide for an 8-inch water main along the main street, extension of the present lines, additional storage tanks, additional hydrants, a new well and a new bed at the disposal plant.

COLORED PHYSICIAN FILES IN ARLINGTON

Dr. Morton Announces He Will Be Candidate for County Board.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A sensation was sprung in political circles of Arlington County yesterday following the announcement at the courthouse that Dr. Edward T. Morton, colored, a resident of Halls Hill, Arlington County, for the last fourteen years, had filed with the county clerk as a candidate for one of the five seats on the county board which, on January 1, 1932, replaces the present three members of the board of supervisors in accordance with the new form of county government effective on that date.

This announcement of Dr. Morton makes a total of 33 candidates seeking the five seats on the board, of which five have been nominated by the Republican party. Indications are that there will be further announcements prior to September 3, which, it is understood, is the last opportunity persons will have to qualify for this office.

It was learned at the courthouse that Dr. Morton is the first colored resident of the county who has sought office since 1903. At that time there was a colored member of the county board of supervisors and for eight years prior to that date a colored man, Henry L. Holmes, held the office of county commissioner of revenue.

Charles H. Hanger, of Clarendon, was elected commander of Arlington Post No. 139, American Legion, at the meeting last night at Ballston. He succeeds George D. Ricker, who recently resigned that he might become a candidate for the county board at the coming election. Other officers are: Ray Weaver, first vice commander; W. D. Cline, second vice commander; Thomas R. Wallace, adjutant; R. Blakley James, assistant adjutant; Frank M. Sherwood, finance officer; Patrick R. Burke, sergeant-at-arms; Dr. J. Edward Payne, service officer; C. P. Heins, historian; Joseph D. McDonnell and Stewart Thompson, color bearers; William J. McCart and Dr. J. A. Boston, color guards; William H. Leigh, chaplain; Howard C. Duckson, child welfare.

Delegates to the State convention to be held at Clifton Forge, Va., August 24, 25 and 26 are C. W. Hanger, R. Blakley James, Dr. J. A. Boston, Herbert H. Porter, Edgar W. Pumphrey, Noland D. Mitchell, W. R. Gould, C. P. Heins, George D. Ricker and J. E. Hurley.

Mrs. Crandal Mackey was elected president of the woman's auxiliary of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association at the meeting held in the Clarendon Firemen's Hall last night. Other officers are Mrs. Julian Tapp, first vice president; Mrs. R. E. Hendricks, second vice president, and Mrs. Sara E. Carl, secretary-treasurer.

The Arlington County Monarch Club held its weekly meeting at Windsor Arms yesterday.

The entertainment program included a number of songs by Mrs. W. Thomas French, accompanied at the piano by Miss Eleanor Hulburt.

Speaking Wednesday night at the meeting of the Arlington Citizens Association, John W. Rust, of Fairfax, who seeks the nomination for the State Senate over Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County, stressed the point that the needs of the entire district are alike. "What one needs all need," he stated.

He said that he felt there should be a reduction in the present automobile license tax and that he favored a continued improvement of the State highways, schools and public welfare.

Two Fairfax Candidates Plan Talks Over Radio

With the political campaign in Fairfax County drawing to a close, two of the candidates for nomination in the Democratic primary election next Tuesday have announced that they are planning to make a last-minute appeal to the voters Monday evening over Radio Station WJSV, at Mount Vernon Hills.

John W. Rust, of Fairfax, seeking the Democratic nomination for the State Senate, will speak on the issues of the campaign from 7 until 7:15 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Rust is opposed for the nomination by Charles Jesse, of Arlington County.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, one of the three candidates for member of the House of Delegates from Fairfax County, will speak at 6:30 o'clock the same evening.

Deputy Clerk Appointed For Fairfax Vacancy

John M. Whalen, of Fairfax, has been appointed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, as deputy clerk to fill the vacancy created by the death of Elton Holbrook.

Mr. Whalen took the oath of office yesterday before County Clerk F. W. Richardson. He served as deputy clerk for a number of years before entering the practice of law in Fairfax. Mr. Whalen is a former member of the town council of Fairfax and has been active in local and county politics for many years.

Backensto's Death Is Held Accidental

Coroner's Jury Decides Statistician Was Not Murdered.

A coroner's jury yesterday handed down a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of Kinzer Backensto, 73-year-old War Department statistician, whose body was found floating in the Eastern Branch Wednesday.

Backensto had been reported missing for some hours by a brother-in-law, Edward Ryan, 717 Fifteenth street southeast, when his body was found. At first, because of Ryan's deprecation of suicide theories, it was thought the aged statistician might have met with foul play, but the coroner's panel could find nothing to substantiate this.

The body was removed from the District morgue to a vault in Cedar Hill Cemetery yesterday, and funeral services will be held at the grave at 2:30 this afternoon. Mr. Ryan, who is the only local relative, said last night that other relatives had not been located.

LANIGAN GETS YEAR TO LIFE IN ILLINOIS

Second of Three Marlboro Bandits Is Accounted For in Sentence.

Joseph Pierce Lanigan, indicted in Upper Marlboro, Md., for holdup of a bank there last April, yesterday was sentenced in Illinois to serve from one year to life for another bank robbery there. Edward R. Felder, one of his two companions in the Illinois crime, received the same sentence. Both men pleaded guilty.

Joe Jazorak, the third member of the Illinois gang, was arraigned later on a murder charge, being accused of shooting an unarmed deputy sheriff who pursued the trio.

Conviction of Lanigan disposes of the second of three men who are believed to have attempted to hold up the First National Bank, in Upper Marlboro. One of the men, Joseph Hayes, of Chicago, was killed by Claude Owens, assistant cashier. Lanigan, who was indicted with his wife, Geneva, will go to the Illinois State Penitentiary for an indefinite number of years.

Third member of the Maryland gang is believed to be under arrest in Ellicott City, Md., on a charge of criminal assault. He gives the name of James Wallace, among others. Another of his aliases is James Richards, and Lanigan has said that the third member of the gang was named Richards.

American Woman Wed To Son of Clemenceau

Paris, July 30 (A.P.).—Michel Clemenceau, son of the late statesman, and Mrs. F. Martin Aiken, of Los Angeles, Calif., were married here at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the town hall of the Eighth Ward.

The witnesses were Mme. Jung Clemenceau for the bridegroom and Mrs. Patricia Sande for the bride. Mrs. Mendessolle, of San Francisco, was another guest.

Man Is Arrested on Check Charge.

Frank S. Hamlin, 46 years old, of 1801 Belmont road northwest, was arrested yesterday by members of the check squad in connection with the issuance of a bad check to the Hamilton Hotel. The alleged offense occurred on April 9. He is also held as a fugitive from Charlottesville, Va.

Desert Thirst Kills Four; Two Insane Among 3 Alive

Automobile Stage Breaks Down Amid Torrid Sands; Party Hunts Water Afoot, But Mother, Child and Brothers Die by Wayside.

Nogales, Sonora, Mex., July 30 (A. P.).—Four unmarked graves in the shifting sand of the Mexican desert and the incoherent jabberings of three men today wrote another tragic chapter in desert history begun by the Argonauts of 1849.

Seven persons, including a woman and her 7-week-old daughter, left here five days ago by automobile stage for Mexicali. Three are alive, two of them insane from thirst and heat. Sands shift over the graves of the others.

The stage broke down under terrific heat 230 miles from the nearest habitation. Day by day they waited for help. Their water and food supply diminished. The desert became torrid. In desperation they set off down an ill-marked trail afoot.

The infant, Consuela Ojeda, died first in her mother's arms. Overcome by thirst, Mrs. Rufina M. Ojeda, the mother, crumpled by the trail, still clutching her daughter's body.

The men struggled on, but first Jesus Orantes, then Ramon Orantes dropped by the wayside. Juan Ojeda, father of the infant, Vicente Guiterrez and his son, Vicente, jr., trudged a mile but became exhausted and they sought shelter under meager grease woods.

Sunday Augustin Pino, Mexicali business man, found the abandoned stage. Miles farther he discovered the bodies of the woman and child. Next he found the Orantes, over whose bodies huddled Ojeda and Guiterrez, mad from their experience.

Farm Prices Fall 1 Point in Month

Decline in Food Products Is 32 Below July of Year Ago.

(Associated Press.)

The general level of farm prices declined another point from June 15 to July 15. The Agriculture Department said yesterday that the index on July 15 was 79, or 32 points below July a year ago, and the lowest recorded during the period covered by the department's charts beginning in 1910.

The grains index declined 10 points during the month because of sharp drops in wheat and lesser recessions in oats and barley. Fruits and vegetables declined 4 points because of lower apple prices, while dairy and poultry products and unclassified groups went down 1 point each.

A 6-point rise in cotton and cotton seed and a 1 point rise in the meat animal group was noted.

Use of Schools Sought For Civil Service Test

The Civil Service Commission will ask the District for the use of two schools in which to hold the file clerk examination on August 19, due to the large number that have applied for the examination, it was learned yesterday.

Applications have been received from 34,206 men and women, an all-time record. When the examination was open to women only last year, 2,210 applied; when men only were examined, 1,687 filed applications. Increase in the number of applications is believed partly due to the imminent dismissal of many temporary workers at the Census Bureau.

Cat Show to Be November 13-14.

The Washington Cat Club, Inc., announced yesterday that the dates for this year's show will be November 13 and 14. The show will be held under the rules of the American Cat Association and also of the Cat Fanciers Federation in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel.

Col. Van Voorhies' Son Hurt in Auto

Driver of Car Wanders Many Hours After Crash in Ohio.

Zanesville, Ohio, July 30 (A.P.).—After wandering over the hills of Muskingum County for eleven hours, during which posses hunted for him, Caldwell Brown, jr., 20, was found in a farmhouse at Frazeysburg, near here, shortly after noon today.

Brown disappeared shortly after his automobile went into a ditch last night, causing injuries to his five companions. When located, Brown could not give his first name, or tell whom his parents were.

The injured were Miss Virginia Arnold, Boston, Mass., whose condition was critical; Lee Wagner, 25, probable skull fracture; Dan Van Voorhies, 19, Washington, D. C., son of Col. and Mrs. Daniel Van Voorhies, Fort Eustis, Va.; Miss Grace Ann King, 19, and Miss Dorothy Falconer, Zanesville.

Dan Van Voorhies, according to his father, suffered two broken ribs in the accident. He was graduated from Western High School here two years ago and since that time has been a student, at Denison College, at Zanesville, Ohio. His condition was not thought serious.

Careless smokers were responsible for 22 per cent of Wisconsin's forest fires in 1930, the State Conservation Commission reports, against 6 per cent attributed to campers.

Typhoid Fought At Hagerstown

New Case Brings Total to 14 as Serum Is Given Free to All.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 30.—Wholesale inoculations against the spread of typhoid were in progress today at the health clinic here. The State department of health is supplying the serum and Health Officer W. Ross Cameron and a staff are inoculating hundreds free. A new case of typhoid, bringing the total to 14, was reported at Maugansville, near here today.

The wholesale inoculations were being given to persons here on two milk routes where typhoid cases developed. These people, several hundred in number, used milk from two certain dairies for a week before all milk coming into Hagerstown was ordered pasteurized by the city board of health.

The source of the typhoid at Maugansville was traced directly to a polluted well.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

"AN American Tragedy" is a great picture and Theodore Dreiser is wrong when he says it isn't."

This would seem to be the gist of the sworn opinion of sixteen novelists, editors and dramatists, who after seeing Paramount's camera version of the Dreiser masterpiece, gave affidavits to support the film company's contention that it had not misrepresented the author's work.

Thus the issue between Dreiser and the picture producing corporation is joined, because Dreiser last week sought to obtain from Justice Graham Witschief in Westchester County Supreme Court, at White Plains, N. Y., an injunction restraining Paramount from releasing the picture and from using the title of the book or the author's name in connection with it. He charged that Paramount in making the picture had misrepresented the basic ideas set forth in his two-volume novel.

In seeking the injunction Dreiser filed affidavits from a group of writers in support of his claim. Paramount retaliated with an even longer list of well-known names, including the following:

In the course of a somewhat lengthy opinion, Mr. Viereck was a little more cogent than the others when he deposed: "Certain scenes in the picture, especially in the courtroom, are more effective than in the book. The screen version is less effective where it follows the book too closely, and it is most effective where it relies upon effects indigenous to its own medium. It can not be said that the man who translated Dreiser's book into the medium of another art has betrayed the author. 'An American Tragedy' is one of the best pictures I have ever seen."

It is a source of regret that I have not at hand copies of—or at least excerpts from—the expressions of Mr. Dreiser's supporters so that it could be pointed out that what makes horse racing and what makes litigation of this sort are one and the same thing.

With a score or more of principals about to be selected for the Fox Theater All-Washington Revue, the management is now issuing a call for line and ballet girls.

Since the All-Washington Revue, which will be presented at the Fox during the week of August 21, is to be one of the outstanding features of that week's program, it is necessary that a local ballet be assembled, and that muy pronto, as we say in the pure Czechoslovakian.

Such of Washington's daughters of Terpsichore as are 18 years of age or over and wish a try-out for the ballet, will be put through their paces, if any, upon presenting themselves at the stage door of the Fox at 9:30 a. m., next Tuesday, August 4.

This line, like the other, also forms at the right!

Yesterday afternoon, by the way, the Fox was host to 30 youngsters from the Central Union Mission at the 5:30 showing of the current installment of the new Western serial, "The Vanishing Legion."

And did their eyes pop out!

Isn't it too bad that the late Jeanne Eagels, Marjorie Rambeau and Ethel Barrymore, the, so to speak, queen of the American Theater, might not have collaborated on a reminiscent volume devoted to their road tours under the possible title of "Barnstorming Daze"!

Mr. Lundy, of the Loew forces in the National Capital—the young man who cranks automobiles in gear—has just burned out my telephone wire with last-minute, home-office advice to the effect that Maurice Chevalier and Claudette Colbert in "The Smiling Lieutenant" will NOT follow Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics," at the Columbia. Instead, the Paramount release of "Tabu," produced in the South Seas by the late F. W. Murnau and Robert J. Flaherty, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "The Great Lover," starring Adolphe Menjou, have been added to the Columbia's "August Parade of Hits"—or whatever it is they call it—in the order named.

"Tabu" it was, you will recall, that first attracted attention to Reri, that exotic young creature whose real name, I believe, is Anna Chevalier, and who at present is one of the gyrating glorifications in the good Dr. Ziegfeld's latest edition of the "Follies." It is declared to be a picture of extraordinary merit.

It might interest you to know that plans are already being laid for the reopening of the Metropolitan Theater early in September with a swell line-up of screen features. In the meantime the former Crandall ace house is being massaged with a mighty battery of vacuum cleaners and smacked in the face with a lot of wet rags and paint brushes.

And that reminds me. The "revival" idea didn't do so well over at the Roxy Theater in New York, where it was believed a few former hits could be brought back for repeat runs at a handsome profit. "Sunny Side Up," with Charlie Farrell and Janet Gaynor, the medium of the unfortunate experiment, was, in Oxonian English, yanked at the end of six days to prevent its laying an egg!

It must be this cold snap that has frozen up all the "new theater" rumors. There is no other way to account for the gossip garblers' not having interpreted all that steam shovel business out in front of the District Building as the first step toward a new movie house being tossed together by the Warners or Paramount or United Artists or Sidney Lust or somebody.

And to think that liquid air boils on ice!

Rains Help Fight On Forest Fires

Flames Spring Up in More Than 20 Spots in State of Washington.

Spokane, Wash., July 30 (A.P.).—Bombarding North Idaho forests with thunderbolts, the elements gained a slight advantage in the Pacific Northwest battle against a fire today as flames sprang up in more than twenty spots.

Two fire plows attacked the onrushing flames in the Pen d'Oreille forest, and three more began to trench the Kootenai forest. This Deep Creek fire in the two Idaho and Montana forests had a perimeter of nearly 70 miles. The fire lines were held for 30 miles.

In the Beaverhead forest of Montana more lightning fires were started but rain fell generously. The Idaho fires were in the St. Joe and Coeur d'Alene national forests.

American Woman Loses Appeal in Cuban Slaying

Havana, July 30 (A.P.).—The Supreme Court today ruled inadmissible the plea for a new trial presented by Ruth Kinsey de Cabra, American woman, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in Camaguey for the slaying two years ago of her Colombian husband, Luis Cabra.

The woman is a native of Calloway, Mo.

File Suit Against Florida Man; Claim Marriage Promise Broken.

Miami, Fla., July 30 (A.P.).—Semmes W. Parish, of Miami Beach, was named defendant in two damage suits aggregating $600,000 filed in circuit court here today.

The suits were filed by the Miami law firm of Carr, Carr & Carr in the name of Omah Hill, Tulsa, Okla., seeking $400,000, and Walter A. Hill, also of Tulsa, her father, seeking $200,000.

While only the praecipe for summons was filed, H. R. Carr, of the firm filing the suit, said the actions were based on alleged promises of Mr. Parish to marry Miss Hill, his former secretary, some years ago.

Mr. Parish declined to comment.

River Controls Gas Prices.

Reno, July 30 (U.P.).—In the retail gasoline business here service station operators are not on one side of the fence or the other; they are on one side or the other of the Truckee River. North of the river gasoline was selling at 20½ cents a gallon, and on the south side 21½ cents was the prevailing price.

LEAVING AT DINNER TIME
The Convenience Train
to: CINCINNATI . LOUISVILLE . ST. LOUIS CHICAGO . INDIANAPOLIS

Now you can leave at the most convenient time of day—just after the close of business, and just before dinner time. After a delicious, well-served dinner you can spend a few pleasant hours in a luxurious Library Lounge, and then retire to a comfortable night's rest in the very latest type of Pullman. In fact, on this new train you can enjoy traveling at its best—carefree, comfortable and convenient. Try it on your next trip west. You will arrive in better mental and physical condition to start the next day's program. For shorter trips ride in the Imperial Salon Cars (nothing quite like them on any other railroad). De luxe service for the mere cost of your railroad ticket.

BEACH INVESTMENT INSURES FULL VALUE

Woodland Is Already Growing and More Homes Are Planned in 1932.

Those who give advice on investments ordinarily recommend that you buy into a growing concern. In such an opportunity the prospect of realizing full value for your money is considerably brighter than in projects which have simply been outlined and which are not yet in action.

Buying into Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development site on South River in Maryland, is a purchase in a growing community, for there is action aplenty at this resort.

Homes are scattered all over the beach property with other cottages going up with great regularity. Capital residents who have not built are making plans for homes there next summer. You, too, will want to be one of these.

And it is done so easily. The price of lots at Woodland Beach is fixed. You can pay only $93, no more, no less. Of this amount $9 plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post is enough to permit selection of your location. The rest may be paid at the rate of $3.50 per month and all the while you may be enjoying the benefits of the beach.

These benefits are many. Along the two coves of the South River on which Woodland Beach is located are 4½ miles of water front. There are extended wooded areas, appealing when the sun's rays are hottest. There are amusement devices for the children. And there is always a cool breeze from the river.

Get in on Woodland Beach now. Grow with the community and watch the value of your property rise.

Step Made to Help Ship Stockholders

Move Is Taken in Event United States Lines Are Sold.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—A program of protection for stockholders of the United States Lines, in the event the lines are sold, was being formulated today at conference of two members of the Federal Shipping Board and officials of the company.

Chairman T. V. O'Connor and Commissioner H. I. Cone represented the Shipping Board. They were to confer later today with officers of the International Mercantile Marine, which is reported to be preparing an offer to purchase the lines. Monday or Tuesday they will meet again with Kenneth D. Dawson, head of a Pacific Coast syndicate interested in buying the company.

No matter who acquires control of the United States Lines, its fleet will continue north Atlantic service, Chairman O'Connor said.

Freedom of Press Body to Be Named

Chicago Tribune Publisher to Be Chairman of Committee.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation announced today it will organize tonight a "freedom of the press committee." The honorary chairman will be Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, who led the fight against the so-called Minnesota "gag law."

The law, enacted to suppress certain sensational Twin City publications, was declared unconstitutional recently by the United States Supreme Court, which reversed a decision of the Supreme Court of Minnesota. The fight against the law attracted wide attention among publishers and editors.

The meeting tonight will be held aboard the S. S. Ile de France, at her pier.

Hotel Destroyed by Fire.

Fort Plain, N. Y., July 30 (A.P.).—Fire discovered by Mrs. Keith Miller, aviatrix, when smoke filled her room, today destroyed the Grant Hotel, largest hostelry in this village. The loss was approximately $150,000.

Man Blowing His Nose Mistaken for Robber

Des Moines, Iowa, July 30 (A. P.). Please don't blow your nose when you enter a Des Moines bank.

The request is addressed particularly to customers of the Central National Bank & Trust Co., by four carloads of policemen and detectives.

The reason given is that a clerk on the balcony saw a man enter with what apeared to be a handkerchief mask over his face.

The clerk sounded the burglar alarm.

When the authorities arrived they found a customer with a bandage over his nose.

FATHER, SON FACING ARREST IN SHOOTING

Orndorff Pair Is Accused of Firing at Woman and Boy During Argument.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 30.—Warrants were issued today for the arrest of H. Blanton Orndorff and his son, Woodrow Orndorff, on complaint of Mrs. Lafayette Henry and her son, Maynard Henry, who charged the father and son with shooting at them with intent to kill early in the day at their farm in Frederick County.

Commonwealth's Attorney T. Russell Cather ordered Magistrate A. J. Tavenner to issue the warrants after the Henrys had stated the charges to him. It was the second time in a week, they said, that their lives had been menaced by the Orndorffs. Sheriff Panett was directed to serve the warrants at once before possibly more serious trouble arose in the neighborhood.

Claimed They Were Trespassing.

Mrs. Henry told the State's attorney she and her son had driven cows to pasture on the land of a third party, and that Orndorff claimed they were trespassing on a strip of his land, which they denied. She said several days ago Blanton Orndorff cursed, abused and threatened them for alleged trespassing.

She said that when they took the cows to pasture today, they were halted by Blanton and Woodrow Orndorff and that the former, aiming a rifle at her, fired. The bullet, she said, whizzed by her head and cut leaves from a nearby tree.

Then she charged Woodrow seized the weapon from his father's hand and exclaimed, "Damn it, give me that gun and I'll shoot hell out of him," at the same time leveling the gun at Maynard Henry's head. He pulled the trigger, they said, and fired, but again the bullet missed. Mrs. Henry said she and her son ran back home and came here for protection.

Second Shooting Charge.

This is the second time since last November shooting charges have been placed against the Orndorffs. Thanksgiving Day Orndorff's wife, Mrs. Rebecca Orndorff, was shot and killed while the Orndorffs and county police struggled for possession of a shotgun during a free-for-all fight at the Orndorff home, to which officers had gone to arrest a member of the family for keeping a dog illegally.

Orndorff and three sons were tried on a murder charge, but were acquitted. Constable George Bageant and two deputies, who had been beaten up by the Orndorffs, were also indicted for killing Mrs. Orndorff, but were likewise acquitted.

U. S. Oratory Winner Improves.

Plymouth, England, July 30 (A.P.). Robert Rayburn, of Newton, Kans., young American oratorical contest winner, was reported making satisfactory progress today at the hospital here where he has been ill for several days.

French Consul Is Appointed.

Paris, July 30 (A.P.).—Meric de Bellefon, French Consul at Yokohama, today was appointed to succeed French Consul General Heilmann, of San Francisco, who asked to be retired.

Only TRUTHFUL TIRE ADVERTISING WINS!

WHEN we advertised the fact that Firestone was furnishing us complete lines of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires that not only met the price but beat the quality and construction of every grade of special brand tires sold by mail order houses and others, the mail order houses made vigorous protests to Better Business Bureaus and made demands upon newspapers not to accept Firestone or our advertising.

We cannot blame them for they did not want car owners to know that they could get, at no more cost, a better tire made by a leading manufacturer, bearing his name and guarantee plus our guarantee and our service.

When car owners awakened to this fact, they came to us, compared the sections we had cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires, and were astounded at the Extra Values we were giving.

As a result, our business and that of other Firestone Dealers throughout the country, increased so fast that it has been necessary for Firestone to run their factories twenty-four hours a day and Firestone sold more tires in April, May and June than in any like period in the history of the company.

In our advertising we do not make comparisons involving laboratory tests which you cannot verify except in a laboratory—neither do we make comparisons of construction or price based on misleading classifications such as first line tire, second line tire, or third line tire*—we do not make comparisons to confuse and mislead you as to actual values and service—we only make statements and comparisons that you can verify for yourself in our store before you purchase the tire.

Come in today and get the greater safety, extra quality and extra values found only in Firestone Tires.

"In our Bulletin No. 634 entitled 'Definitions of Terms Used in the Tire Industry' we published definitions of First Line—Second Line—Third Line—Heavy Duty and Super Heavy Duty Tires.

"Our definitions pointed out, 'Although each manufacturer's or distributor's first line tire may represent his best standard size 4 or 6 ply tire, there is not necessarily any equality of competitive first line tires as to materials, workmanship or price.' This interpretation also applies to all lines of tires.

"We therefore recommend that advertising to the consumer shall avoid the use of these terms for the purpose of comparing competitive products."

★A "Special Brand" Tire is made by a manufacturer for distributors such as Mail Order houses, oil companies and others, under a name that does not indentify the tire manufacturer to the public, usually because he builds his "best quality" tires under his own name. Firestone puts his name on every tire he makes.

Double Guarantee—Every tire manufactured by Firestone bears the name Firestone and carries Firestone's unlimited guarantee and ours. You are doubly protected.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Senusky

HORSES NAMED DOBBIN
OUR MEDIEVAL ANCESTORS BELIEVED THAT A THIN AND SHAGGY LITTLE ELF WAS VERY HELPFUL TO PEOPLE WHO WERE BUSY. THESE ELVES WERE CALLED "DOBBIES," WHICH SUGGESTED THE IDEA OF NAMING FAITHFUL HORSES "DOBBIN."
IN THE ARMS OF MORPHEUS
MORPHEUS WAS THE GREEK GOD WHO FABRICATED THE DREAMS THAT VISIT SLEEPERS, SO THIS EXPRESSION IS USED TO DESCRIBE BEING ASLEEP
SCHOOL

TOMORROW—To Pass the Buck; "Bone of Contention;" Why "Ye" Meant "The."

If you have other ideas as to HOW IT BEGAN write to Russ Murphy and Ray Senusky, care of The Washington Post. If you want to see how some other particular custom or saying began let them know and the answer will be illustrated in this series.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HALITOSIS.

DR. T. B. HARTZELL thinks we libel the teeth when we charge them with responsibility for any part of halitosis. As a practicing dentist he is in a position to know what he is talking about. If a wisp of cotton is wound around a toothpick, and this is brushed over the teeth, or if a small, clean napkin is used to rub the necks of these structures, the fabric will not acquire an odor, however offensive the breath may be.

If, however, a cloth or piece of cotton is rubbed on the back of the tongue, the fabric will have the odor of the breath. If the white or brown coat be scraped off with the back of a case knife and the debris be spread on a cloth, it will have the odor of the breath. If a person has halitosis the material from the tongue will be odoriferous; otherwise it will not be.

He supports his method of testing by reporting the results of bacterial examinations of tongue debris. He suggests that persons subject to halitosis habitually clean the tongue with cotton rolls, or small gauze napkins, and that they use some efficient mouth wash, not as a deodorant but as a cleansing disinfecting agent.

This method of treating halitosis should prove successful in a certain portion of the cases, but not in all. Tongue debris can absorb odors that it does not originate. Dr. Hartzell calls attention to some in which the odors originate in the nose, in a disease called ozena. There are others in which the odor factor is a tonsil crypt. There are still others in which the processes of digestion, absorption and elimination are at fault. Even in the cases due to odors originating elsewhere in the body, tongue debris may act like a sponge in that it picks up the odoriferous gas and then feeds it back into the air. Therefore, even in these larger groups of cases, keeping the tongue clean and somewhat near-sterile has a place. It helps. It does more than does simple washing of the mouth by a deodorant.

A satisfactory cure of the cases in these larger groups will consist in curing ozena, or deodorizing the scabs; in emptying the tonsil crypts, or in removing the tonsils; or in changing some alimentary canal processes.

Dr. Hartzell's method should cure those cases hitherto charged to teeth, and it will help somewhat with others.

NEW ONE POSSIBLE.

D. F. W. writes:

A year ago I had my gall bladder removed and also a stone taken from the common duct. I am now suffering from pains similar to those I had before operations and am informed by doctors that another stone has probably formed in the duct. Is this possible after such a short time? If so, is there any remedy other than another operation?

REPLY.

An old stone may have moved into this location from one where it caused no symptoms, or a new stone may have formed.

WHICHEVER YOU LIKE.

Mrs. J. A. S. writes: Will you state the relative values of a glass of orangeade, lemonade and grape fruitade as a morning drink?

REPLY.

If of equal strength they will be practically of equal values.

MILK AND FAT.

A. V. B. writes: Please tell me if milk will make one fat or if it gives one blood. I drink two or three glasses a day, one hot on going to bed at night. I am told I will get fat, which I do not want to do.

REPLY.

Milk is poor in those elements which make red blood. If you drink it, eat yellow of eggs, juicy meats and vegetables to help make blood. Milk is fattening if you drink much of it, particularly if it is mixed with an abundance of fattening foods.

WILL NOT HARM SCALP.

J. E. writes:

1. Would the daily use of an electric vibrator with rubber teeth harm the scalp or hair?

2. Would the rubber teeth, which become slightly warm, harm the scalp or hair?

3. Hair that I find on the comb has small, white balls on the end. Is this white ball the root?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. It is so far as there is any hair root.

FISCHER HURLS NATS TO 6-1 VICTORY OVER TRIBE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE latest indictment against the balloon ball was written yesterday at the War College links when Washington's sportwriters who play golf and others who play at it staged their annual Cleland Cup tournament, emblematic of all that is worth while in golf to the scriveners.

Competition was under the new rules, which demanded the counting of every stroke, including whiffs, and the channel hard by was littered with putters as a result of the refusal of Big Boy to drop when putts were straight and true for the hole. The total of missed putts dwarfed the national debt by a few thousand and the myth that Big Boy gives better lies on the fairway was exploded by the magnificence of the lies in the clubhouse.

The revolt against the balloon ball was not unanimous. Dick Tennyson, of The Post, who is so ignorant of the fine points of the game that he doesn't know the difference between Big Boy and the old-fashioned ball, was the winner, inscribing his name on the renowned tin mug that is adorned with so many gold nameplates that it is now worth quite a tidy sum. He does not concur in the deprecation of Big Boy and neither did this column, which was teethed on a putter, but could manage to finish only second.

Raise Course Record

Always to be depended upon to inject a novel note into the proceedings, the scriveners managed to raise the course record for the War College with a healthy gross of 131 for the eighteen holes amassed by Gino Simi, of the Times, which superseded the 130 set by George Simpson, of the Times, in the 1930 play.

Simi labored under the impression that what is worth doing at all is worth doing worst and his eighteen on the first hole gave him a splendid start after Simpson's record. He faltered on the next two holes with a pair of tens, but regained his form during the remainder of the first nine and rattled off double figures consistently until he was well within reach of Simpson's mark at the lunch hour, when the officers of the War College, headed by Gen. William D. Connor, the commandant, were hosts.

By the start of the second nine, Jack Espey, of The Post, was Simi's only serious challenger and he removed himself from consideration with a par on the tenth hole, the result of a one-hand niblick shot while hanging from his feet from the lower branches of a tree that towered over the hedge where Espey's ball reposed.

Vigilance Committee

Before play started the vigilance committee, which acted as clerk of the course, laid down stringent rules to guarantee that no untoward incidents would mar the tournament, as happened in 1928 when a certain scribe whose pitching arm was in fine fettle was seen to oink several approaches from behind various traps.

Among the ground rules yesterday was the admonition that no ball was to be considered lost by any foursome

Brown Victor Over Sarko At Laurel

2,000 See Baltimore Fighter Win Slam-Bang Battle.

Edwards Outclassed by McVey; Eschinger Defeats Reed.

BUSTER BROWN, Baltimore's lightweight hope, threw too many punches from too many angles at Mike Sarko, New York National Guard champion, last night in the feature fight at the Mid City Boxing Club's arena at Laurel, and fairly earned the unanimous decision of the judges and referee after ten rounds of torrid battling before a moderate crowd of 2,000.

With blood from Brown's left eye and Sarko's forehead sprayed over the antire proceedings from the third round onward, the pair of lightweights put on a dazzling show in which Brown's cleverness and myriad punches were stacked against the dynamite that Sarko carried in his gloves. The New Yorker did not know the meaning of the word retreat and for his pains took a merciless beating about the head and body.

But Sarko had his moments, and, although The Post's scorecard showed only one round in his favor, with seven credited to Brown, and two even, the Baltimorean showed deep respect for the punching ability of his swarthy opponent. Sarko rallied to win the fourth round and made a determined stand in the eighth and ninth only to lose the tenth by a wide margin.

Brown Gains Commanding Lead.

After absorbing a beating on the ropes as the opening round started, Brown used his superior footwork and boxing skill to keep the action in the center of the ring and amassed a commanding lead in the first three rounds of the battle, shaking Sarko with a short left to the chin in the second.

Using his four-pound weight advantage to good purpose, Brown scored heavily throughout the fight by turning Sarko completely around with a wrestling hold and socking him as the two came together again before the New Yorker could arrange a defense.

Sarko [illegible] target of Brown's bad ey[illegible] the fourth round and rough[illegible] Baltimorean in the clinc[illegible] Brown replied with ba[illegible]allops to the face that

Two California Helens Reach Finals At Seabright After Stubborn Matches

Mrs. Moody, Helen Jacobs to Clash Tomorrow.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 30 (A.P.).—California's two Helens, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of San Francisco, and Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, marched into the final round of women's singles in the forty-fourth annual Seabright invitation tennis tournament today.

Mrs. Moody was given the hardest kind of a battle by Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup before the Wilmington, Del., veteran surrendered at 6—4, 6—3. Miss Jacobs, on the other hand, won by default from the No. 1 ranking star, Mrs. L. A. Harper of Oakland, Calif., after the Berkeley girl had won the first set, 8—6, and was leading 4—1ove in the second

The two Helens will clash in the final round on Saturday when Miss Jacobs for the eighth time will seek to score her first victory over Mrs Moody. Miss Jacobs holds two legs on the Seabright Trophy while Mrs. Moody always has failed to come out on top in singles in this tournament.

The highlight of tomorrow's schedule will be the men's singles final between the national champion, John Hope Doeg, of Newark, N. J., and Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Doeg's conqueror in the Longwood Bowl tournament recently and national clay court champion. The final round of women's doubles also will be played tomorrow with the women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles marking the close of the tournament Saturday.

The remarkable brand of tennis flashed by Mrs. Jessup today served a twofold purpose. It furnished Mrs. Moody with just the sort of battle she needed to fit her for the Wightman Cup matches next week and it provided the gallery with the unusual spectacle of seeing the San Francisco star pushed to the limit.

Mrs. Jessup's win over the No. 2 ranking player, Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., yesterday, presented a hint to the crowd that the Wilmington veteran had attained her best form since she last was ranked among the first ten in 1925. And

CARDS DOWN CUBS; ADD TO LEAD

Collins Stars at Bat; Grimes Wins 13th of Season, 10-3.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 30 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals increased their lead in the National League pennant race to nine games over the second-place Giants here this afternoon by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 10-3.

A big contributing factor to Burleigh Grimes' thirteenth victory of the season was the slugging of Jimmy Collins, whose four straight hits included a double and a home run with two on in the eighth.

Bob Smith, the Cubs' starting hurler, was driven from the mound in the sixth inning, when the champions realized five runs on as many hits. Jakie May and Bud Teachout succeeded him.

Frankie Frisch, who returned to the lineup today after an absence of about two weeks because of injuries, was ejected from the game when he protested a decision by Umpire Klem on a called ball on Barton.

Cardinals Buy Elmira Club to Add to Strnig

Elmira, N. Y., July 30 (A.P.).—Elmira baseball authorities today were informed by President Farrell, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, that the St. Louis Cardinals management had taken over the Elmira franchise and would operate the club which has been in bad financial straits.

The National League Club will assume control tomorrow.

St. Louis, Mo., July 30 (A.P.).—Purchase of the Elmira (N. Y.) Baseball Team franchise gives the St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National Leagues, eight "farm" teams. The others are Rochester, N. Y., in the International League; Columbus, Ohio, in the American Association; Houston, in the Texas League; Scottdale, Pa., in the Middle Atlantic League; Greensboro, N. C., in the Piedmont League; Springfield, Mo., in the Western Association, and Danville, Ill., in the Three-I League.

Sam Breadon, president, and Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the Cardinals, were away late today, and other officials had no comment on the purchase of the Elmira franchise.

Cochrane Star With 2 Homers; 17 of 18 Wins for A's.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30 (A.P.).—Concluding their home stand today against the four Western clubs by beating the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 5, the Philadelphia Athletics hung up a record of seventeen victories in eighteen games with the West. Their only loss to a Western club was to Detroit, which managed to capture one game out of five.

"Mickey" Cochrane led the assault on Gray and Coffman, hitting two home runs and two singles. The catching star drove in six of the champions' runs. Burns and "Goose" Goslin, of the Browns, also hit the circuit, each connecting with a man on base. Hoyt won his fifth game since joining the Athletics July 4.

Pegler Finds New McGraw Who Runs to Tell Teacher Tales of Naughty Umpires

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Well, now, it is very refreshing to note how firmly old John Heydler, president of the National League, stood up for his umpires in the recent row with John McGraw, and whether the umpires were any good or positively no good, I hope and trust there will be more of that jawing back and forth. It stimulates things, this name-calling and beefing, and aside, from the row itself, there was a hilarious touch when McGraw went tearing around to Mr. Heydler to blab that this umpire had threatened to kill him.

I wonder what can have happened to Mr. McGraw that he runs and tattles to the teacher nowadays when an umpire threatens to knock his ears down for swearing at him, instead of waylaying the umpire at the umpire's gate about sundown, seconded by a successor to Cozy Dolan to assure fair play, and wiping his spikes on the umpire's countenance. Anyway, knowing a little something about Mr. McGraw's vocabulary, Mr. Heydler didn't do anything to the umpire but set McGraw down for three days, a penalty that seems to have had something to do with the loss of a couple of ball games by the Giants.

Somebody has been feeding Mr. Heydler meat, and maybe there is hope that this most conciliatory and nominal of the prominent executives in American sport will let fly now and again as Ban Johnson used to do. I am all for roaring executives in baseball for the same reason that when the customers go to the circus they like to hear the live stock yell and growl. Realizing this, the circus people carry special hands whose jobs it is to stir up the animals.

Similarly, in politics the campaign that brings out the biggest vote in the campaign in which the nominees descend to personalities. When a candidate says he hopes the campaign will be conducted on a high, impersonal plane, I always suspect he is afraid to start anything, and when both of them confine themselves to the issues, the campaign is likely to be a flop, with both men indicted by their reticence. The one campaign remark I remember best had nothing to do with the tariff, prohibition or prosperity but with the character of a candidate who was described as having the hide of a rhinoceros and the brain of a baboon.

So, now that Mr. McGraw is becoming his old petulant self again, and now that science has given the amplifier to the world, I wonder if it wouldn't be possible to hang a microphone over Mr. McGraw's place in the Giants' dugouts around the league and let the customers in on that mysterious fire of vituperation which so often has led to sudden ructions on the ball field. Myself, though I have covered many ball games, I have never been able to catch the text of any of these remarks, and when the players, who are rotten reporters and generally afraid to talk very much, report vaguely that Mac just called the um-

"Dead" Ball Has Become Reality

National League Batting Drops 27 Points.

American Is 7 Points Shy; Few Teams Show Rise.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO July 30 (A.P.).—At last the big war club swingers of the major leagues have concluded sadly that the manufacturers weren't just fooling when they came out with the "deader" base ball last spring.

The new sphere, with a slightly thicker cover and a more pronounced seam, has just about shoved the game in the majors back to the hitless wonder days

An examination of batting averages for July 29 a year ago and yesterday revealed that with only two well explained exceptions, the "deader" ball has made good in a big way, notably in the National League, where hits were almost as numerous as popcorn venders last season.

The comparison shows that to date, as compared with a year ago, the team batting average for each club in the National League has been reduced on an average of 27 points, while 256 fewer home runs—an average of 32 a club—have been hit. The difference is far less, yet noticeable, in the American League. The team batting marks in the junior circuit have dropped on an average of 7½ points per team, while the home run crop is 72 less than a year ago at this time.

Browns, Red Sox Exceptions.

St. Louis and Boston of the American League are the only exceptions, but both of those clubs have stronger clubs in the field than a year ago offensively. A year ago the Browns as a team were hitting at a .261 clip as compared with today's unofficial average of .275. Last year at this time the Red Sox were hitting .285; today they were hitting .273. The Red Sox have the same number of home runs as a year ago while the Browns have nine more.

But for the other 14 clubs a big depression is noted. Philadelphia of the National League is batting 44 points less than a year ago at this time, Brooklyn is behind 38 points while the Pirates are shy 34. The Cubs are the closest to last year's batting average in the league, being only 15 points behind last year's average. However, they had 61 home runs less than a year ago.

Detroit Makes Biggest Drop.

The biggest downward change in team batting in the American League was experienced by Detroit. A year ago today the Tigers were hitting .285; today they were hitting .264—off 21 points. The Athletics were off but 6 points while Washington was shy only 8. The Yankees' team batting average fell off 16 points while their home-run collection was fewer by 15.

The table of comparison tells the story:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

	Team batting 1930	Team batting 1931	Home runs 1930	Home runs 1931

Pirates Rout Giants, 9-0, With Early Attack

Pittsburgh, July 30 (A.P.).—The Pirates opened an early attack on Bill Morrell and Jim Chaplin today and, with the aid of Larry French's four-hit pitching, trounced the New York Giants 9 to 0. Pittsburgh scored seven runs and made nine of its 14 hits in the first two innings.

Besides losing the ball game, the Giants lost the services of Mel Ott, star right fielder. Ott attempted to make a diving catch of Paul Waner's double in the second inning and suffered a badly bruised shoulder. He may be out of the game several days.

Lloyd Waner, who led off in five innings, and George Grantham, led the home club's attack with three hits apiece.

Marberry to Hurl in Opener of Series Here Tomorrow.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ONLY two games will be played at Griffith Stadium between now and next Thursday, when the Red Sox make their appearance, for the Washington schedule for the next week or more is punctured with open dates. The Nats draw one this afternoon and then have some real tests listed here for tomorrow and Sunday, when the champion Athletics will be entertained.

Manager Walter Johnson plans to use Fred Marberry, who did not work long against the Indians Wednesday, in tomorrow's contest against the league leaders, with "Sad Sam" Jones drawing the mound assignment on the Sabbath. Then the scene shifts to Philadelphia, where a double-header will be staged Monday.

Irving Hadley, who beat the A's once this season and held them to a seven-inning scoreless tie on another occasion, will work in one of the contests in the Quaker City with Carl Fischer likely drawing the assignment in the other. Open dates are allotted the Nats on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Although the pennant race appears to be over in view of the Mackmen's lead over the Nationals of twelve full games, Manager Johnson declared yesterday that his team intends to fight it out until the finish, and the coming four-game set between the Washington and Philadelphia entries promises plenty of action. Should the Nationals clean up the series it would cut down the Quaker lead to eight games and renew interest in the race, but nothing short of a sweep will help the Washington Club enough to do it any good.

Pitcher Lloyd Brown pulled up with a slightly sore arm yesterday and is due to get a couple of days of rest.

Bluege made two fine plays in the second. After Morgan scratched a hit, the home third-sacker cut across in front of Cronin to start a nobby twin-murder and he ended the round Harder Finds Weather and Nats Too Much Before Retiring.

Myer, Kuhel, E. Rice Get 2 Hits Each; Errorless Game.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WITH Carl Fischer pitching five-hit ball in the sweltering heat, which caused the withdrawal of Mel Harder, his mound opponent, the Nationals yesterday had no trouble in taking the final of the series from the Indians, 6 to 1, making it three out of four for the series and eleven in fourteen starts against the Cleveland Club. The Yankees idled, enabling the Nats to extend their second-place margin to 3½ games, but they still trail the leading Mackmen, who won, by twelve games.

Fischer seemed to weaken at times, but he stuck to his task and was never in serious trouble after Sammy West's homer, with two on, in the fourth gave him a commanding lead.

Neither Harder nor Pete Jablonowski, his relief, was hit particularly hard, the Nationals getting but ten safeties, all told. They benefited from seven passes, however, and several of these figured in the scoring. They were unable to get more than two hits in any one inning.

Sewell Leads Tribe Attack.

Luke Sewell, with two safeties, led the Tribe attack, while Myer, with a triple and single, and Rice and Kuhel, with two one-basers each, shared home stick honors with West, whose four-bagger, a clout near the scoreboard in center, just about knocked all of the competition out of the game. Brilliant all-around fielding by Bluege was outstanding, while Manush came through with a fine running catch in the ninth which was worthy of mention.

The Nationals started off with a two-run splurge in the opener, but it was not until the fourth that they began to breathe easy, when West came through with his homer with two mates on the sacks. This made the natives 4 up, for the Indians had broken through Fischer's defense in theri half of the same frame.

Myer opened the game for the Nats with a scratch single to short. Sam Rice walked, and Manush advanced both with a sacrifice. One scored on West's long fly, with the other tallying when Kuhel singled to left.

Two Nats Left Stranded.

The Nats had two left in this round, two more in the second, when they made no use of Spencer's walk and Rice's bingle, and three in the third. In this canto they managed to pack the aisles on a walk to West, Kuhel's walk, and an intentional pass to Spencer to bring Fischer up after two were dead.

Meanwhile, the Indians had gotten but two men on the sacks previous to their scoring frame. Morgan scratched a single in the second only to become a double-play victim, while Sewell, although he opened the third with a one-shot, was still on first when this round ended.

Burnett started the trouble in the fourth, singling to right as a starter and then being wild-pitched to second. Averill scored him with a liner single to center.

It looked as though the Nats would do nothing in their half, for two were out when West scored three runs with his homer—a drive to the fence near the scoreboard in center. Rice, who had singled and stolen second, and Cronin, who had walked, were on the hassocks at the time.

Fischer Pulls Out Of Hole.

Fischer walked one in the fifth, during which frame Ferrell hit for Harder, and was nearly yanked when he issued two more passes in the sixth

EMPIRE CROWD CHEERS WORKMAN AFTER THREE VICTORIES

Whitney Star Wins Day's Honors

Miss Onine Triumphs Over Sprinter in Latonia Feature.

EMPIRE CITY RACE TRACK, N. Y., July 30 (A.P.).—The 10,000 race fans who journeyed to Empire City Race Track today gave Sonny Workman, C. V. Whitney's popular jockey, a glad hand after he rode three winners and the boy deserved all the applause he received. Workman was in great form and his riding was a great revelation to the crowd.

The boy began the day by riding Xylophone in the second event and it required the star jockey's best effort to get him home. Xylophone was a bit sluggish in the early running, but at the end Workman got him up to win by a head.

In the next event he had the mount on the mean post actor, Chicatie, and finally got him away well and Chicatie just romped the distance to win by himself.

Workman had the mount on Glenno in the fourth, but failed to connect with the winner's share, finishing third. Workman came right back with another score in the fifth by piloting Benish home many lengths in advance of the field.

Woolf's Missonine Wins at Latonia.

Latonia, July 30 (A.P.).—The colors of Herbert M. Woolf, Kansas City theater magnate, scored a popular victory here this afternoon when Miss Onine drove home in front of a mediocre band of sprinters in the fourth event on the card. The 5-year-old daughter of Westy Hogan had telegraphed her blows in her most recent effort with a smart second to Empire, but returned the substantial dividends of $11.92 for $2.

W. H. Whitehouse's Uforme cut out the early pace with Miss Onine and W. P. Axton's Monkeyshine in closest pursuit. Turning into the straightaway, Uforme was leading by two lengths and apparently was destined to an easy win, but suddenly began to tire. Miss Onine gradually overtook the pacemaker and assuming command 70 yards out held away to the end. Uforme outlasted Monkeyshine for the place. Hiever, heavily supported favorite, failed to show speed at any stage of the journey.

Miss Onine covered the 6 furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

Martis Scores in Arlington Upset.

Arlington Park, Chicago, Ill., July 30 (A.P.).—Martis, D. A. Bentham's 4-year-old colt, was the surprise winner of the Grand Rapids purse at a mile which was the feature of the day's program at Arlington, taking the lead at the start and holding it all the way despite determined challenges on the part of two others of the six good performers which the race attracted.

Ironsides, from the Sophia Lee Stable, was second, two lengths back, with the favorite, K. E. Hitt's Sunvir, third, a half-length behind Ironsides in a race run in 1:37 1-5.

Martis was away best and refused to yield the lead to Sunvir in a battle through the back stretch. In the stretch Martis began to drop back and Ironsides came on the outside with a rush to be second.

The Reichert Brothers My Dandy, an outstanding racer of other years, won his first victory of the year in the Sioux City purse at 6 furlongs when he led most of the way to hold a lead of a length at the finish over the Peconic Stable Calf Roper. Dedicate, racing for the Everglade Stable, was third, another length back.

In the better of the 2-year-old contests, Herbert M. Woolf's consistent Unencumbered was the three-length winner over John Schorr's Port Den and the Lemar Stock Farm's Mad Wind. The 6-furlong sprint was run in 1:12 1-5.

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

ARLINGTON PARK, July 30.—The program at Arlington Park today will be featured by the Deep Run Steeplechase, a test over the 2-mile route, which has attracted six bold fencers to contest the $2,000 purse. The remainder of the eight-race card has been conditioned for the lesser lights and limit fields will face the barrier in several events.

In the steepechase AUTUMN BELLS, from the J. Simpson string, has been assigned top weight of 141 pounds, but should have little trouble against this field. QUEEN'S PAL, a stablemate of the top one, has shown improvement over the obstacles and is given the place call, with PROOF POSITIVE, a steady fencer, favored for the show.

FIRST RACE—Juvenile maiden fillies will open the program in the 5-furlong dash of the first race. ALL ROWES is on the improve and his recent second to Ohla Flight places the Mrs. K. E. Hitt youngster in a position to graduate. LAZY MARY raced forwardly in her last and is the one to fear. CAMP FIRE GIRL appears best of the others for the minor award.

THIRD RACE—SUPREME SWEET has raced with better company than he meets in the 6 furlongs of the third. The Superior Stable's color bearer finished behind Knight Commander in fast time and off that effort must be accorded the honor. DICK MORRIS, an improved colt in the Knebelkamp Stable, will have ZACAWEISTA to beat for the place. The latter has not been out recently, but on his best form may prove troublesome.

FOURTH RACE—L. M. Severson's VOLTA MAID displayed exceptional speed in her debut to shatter the track record at 5 furlongs. Under the same conditions, the daughter of Volta figures to outfoot her thirteen rivals in the five furlongs of the fourth. NEWGRO has raced consistently over this strip and is the place choice, with DYAK selected to gain the show.

FIFTH RACE—ALBAZANO, recent winner, showed a high turn of speed in his last effort and although the Nevada Stock Farm's entrant is picking up four pounds, he should carry his impost to victory, in the mile of the fifth. SILVER LAKE has trained briskly and figures to force the pace. WEE DROP is dropping down here and rates the show call.

SIXTH RACE—ROYAL CHARGE appears well suited by the conditions in the mile and an eighth of the sixth number. The Mrs. Jackson racer, if he runs back to his brilliant Maryland form, should score easily. CHANCELLOR and COADY are closely matched for the place, with the former favored at the long route.

SEVENTH RACE—A limit field of the old platers in training will face the barrier in the seventh at nine furlongs. DUELIST, a natural router, has shown steady form recently and figures to gain the purse. SEARINGTON will furnish stern opposition, with STOP GAP selected for the show.

EIGHTH RACE—DUNMORE and PRINCE TOKALON should battle it out over the ten-furlong route to the closing number, which brings together fourteen platers.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

TUNGSTEN carbide, the hardest metal known to science, is worth almost $500 a pound. The substance, which will even scratch a sapphire, is used principally for the cutting of metals. Every day new uses are found for this metal, which was regarded for many years as a mere curiosity.

Bright yellow rain which stained the clothes of pedestrians fell in Belgrade March 13, 1931. Dust lifted by earthquakes, and borne by the wind, was the explanation given for the phenomenon.

"Three-fingered" Brown turned his physical handicap into an asset. Brown lost his whole index finger and the tips of two others in an Indiana mine accident. This was before he ever thought of baseball. Through with mining, he experimented in throwing a baseball, and found that, by sliding the ball off the stump of his missing finger, it gave a peculiar hop. He joined a minor league club and from then on his rise in baseball was meteoric. Batters were unable to fathom the "bouncing ball of Brown." There were many fans who held that Brown was superior to the immortal Christy Mathewson. In fact, Brown did best Matty in the division of the 21 games in which they worked against each other.

CLELAND CUP IS WON BY TENNYSON

Post Sports Writer Is Victor in Annual Golf Tourney.

HEADED by Gen. William D. Connor, the officers of the War College were host to local sport writers at a luncheon and the annual golf tournament for the coveted Cleland Cup yesterday. Dick Tennyson, of The Post sport staff, won with a net score of 70. His gross was 92.

Shirley Povich, sport editor of The post, and Roddy Thomas, of the Star, were second and third, respectively, with scores of 72 and 74. They tied for low gross with 79.

About twenty sport scribes took part in the tourney, although several failed to turn in their cards, either because of modesty or pride. A good time was had by all. The leaders:

KENNEDY INSECTS WIN.

The Kennedy Insects defeated the K. of C. insects, 5-4, in a hard-fought twelve-inning game on the Monument grounds yesterday. Each team scored twice in the first inning, but the eventual winners assumed a two-run lead with a rally in the third. The "Little Caseys" tied the game up in the eighth with a pair of tallies, only to lose in the twelfth. Bunch, winning pitcher, held the losers to three hits.

MULHEISEN DEFEATS YEOMANS IN HOT SPRINGS SEMIFINALS

District Star Eliminated In 3 Sets

California Player, at Best Form, Wins by 6-1, 6-4, 6-0.

Special to The Washington Post.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., July 30.—Dolf Mulheisen, of California, former sharer of the intercollegiate doubles championship, and Jake Hess, jr., of Austin, Tex., went into the finals of the men's singles in the Virginia State open tennis championship here today by virtue of spectacular victories over their semifinals opponents.

Mulheisen displayed a perfect brand of tennis to eliminate Edgar Yeomans, of Washington, D. C., University of North Carolina star, 6—1, 6—4, and 6—0. In the afternoon Hess defeated a fellow Texan, H. Earl Taylor, of Fort Worth, 6—1, 6—4, and 6—0.

Mulheisen and Hess will meet on Saturday for the championship. In the West Virginia State Tournament Hess won from the Californian.

Mary Bartlett Gibbs, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Delloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., will meet again in the finals of the ladies' singles tomorrow. In the finals of the West Virginia championship Mrs. Thompson defeated the Baltimore player in a thrilling three-set match. Today Miss Gibbs defeated Ellen Rates, of St. Louis and Hot Springs, 6—1 and 6—2 while Mrs. Thompson defeated Cary Mason, of Baltimore, 6—1 and 6—0.

Mulheisen Wins Impressively.

Mulheisen's straight-set victory over Yeomans in the morning contest was an impressive win. The Californian dominated the court at all stages of the match, flashing sizzling drives to the corners off forehand and backhand with equal precision. The Washington youth was unable to solve his bewildering assortment of shots and was constantly on the defensive. For a few moments in the second set Yeomans rallied, taking the net and meeting his opponent's attack. When he again fell back to base court play, however, he was overwhelmed.

Hess, playing in much the same style as the Californian, rushed through a three-set victory over Taylor. His backhand cross-court shots repeatedly found the former Texas University player flat-footed and his driving attack was perfectly calculated.

Mrs. Thompson and Taylor teamed in the mixed doubles to win from Miss Betty Edwards, of Dallas, and Henry Holden, of Rice Institute, in love sets. Margaret Anderson, of Richmond, and C. Alphonso Smith, jr., of University of Virginia, defeated Cary Mason and Alex Kieles, of Baltimore, 6—3, 4—6 and 6—1, in a well played match which was marked by beautiful net work by the girls.

Mary Barylett Gibbs and Hess defeated Miss Eloise Beebe, of Baltimore, and Quinn Connelley, of Texas, 7—5 and 6—4.

Summaries:

MEN'S SINGLES, SEMIFINALS—Hess defeated Taylor, 6—3, 6—4, 6—0; Mulheisen defeated Yeomans, 6—1, 6—4, 6—0.
LADIES' SINGLES, SEMIFINALS—Miss Gibbs defeated Miss Bates, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. Thompson defeated Miss Mason, 6—1, 6—0.
MIXED DOUBLES—Mrs. Thompson and Taylor defeated Miss Edwards and Holden, 6—0, 6—0; Margaret Anderson and Smith defeated Miss Mason and Kieles, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1; Miss Gibbs and Hess defeated Miss Beebe and Connelley, 7—5, 6—4.

until it had stopped rolling, thus saving untold 75-centers for players directly behind who had managed to get long tee shots.

A claim of foul was registered by Al Costello, of the Herald, who finished so far back in the running that he ended up on the first nine of the 1932 tournament. After playing fifteen of the eighteen holes, Costello, nominally a left-hander, discovered that he had been playing with right-handed clubs, and forthwith walked to the clubhouse with his protest. It was disallowed because of his failure to retire to a neutral corner.

Camp Meade Soldiers Defeat Marines, 11-10

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., July 30.—The Doughboys from Camp Meade defeated the Quantico Marines, 11 to 10, here today. It was a hard fought game from the outset.

J. Miller led the Army attack, getting three hits out of five trips to the plate to score two runs. He hit for a home run in the eighth inning. Reep led the hitting for the Marines, getting four out of five times up. Bill Tolan, captain of the Quantico team, hit for a home run in the fourth inning.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

Giants' Manager Is Telling Tales on Heydler's Boys.

pire one thing and another, my curiosity is only aggravated. The ball parks are so big nowadays, and the acoustics of the dugouts are such that the customers rarely are aware that a manager or athlete has begun to pass remarks until an umpire runs over, much exasperated and blushing at the neck, to thumb him out of there.

Pegler Sees Need of Television.

And possibly television should be installed also, to keep the customers familiar with the more intimate details of the drama, because some of the athletes are able to convey a fluent line of insults with gestures of the hands, as happened at the last world series in St. Louis.

I must waive my fine sense of ethics in sport for a moment to argue that bickering and the calling of more or less insulting names are a good thing, because the customers, in their hearts, enjoy it, and the customer is the final judge of what sport isn't. If he stays away, it isn't sport, and he is more likely to absent himself from a quite orderly routine of putouts, assists and errors than from a ball game which he has reason to expect to break into disorder at any time. The most memorable ball game the Giants ever played, so I have read in the memoirs of those sport writers whom we call venerable, was the one in which the Giants and the Cubs played off a tie, both sides inflamed by hate and threatening to go to it with 36-ounce bats for the love of their respective groups of stockholders.

Mr. McGraw has always borne a certain reputation, and I think one reason why the customers have been apathetic in the last few years has been that Mr. McGraw, by comparison with his past demeanor, seemed apathetic, too.

McGraw Paid by Customers.

As a quarrelsome, name-calling umpire-baiter, he established his character with the customers, and they paid him many a year's wages for being himself, but a sweet and philosophical McGraw is as far out of character as an angry and abusive Connie Mack would be.

As for Mr. Heydler, when he rears back and gives McGraw as good a bawling out as he sends and puts him out of the ball park for three days, with his club in the thick of a tough fight for a pennant, he isn't stepping out of character, because always, up to this time, he had had no positive public character of any kind. Once a year he released the statistics on the gross aggregate mileage of all the clubs and the gross consumption of baseballs. He has stepped into character for the first time in all these years, and, judging by the acounts of what he said and did, old John gave a pretty good show in his debut.

Only, fancy John McGraw running to old John Heydler to squeal on an umpire who threatened to do him great bodily harm.

Garden Signs Canzoneri For Chocolate Match

New York, July 30 (U.P.).—Tony Canzoneri, of Brooklyn, world's lightweight and junior welterweight champion, signed a contract today with Madison Square Garden to defend his titles in a 15-round bout against Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, at the Polo Grounds, September 10.

Chocolate, who recently won the world's junior lightweight crown from Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, has not signed for the fight, but he and his manager are expected to reach an agreement with the Garden soon.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 30.—Alexandria High School playground swimmers copped the nautical meet held here this morning at the municipal swimming pool. Windmill Hill placed second, while George Mason, Friends and Washington school grounds registered the same number of points to tie for third place.

Dick Spittle was the individual star of the day. He is a representative of the Alexandria High School grounds. Boys and girls who annexed first-place positions in the meet follow: Dick Spittle, John Nugent, Winkie Partlow, Joyce McLane, Roger Wilker, Virginia Greenwood. Second-place honors were won by the following: Dick Spittle, John Nugent, Winkie Partlow, Mathew Francis, John Williams, Robert Fields, Jean Stuart, Virginia Gillium, Mildred Cline. Free tickets to the swimming pool were awarded the first and second place winners.

Honorable mention for the meet were Garvey Florence, Caroline Mitchell, Harold Payne, Boots Elmore, Carol Langley, Cecil Ross, Mildred Cline, Frank Kast and Roy Nelson.

Chunky Travers, Dave Henderson and Frank Backus, life guards, acted as official judges. A large crowd witnessed the races.

A final playground swimming meet will be held within two weeks and this event will be open to boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 16 years.

The Virginia White Sox Baseball Team will mix with the Ballston A. C. in the second of the three-game series on the Arlington diamond Sunday.

In the last encounter the White Sox defeated the Ballston lads, 11-8. McGolerick will pitch for the Ballston team. The contest begins at 3 o'clock.

Alexandria City Baseball League will open on Sunday. Six teams are entered in the competition.

Frankie Fenaro Wins To Save N. B. A. Title

HELENS PLAY IN TOURNEY FINALS

Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs Eliminate Stubborn Foes.

the manner in which she broke Mrs. Moody's service and kept the Coast girl running back and forth in order to gain the needed points proved that her win over Miss Morrill was no accident.

Mrs. Jessup Gains Lead.

In both sets Mrs. Jessup was able to gain leads but was unable to hold them. In the first, she won two games before the former American titleholder could pull up and go ahead, while in the second game, Mrs. Jessup captured two of the first three games.

The deciding factors in Mrs. Moody's well-earned victory were her knowledge of when to apply the greatest pressure and her uncanny back-hand driving, plus the fact that she possessed the greater stamina. Toward the end of the struggle, Mrs. Jessup hardly could raise her racquet to serve.

Miss Jacobs, opposed to the left-handed Mrs. Harper, played a fine all-around game. Miss Jacobs ran up a lead of 3-0 in the first set, but Mrs. Harper staged a brilliant comeback to capture the next five games in a row.

With the set and perhaps the match in danger Miss Jacobs rallied to win five of the next six games for an 8-6 set.

After Miss Jacobs had won straight games in the second set, Mrs. Harper, reeling from the battle and the heat, told Umpire Julian S. Myrick that she could go on no further.

Harper and Levi Advance.

In women's doubles, Mrs. Harper and Baroness Giacomo Levi, of New York, gained the final round at the expense of Virginia Hilleary, Philadelphia, and Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., 6—2, 6—3. They will clash in the finals with Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Barbara. Mrs. Van Ryn and Miss Cruickshank, eliminated Mrs. Jessup and Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., 6—4, 6—1.

The men's doubles semifinals saw the elimination of the national champions, Doeg and George Lott, by Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, N. J., in straight sets, 7—5, 8—6. The other finalists will be John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., who conquered Vines and Keither Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., 6—3, 7—5.

Aiken Knights Defeat Army Poloists, 14-10

Rumson, N. J., July 30 (A.P.).—Smashing their way into a commanding lead in the first three chukkers, the Aiken Knights defeated the United States Army, 14 to 10, in the final round of the Herbert Memorial Cup polo tournament here today.

The Knights, receiving one goal by handicap from the Army, scored eleven goals in the first three chukkers, three each in the first and second, and five in the third. After that Army's defense held the eventual winners in check, but the damage already had been done. G. H. (Pete) Bostwick led the scorers with four goals.

JONES WINS BY K. O.

Pittsburgh, July 30 (U.P.).—Billy Jones, of Philadelphia, scored a four-round technical knockout over Roey Rosales, of Cleveland, in the main bout of a boxing bill here tonight. Jones weighted 170¼ and Rosales 172¼.

PEPPIN IN VICTORY.

Chicago, July 30 (A.P.).—Laurie Peppin, Winnipeg (Canada) middleweight, won a 10-round decision over Ray Tramblie, of Rockford, Ill., at Shrewbridge Field. Peppin weighed 159½ pounds to Tramblie's 160.

STEELE AND SPEARS IN MAT BOUT

Tough Wrestlers to Meet in Feature Here Tonight.

FRANK SPEARS, former college football star, and "Iron Man" Ray Steele will meet in the main bout on Matchmaker Joe Turner's weekly wrestling card at the Auditorium tonight. Supporting the windup affair will be Bennie Ginsberg, popular New York muscle masticator and old Doc Wilson in a semifeature bout.

"Rub His Back Kari" Pojello, a great local favorite, and John Maxos, are listed for a bout along with Son Jennings and Tiger Nelson, who will follow Tiny Roebuck and Jake Plumber on the mat.

According to the rumors seeping forth from Mr. Turner's Annapolis Hotel headquarters, the local matchmaker was loath to put Mr. Spears on the card because of his rough and ready tactics. Spears is reported to have committed assault and battery on the person of Znoski in no mean way in a recent New York bout. As all headliners come to the city practically guaranteed of going back whole and intact, Turner added a few gray hairs concerning the "iron man's" ability to keep out of the danger zone in the encounter tonight.

Steele, who has been basking in the limelight because he lasted over a good stretch of time with a bloke tagged Londos, is taking tonight's encounter with the gracefulness of the seasoned veteran that he is. Steele is well aware of the fact that young Spears will get his shoulders on the mat only of the stage collapses or some other calamity intervenes in his favor. Spears, however, is harboring the hope that he may pull a fast one on his older rival and gain greater prestige in the toe-bending business.

BROWN TROUNCES SARKO AT LAUREL

caused Sarko annoyance, if no great damage. Brown won the fifth, sixth and seventh, but was held even in the eighth and ninth, as Sarko, relying solely on his punching and forcing the fighting throughout, counted heavily in the infighting.

Brown was at his best in the tenth, eager to clinch his victory. He met the oncoming Sarko with short, straight punches, handled his tiring opponent easily in the clinches and topped off his performance by scoring heavily to the chin as the bell rang.

Jack McVey, colored New York middleweight, galloped off with the decision over Billy Edwards, dusky local fighter, in the semifinal which was staged after the main bout.

McVey Leads At Start.

McVey, upholding a national reputation, loafed through the first two rounds, allowing Edwards to pile up a lead with a jabbing left, but he attended to delinquent matters from the third round to the finish by bringing his superior punching into play. Edwards suddenly learned to respect McVey's fists when a right brought him up sharply in the third round and had McVey chosen to double up his fists instead of slapping with his open glove he might have inflicted serious damage to the local fighter. Edwards' features took on a positive fear in the final rounds and he was reluctant to try conclusions with his smaller adversary.

The main preliminary which featured two Baltimore Italian lightweights, Joe Bruno and Joe Farrin, provided the laughs, with Bruno earning the unanimous decision. Farrin threw his punches like an autogiro's propeller and it was Referee Short who was the happiest when the bout was over. He displayed fine footwork to escape from the milling unscathed. Bruno stepped inside of Farrin's swings and punched out his victory.

Eschinger Punches To Victory.

Billy Eschinger, youthful Washington lightweight, who likes to fight, leaped into the fray from the outset to punch out a decisive victory over Jimmy Reed, of Baltimore, in five rounds. Eschinger had Reed in distress toward the finish and stamped himself one of the best preliminary boys fighting on local cards.

Reed's brother, Buck, was the victor in the second bout on the card, beating Whitey Sailor, Washington welterweight, in five rounds easily. Eddie Sharon, Hagerstown middleweight, won a four-round decision over Al Moore, Quantico Marine.

It was announced that Jackie Kid Berg, junior welterweight champion, would meet the winner of the main event in the headliner of next week's show.

Norwegian Sets Mark In International Meet

Oslo, Norway, July 30 (A.P.).—Karl Warner, of Yale, forced the Nowegian, Johanneson, to a new Norwegian record of 49 seconds flat for the 400-meter run in an international track and field meet here tonight. Warner, who finished second, was timed in 49 7-10 seconds.

Sten Petterson, great Swedish hurdler, beat Art Devoe, of Yale, in the 110-meter hurdles in 14 9-10 seconds, Devoe being timed in 15 seconds flat.

Albrechten, of Oslo, won the shot put with a toss of 49 feet 2 61-64 inches, but Joe Crowley, of Yale, captured the discus throw with a heave of 151 feet 8 33-64 inches. Yates, of Yale, and Art Watkins, of Harvard, finished one-two in the 100 meters in 10 8-10 seconds, and the American relay team won the 400 meters in 44 1-10 seconds.

John Doeg's Brother Wins Jr. Net Tourney

Syracuse, N. Y., July 30 (A.P.).—William H. Doeg, of California, won the New York junior tennis championship today by defeating Ray Daggett, of Syracuse, defending champion, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2. The brother of John Hope Doeg, national amateur tennis champion, swept through the tournament without losing a set.

After his singles victory, Doeg and his partner, Gerald Phipps, of Denver, won the doubles title in a wearing five-set struggle with Egbert Miles, of New Haven, Conn., junior champion, and Marvin Freudenheim, of Mount Vernon. The score of this match was 2—6, 6—2, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3.

MASTRO GAINS DECISION.

Detroit, July 30 (A.P.).—Earl Mastro, of Chicago, won a decision over Vidal Gregorio, of Spain, in a ten-round bout at Navin Field tonight.

Capital City League Drops Plan for Baltimore Series

Governing Sandlot Baseball Body Here Refuses Padding; Eligibility Rules in Two Cities Differ; Unlimited May Meet.

AN INVITATION to compete in a series of intercity games, extended by officials of the Baltimore Amateur Baseball League, has been rejected by the Capital City League, due to the inability of representatives of the two bodies to agree on eligibility rules to govern the series.

William B. Carter, director of the Monumental City series, visited The Post last night and discussed the series with the secretary of the Capital City League, and the two concluded that it would be inadvisable to attempt to arrange a series this year.

The chief difference in the two leagues is that the Baltimore teams are classed according to the average ages of the teams. Thus, a 16-year-old team may have two players on the roster 18 years old. In the Capital City League each played is required to meet the age rulings. There are only three classes in Baltimore—unlimited, 16-year-old and 13-year-old. The Capital City League sponsors five.

Padding teams for the play-off would be permitted by Baltimore authorities to place the local teams on equal footing with their rivals, but this plan was vetoed by the local organization on the ground that it would tend to break up clubs that have been playing together all season.

There is a possibility that the unlimited champions of the two cities may arrange a titular series, but it will not be under the auspices of the Capital City League. Should the winner of the title consent to such a series a meeting will be held early in September, with the games being played in the latter part of that month or early in October.

DIAMOND DUST FROM THE SANDLOTS

FRANK CINOTTI, manager of the St. Joseph's team, and Bill Fiester, pilot of French's A. C., have arranged a three-game series, the first of which will be played Sunday at 3 p. m. at Berwyn. Cinotti and Fiester also plan to stage a game at Griffith Stadium in the latter part of August for the benefit of St. Anne's Infant Asylum.

St. Joseph's is arranging its schedule for an intensive campaign to be waged during the remainder of the season, and Cinotti plans to list as many out-of-town teams as possible along with the leading local nines. Games have already been booked with Bryantown, Lynchburg and a Richmond team. The "Saints" would like to hear from any team having an open date on its schedule.

In preparation for Sunday's Capital City League game with the Acme Printers, the Franc Jewelers will drill tomorrow at 3 p. m. on diamond No. 4 of the Monument Grounds. Manager Farrell requests all players to be present.

District senior and unlimited teams are challenged by the Lindbergh A. C. of Mount Rainier, for a game on the latter's diamond Sunday. Business Manager Haskins is receiving all challenges at Hyattsbille 221 after 6:30 p. m.

The Schwartz Jewelers, champions of Section B, junior class of The Post's Capital City League, are without a game for Sunday and anxious to meet any strong team in their class. The Jewelers have no field. Teams interested should call Columbia 4259 after 6 p. m.

"Snitz" Nau's Olmsted Grill Seniors, champions of Section A, senior class of The Post's Capital City League, hope to extend their winning streak by victories over the Congress Heights A. C. Saturday and the Chevy Chase Grays Sunday. The Grillmen will play both games on their opponents' fields.

The Washington A. C. has scheduled a drill for today at 5 p. m. on the Fairlawn diamond. Manager Bill Jenkins is desirous of having all members of the team report on time.

Led by Sorrell and Beck, the Hawk Peewees won an easy 10-2 decision over the Emerson Peewees on the Monument grounds yesterday.

The Sterling A. C. is seeking games for Saturday and Sunday with strong unlimited clubs. Local or out-of-town teams interested are requested to call Business Manager "Sparky" O'Brien at Metropolitan 3317.

The members of the Congress Heights A. C. will make merry tonight at a watermelon party to be given at the home of Norman Murphy. The team will drill, however, at 6 p. m. on the home diamond at Eleventh and Alabama avenue southeast, in preparation for Saturday's tussle with the Olmsted Grill nine and Sunday's engagement with the fast Isherwood A. C. Both games will be on the home diamond at 3 p. m. All members of the team are urged to report promptly for today's drill, and all members of the club are invited to the feast tonight.

"Connie" Wyche's Majestic Radio tossers will cross bats with "Smiling Bill" McCrea's Auth's A. C. tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the North Ellipse. Sunday the Majestics will journey to Middleburg, Va., for a double-header with the home club. All members of the team are requested to meet at 932 H street northwest, preparatory to departing. The diminutive strategist who guides the destiny of the Majestics plans to use Duvall and Bean in the opener against the Virginians with Lindsey and Winters working in the nightcap.

Joe Lare is attempting to arrange games for Saturday and Sunday for his Capitol Heights A. C. Joe can be reached at Potomac 4152.

All of the Georgetown Athletic Club's games in the Capital City League over the week-end have been postponed out of respect for Manager "Buck" Trundle, whose father died Wednesday. The games will be played at a later date.

The Kensington A. C. will play a double-header on its home diamond Sunday, meeting the Potomac A. C. in the first game at 1:30 p. m. and the Palisades A. C. in the second at 3:30 p. m.

Tony Burroto's Ciro Villagers are without a game for Sunday and would like to meet some team having a diamond. Tony can be reached at Metropolitan 8790 after 7 p. m.

30,000 See De Glane Win Over Sonnenberg

Boston, July 30 (A.P.).—Henri de Glane, 218, French-Canadian claimant of the heavyweight wrestling title, won the first and third falls from Gus Sonnenberg, 205, of Boston, at Braves Field tonight. Gus squared the match by winning the second fall with a flying tackle in 10 minutes 30 seconds.

De Glane took the first by intercepting a butt in 20 minutes 20 seconds, and gained the decisive flop with a flying tackle in 19 minutes 40 seconds. Thirty thousand spectators witnessed the match.

Sonnenberg was the aggressor during the early grappling and was far out in front when De Glane spoiled a series of flying tackles with a terrific uppercut which crashed him to the mat. Sonnenberg was still groggy when Henri pounced on him to register the fall.

The former football player launched his only effective butt after weakening his rival with punishing armlocks and head scissors. Sonnenberg's downfall came after they grappled evenly for 18 minutes in their third session. De Glane was able to remain upright after taking seven consecutive butts and reserved enough stamina to give Sonnenberg the same dose when that tiring grappler presented the needed opening.

Joe Wright Retains His Sculling Crown

St. Catherines, Ont., July 30 (U.P.). Joe Wright, of Canada, successfully defended his singles sculling championship today as the annual Canadian Royal Henley Regatta began.

Wright defeated a crack field which included Bill Miller, of Philadelphia; Ken Myers, of Philadelphia, and Jack Quest, of Canada, to retain the laurels he won last year. Miller finished a poor third, a few feet behind his clubmate, Gilmore.

The Don Rowing Club, of Toronto, took the first day honors with three first places and two thirds. The next best showings were turned in by the Argonaut Rowing Club, of Toronto, and the Detroit (Mich.) Rowing Club.

Perkins Will Remain Amateur, He Declares

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—If Thomas Philip Perkins, the former British amateur golf champion, has any thought of turning "businessman" golfer, like George Von Elm, he hasn't as yet revealed it.

Perkins, commenting today on published reports that he intended to forsake the amateur ranks for the profits of the links, declared he had neither discussed nor considered such a move.

Since he came to the United States two years ago to establish business connections in New York, Perkins has become recognized as one of the best amateur players in this country. Recently he won the New York State amateur. He was the leading amateur in the national open, at Toledo, and qualified this week for the national amateur, to be played at Chicago, starting August 31.

JIMMY DUNDEE BEATEN.

WOMEN PLAY SEMIFINALS TODAY

Martinez-Ryan and Tabler-Walker in Matches.

SEMIFINAL matches involving four seeded players will feature today's program in the Women's District Tennis Tournament being conducted on the courts of the Columbia Country Club. Mrs. Martinez opposes Mary Ryan, and Clara Tabler furnishes the opposition for Frances Walker, both matches being scheduled for 4 p. m.

Mrs. Martinez and Miss Walker are slight favorites to reach the final round, although Miss Tabler is regarded as the dark horse of the tournament. All of these players survived their preliminary matches with comparative ease, and close observers look to this trio to furnish the two finalists. Miss Ryan has played well in her quest for the crown abdicated by Miss Krucoff, but she does not appear to be the equal of the others.

Miss Krucoff To Play.

Miss Krucoff, by the way, has returned to the courts, not in defense of her singles crown, but seeking the doubles title with Miss Tabler. There is a strong possibility that the champion and her partner may obtain the crown.

Yesterday's play was featured by the advance of Mrs. Martinez and Frances Walker to the finals in the doubles competition by virtue of their triumph over the Misses Miller and Morris.

DOUBLES—(Quarter finals). Krucoff and Tabler defeated Butler and Ricca, 6—1, 6—1; Martinez and Walker defeated Ford and Thompson, 6—0, 7—5; Kinzsburty and Raver defaulted to Ryan and Philpitt; Joyce and Caldwell defaulted to Miller and Morris.

Semifinals—Martinez and Walker defeated Miller and Morris, 6—3, 6—1.

TODAY'S FAIRINGS.
MIXED DOUBLES.
FIRST ROUND—5 p. m., Ford and Galliher vs. Thompson and Willis; A. Tabler and Buchanan vs. Ebberson and Allmitt.
SINGLES.
Semifinals—4 p. m., Mrs. Martinez vs. Mary Ryan; Clara Tabler vs. Frances Walker.
DOUBLES.
Semifinals—5 p. m., Ryan and Philpitt vs. Krucoff and Tabler.

Semifinals—3 p. m., Elizabeth Kohner vs. Mary Jarrell; Goldie Crist vs. Miss Birt.

MARBERRY FACES MACKS TOMORROW

by robbing Kamm of a hit by a great one-hand stop and peg.

West's fly, with the bases full in the first, sent Averill back almost to the flag pole. It scored Myers and enabled Sam Rice to canter to third after the catch.

Cronin went to short left for Seeds' near-Texas leaguer to end the alien third.

Montague raced over behind second to make a nice stop and throw of Bluege's hot grasser to rob the home third-sacker of a hit and the Nats of a run in the native third.

When Cronin walked in the fourth, it was the sixth pass issued by Harder at that stage of the proceedings.

West broke some speed records in rounding the bases on his homer in the fourth. The play was close at the plate but he managed to slide under Sewell.

Ferrell pinch-hit for Harder in the fifth and was Fischer's third strike-out victim of the game.

Cronin strolled in the sixth for the third time of the day. His other time up, he had fanned.

After Sewell singled in the seventh, being the sixth Indian lead-off man to get base-life, Montague dropped a Texas Leaguer in short right. Thinking Rice would make the catch, Sewell played safe and was a force-play victim at second when the outfielder took the ball on the first bounce and got it to second ahead of him.

Bluege ended the alien eighth with a sensational play. He knocked down Kamm's mile-a-minute hopper and made the killing at first with a ride peg. Two Indians were on the sacks at the time.

Manush's first chance of the game was a hit-robbing grab of Sewell's long looper opening the ninth.

Navy, Treasury Netmen In Play-Off for Title

Treasury and Navy will inaugurate a series of five matches to determine the championship of the Departmental Tennis League today on the Edgemore courts with Charest and Purinton (T.) meeting Commander Gill and Lieut. McVey (N.) and Clark and Phillips (T.) opposing Lieut. Packer and Mehl (N.) on the Navy Yard courts.

Tuesday the remaining three matches will be played on the Monument courts. The players who will perform in the final matches have not been definitely selected as yet. All of the matches will be doubles. The two teams were deadlocked for the title at the end of the regular schedule with twenty victories and nine losses.

CAPABLANCA WINNER.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 30 (A.P.). The ten-game chess match between Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba and Dr. Max Euwe of this city ended today. The final contest resulted in a draw—the eighth of the series. The other two games were won by Capablanca. Dr. Euwe failed to win one.

Lawrence Wins Junior Race In Crystal Pool's Feature

TED LAWRENCE, 15-year-old aquatic star, propelled his way to victory in the 60-yard free style race for boys under 16 years of age in the junior swim meet held in Crystal Pool, Glen Echo Park last night. Lawrence negotiated the distance in 36 seconds flat. Bob Hogan finished second and John Barnett third.

The other event on the program, a 240-yard relay race, resulted in a victory for the Municipal Swimming Pool team, composed of Gilbert Bates, William Hickey, Warren Taylor and John Garnett. The quartet required 2.34 2-5 to cover the course. This race was also limited to boys under 16 years of age. The Rosedale Playground team finished second to the winners, with Georgetown Playground third.

By his victory Lawrence won the Howard B. Breese cup and the Muny team received the Paul McGahan trophy emblematic of its victory in the relay.

Following the races, Florence Skadding, Betty Turner and Onalene Lawrence, of the Washington Swimming Club, gave an exhibition of fancy diving. They were followed by Roger Leviton, Vincent Gomez, James Hissey, J. Emory Wilson, Bob Knight, John Broaddus and James Smith, members of the Potomac Boat Club, who demonstrated Red Cross methods of life-saving.

STOCK PRICES GAIN IN SLOW RECOVERY

Principal Shares Return Net Advances; Margin Trading Cut to Minimum.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Settling down to think things over, the stock market today decided that much of the immediately impending bad news was either out of the way or discounted, and prices rose slowly after some further weakness at the outset.

With margin trading so far reduced that the market is sometimes said to be as near a cash basis as it can be, professionals found overnight selling, based on yesterday's decline, decidedly limited and reduced their short commitments. The Bethlehem Steel meeting attracted considerable attention and the watchful waiting policy that usually precedes an important news event was followed. Sales shrank to 1,356,620 shares.

Principal shares generally returned small net advances. U. S. Steel, after sagging to within a fraction of the year's low, finished 1¾ higher. Bethlehem was nervous, but eventually steadied. Amerncan Can, Anaconda, American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, General Electric United Corporation, Montgomery Ward and Radio were up one-half to 1 point.

Chrysler Rises Two Points.

Chrysler came forward with a maximum rise of more than 2 points, apparently on the strength of pool operations. Nickel Plate, anticipating the dividend omissions, broke 10, but cut its loss to 3. American Woolen preferred was strong. J. I. Case was sold on the theory that a downward revision of the $6 rate is on the way.

The Bethlehem dividend cut was not a surprise, but the second quarter earnings of $1.45 a share on the preferred stock, or 30 cents less than the quarterly dividend cut thereon, was rather better than had been expected, as was evident from the fact that on the San Francisco Curb the stock rallied above the closing price here when the news reached the Coast. Bethlehem had effected sharp economies in recent months, although the basic wage scale has been maintained.

For the second successive week the Bank of England increased its discount rate, this time to 4½ per cent. Since the rise a week ago the bank had lost nearly £17,000,000 in gold, mostly to Paris, and reserve ratio had fallen to 32.4 per cent.

Reason for Increase.

The obvious reason for another boost was to attract foreign short-term money and also foreign gold with which to build up the depleted reserves. Rather than accept a French credit the British bankers apparently decided to apply measures of self-help, the course that was recommended for Germany.

Sterling exchange was strong against the dollar, rising to 4.86¼, up ⅛ of a cent. Short-term money rates in London now stand 3 per cent above open market charges here, a situation which will naturally attract funds and may well lead to gold exports from New York as well as from Paris.

The sag of ¼ to ⅝ net in wheat reflected forecasts of rain in Canada and large Argentine exports. July corn's big spurt was at the expense of the shorts; other months were off ¼ to ¾. Cotton closed unchanged to 3 points higher.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 30 (A.P.).—Cotton was feverish today but sentiment was more divided and, after an early dip which sent the October and May positions to new low levels for the season, prices hardened.

The December position declined 9 points early to 8.71, rallied to 8.93 and closed at 8.82, a net advance of 2 points, while the general market closed steady at unchanged to 3 points net higher. The opening was steady 6 to 10 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables than had been expected and on continued favorable weather and crop advices, as well as a rather unfavorable interpretation of the European financial situation as shown by the further advance in the Bank of England rate.

There was no apparent change in the character of the news which on the whole was still considered favorable for the best interest of the growing crop. In fact, the first private crop estimates for the end of the month were considered highly satisfactory, the conditions shown ranging from 70.6 per cent to 71.5 per cent and two authorities estimated the prospective yield at 13,325,000 bales and 13,981,000. Comparatively little rainfall was reported in the cotton belt States but after some fairly active early selling the market displayed strong resistance to bearish factors and at one time prices were up about $1 per bale from the low of the morning.

Evidences of a firm technical position seemed to be the principal buying incentive although the opinion was expressed that on account of the usual uncertainties relative to the probable showing by the bureau report on August 8 that sheets will likely want to cover before the figures are published on Saturday of next week. Advances seemed to attract considerable selling through commission houses and from the South but on the whole the market showed more stability and the volume of trading was smaller.

Liverpool cabled that the market there had been influenced by hedging, general liquidation and the increased bank rate and said that the cloth and yarn sales were below production.

Exports today, 35,231, making 6,928,775 so far this season; port receipts, 26,004; U. S. port stocks, 2,791,585.

AMERICAN ICE NET DROPS TO $771,252

Profits Provide for Dividend on Preferred and 91 Cents on Common.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

American Ice Co. and subsidiaries here and elsewhere report for the three months ended June 30 net profit of $771,252 after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, which is equivalent, after deducting the quarterly dividend on 6 per cent preferred stock, to 91 cents a share on 600,000 no-par common stock.

This compares with a net profit for the second quarter of 1930 of $1,037,228, equal to $1.35 a share on the common stock, after deduction of the preferred dividend.

For the first six months of this year the company's net, after all charges, was $819,338, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 62 cents on the common. This compares with net profit in the first six months of 1930 of $1,106,528, equal to $1.09 a share on the common stock, after deducting preferred dividends.

Interim Figures Issued.

The company is now issuing interim figures which show net earnings after all charges. Previous to this year, interim figures showed net after interest only. In order to make accurate comparison, all figures given above are the net after all charges.

Average size of loans on city residential property funded by Investors Syndicate, with local offices, during June again showed a substantial decrease over the preceding month, but the number of loans and total fundings increased, according to a report issued by E. E. Crabb, vice president of the company.

Average of loans for the month was $4,088.80, compared with $4,415.81 in May, the report showed. This is the second consecutive month in which average loan size has shown a marked decrease. Loans funded in June numbered 147 and were made in 15 cities, compared with 126 loans in 13 cities during May. Total fundings for the month were $601,083.20, against $556,392.10 in May.

Average Loans Higher.

The average of loans for the first six months of the year was $4,335.56, compared with $4,040.00 in the similar period last year. In the year ended June 30, loans averaged $4,385.05, against $4,413.60 in the year ended May 31.

Total loans funded from January 1 to June 30 were $3,537,821.50, compared with $3,456,159.65 in the first six months of 1930. The number of loans funded in the first half of 1931 was 816. In the 12 months ended June 30 loans funded numbered 1,686 and amounted to $7,393,300.54.

Comfortable temperatures for the small home during both summer and winter months are provided by a new air-conditioning system now being placed on the market by the General Iron Works Co., Cincinnati, and Frigidaire Corporation, Dayton.

Unit Called Hot-Kold.

The unit is known as the Hot-Kold and is an automatic gas-fired system on the forced air type with Frigidaire air-cooling equipment installed in the circulating air ducts. A fan with a capacity for circulating 60 cubic feet of air a minute continually changes the air in the home, replacing warm air with cool in the summer and vice versa during the cold months.

The combination Hot-Kold system is designed for homes of eight rooms or less. The cooling unit can be used to cool all rooms of the home, or the refrigerated and dehumidified air can be directed to one or two rooms at a time. Lower temperatures and a greater reduction in humidity are obtained by confining the cooling to one or two rooms, Frigidaire engineers say. This is accomplished by the installation of return air ducts in the rooms to be cooled.

Representative of the General Iron Works Co. throughout the United States will market and install the new heating and cooling plant, and the cooling equipment will be supplied by Frigidaire distributing organizations, it was announced.

Spelling Traps Suspect.

Idaho Falls, Idaho, July 30 (U.P.).—Failure to spell his alleged name correctly led to the arrest of Owen Lindsey, alias Jesse Rains, on a forgery charge. Lindsey was arrested as a suspect and when he could not spell his alias he promptly confessed.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Paris doesn't mean to drop her beloved prints. They are too fascinating and so smartly appropriate for all-day occasions.

Isn't today's model snappy?

It has many slimming features which makes it equally suited to the matron as well as the miss.

The interesting draped bodice is completed by a tiny vest. Then it has a very modish skirt with curved seaming that reduces hip bulk.

Style No. 388 comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ⅜ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Crepe satin would be stunning in this model, which promises to be very popular for fall.

HACKMAN'S SLAYER LINKED BY WEAPON TO BALKED HOLDUP

Ballistics Test Shows That Same Gun Was Used in Each Case.

FINGERPRINTS CLEW IS FOUND IN TAXICAB

Three Still Held for Investigation as Detectives Hunt for Killer.

A definite link beetween the murder of Mannie Solomon, 29-year-old taxicab driver, and the thwarted hold-up of a grocery store at 1356 South Capitol street, was made last night when Lieut. John H. Fowler reported that the shots fired in each case had come from the same gun.

The conneection between the two cases is based on ballistics examinations of a .45 caliber automatic shell found in Solomon's automobile and a shell of similar caliber found in the store of Isadore Koblem, proprietor of the grocery store, who was fired upon by colored hold-up men when he shouted for help.

Upon Lieut. Fowler's report, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke based his belief that the taxicab driver was killed while resisting a hold-up. Solomon's shirt was torn, apparently in a struggle, and the interior of his taxicab indicated that a fight had taken place.

Fingerprints On Window.

Homicide squad detectives, led by Capt. Edward J. Kelly and Detective Sergt. John F. Flaherty, scoured the Southwest section last night for suspects in the case. Fingerprints found on a broken segment of one of the taxicab's windows, constitute another clew to the identity of the killers.

Because of their special knowledge of the Southwest section, Detective Sergts. Robert E. Barrett and Howard E. Ogle have been assigned to work with the homicide squad in the search for the murderers.

The fingerprints found on the glass were photographed by the Bureau of Identification. The prints are of two fingers. Before any identification can be made it will be necessary to arrest the murderers, since records at headquarters are filed according to hands and not by single prints of fingers.

Tailor Held Up for $14

Detectives also believe that the murderers of Solomon are the same who were outwitted yesterday afternoon in their attempted hold up of Sam Wittenberg, proprietor of the Northeast Tailors, 342 Eighth street northeast.

Two colored men entered the shop and after drawing a gun, ordered him to a back room. Wittenberg handed them $14 from his pocket and told them that was all he had. He said that he did not give them $50 which was in his wallet.

A coroner's jury was sworn in yesterday over the body of Solomon, but an inquest was deferred pending further development of the case by the police. The body of the hacker was turned over to his family for burial.

Two colored women and a colored man have been arrested on investigation charges so far, but questioning of them by the detectives has elicited no information tending to shed light on the mystery. Two of them, John Barber, 26, and his wife, Bessie, 27, both of 712 Ninth street southwest, were arrested a few hours after Solomon was found with a gaping .45-caliber bullet wound in his neck. The third person arrested, Mary Virginia Gray, 32, 1230 Four-and-a-half street southwest, was arrested later yesterday morning.

Several Lines of Inquiry.

The theory that the shooting may have been a reprisal measure because of Solomon's testimony against two enlisted men at Fort Humphreys at a recent military trial, was being run down.

Solomon and another taxicab driver were in an altercation near Fort Humphreys some time ago, and charges filed by Solomon at the time resulted in the soldiers being tried and sentenced to four and a half months in the guardhouse at the nearby Army post. Authorities at the post said the two soldiers in question, however, were incarcerated in the penal quarters there Wednesday night.

That Solomon was shot by two men who were seen to run from the vicinity of the killing a few moments after the report was heard was the most tangible line of investigation being followed. William D. Henderson, jr., 18, 425 O street southwest, told of seeing the pair fleeing from the scene where Solomon dashed into a tree at the intersection of Union street and O street southwest and where the cabman was found, slumped and bleeding, a few moments later.

Henderson's description of the two men is being used as a basis for a search being conducted for them. The youth said one of them seemed to be fumbling with his hip pocket as he ran, as if to replace a weapon.

Employe Accused of $66 Theft.

Accused of having taken $66 from the cash register of H. Buff, restaurateur at 435 Ninth street northwest, after the latter had given him a job, John Pora was arrested last night and charged with larceny after trust. Police said that they found only $22 on his person. The suspect said he is 31 and lives at 917 D street northwest.

Dog, Prized More Than Car, Is Also Recovered; 3 Held

RUDY.

Rudy, whose quizzical countenance you see in the next column, is one airedale, whose value is placed by his mistress above that of her expensive coupe. Rudy first, the coupe second, is the appraisal of Mrs. Greville Trench.

Mrs. Trench, wealthy California society matron, was shopping in New York several days ago when three men, police say, hopped into her car, which was parked outside, and drove away. Rudy had been left inside on guard, so he went along, too.

Thieves, dog and coupe came to Washington, but Rudy lost his seat at a gasoline station here, where he was sold to R. D. Harrison, of Lyon Park, Va., for $1.92.

In the meantime, news of the theft had reached local police and intensive investigation by Detectives Hugh Robey and Henry M. Jett, of the auto squad, resulted in the arrest of three men and the recovery of Rudy.

Gerald Poole Wellman, 25, and Edward John Mochini, 29, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Frank Burton, of California, were charged with being fugitives from justice and are being held for action of New York police.

When the highly prized quadruped was traced to Mr. Harrison and he was notified that Rudy was "hot"—a "hot dog," in underworld parlance, meaning a stolen dog—he expressed keen disappointment.

Told by long distance telephone that her coupe had been recovered, Mrs. Trench expressed appreciation of the detectives' efforts, but added that she was immeasurably more concerned over her pet's welfare than the motor car.

Need for U. S. Clerks in Fall Finds Large Surplus of Men and Women.

Uncle Sam will employ 500 new file clerks for various Government departments this fall and 34,206 men and women have applied to the Civil Service Commission to take examinations for the positions, it was revealed yesterday.

The number of applicants exceeds by many thousands any previous figure. Last year the examination was limited to women and only 2,210 applied. In 1929 the examination was confined to men and a mere 1,687 applied.

July 15 was the last day on which applications were received. Tabulation of the applicants was not completed until yesterday. The examinations will begin on August 15. The Civil Service Commission is planning to ask the District for the use of two schools in which to hold some of the examinations, as it can handle only a small percentage of the prospective Government workers.

The commission will now begin the work of deciding how many of the applicants will be eligible to take the examination. The eligible men and women will be notified and receive cards admitting them to the examination, it was announced.

District Supreme Court On One-Justice Basis

Effective today, Justice Joseph W. Cox will take over all branches of the District Supreme Court until August 16, and the court will continue on a one-judge basis until the start of the fall term, October 6.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts will follow Justice Cox August 17 as the single judge in charge. Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, returning from his vacation, will follow Justice Letts, and from September 19 to the opening of the fall term Justice Jesse C. Adkins will serve. There have been two justices presiding throughout July.

Consumption of Water Here Below Last Year's

Despite the prolonged heat wave this summer, the District's water consumption has fallen considerably short of that of last year, according to J. E. Curtis, superintendent of the filtration plant. The average daily pumpage has been 96,000,000 gallons a day.

The maximum daily pumpage, however, has been 4,000,000 gallons short of the maximum last summer. Last Tuesday the peak was reached when 106,000,000 gallons of water went through the plant.

Freight Cars Wrecked Near Silver Spring

Six cars of a long Baltimore & Ohio freight train piled up last night near Silver Spring, Md., after a bearing on one of the cars burned out. No one was injured, according to reports. The train was coming from the West on the main line when the accident occurred. Traffic was tied up for more than half an hour until a wrecking crew, dispatched from Washington, cleared the rails and right of way.

NEW DELAY SOUGHT IN SCHOOL TRANSFER

Gilligan Wants Voting by Entire Board Upon Greenleaf Change.

Henry Gilligan, Board of Education member, will ask school officials to delay final action on transfer of the Greenleaf School in Southwest Washington from white to colored students until all board members have had a chance to vote on the matter, it was learned yesterday.

The board approved the transfer in June, but after receiving protests from Southwest residents, agreed to reconsider its action. The board, at that time, set today as the date for final action so as to give the Southwest residents time to assemble a census showing the number of white children in the section.

Four members of the board are out of the city. Mr. Gilligan will insist that the final action be withheld until all members of the board are polled, he said. He will protest against the five members in the city deciding the final action, he said.

Veterans Honored In Ceremonies Here

Civil War Veterans Presented Pictures of Opposing War Generals.

Two Civil War veterans, one now living in Virginia and the other in Washington, were honored yesterday with a ceremony in Cherrydale, Va. They are A. B. Clark, 86 years old, of Cherrydale, Va., at whose home the ceremony was held, and Capt. David Grayson, 93 years old, of Cleveland Park, Washington, the only surviving member of his company.

Each veteran was presented with an American flag and pictures, Mr. Clark receiving one of Gen. Grant and Capt. Grayson one of Lee at Chancellorsville. Capt. Grayson was taken prisoner at the Battle of Chancellorsville and imprisoned in the old brick Capitol in Washington.

At the ceremony, Miss Anna C. Stannard recited a poem she has dedicated to the two veterans, "Here Are the Boys of the Old Brigade." Call to assembly and taps were blown on the bugle by Private Harold Otis, of the machine gun troop of the Third Cavalry at Fort Myer. Mr. Clark was a bugler during the Civil War. Also taking part in the ceremony was Louise Winfield, 8 years old, who sang "Sweet Story." The American flag which hung in the old brick Capitol, was loaned by the Government for the occasion.

Advertising Man to Open New Restaurant Here

The Club House Gardens, a new restaurant at 1812 H street northwest, will be formally opened tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock. Jarboe's Nighthawks, a popular local orchestra which has played at the Columbia Country Club and the Mayflower and Wardman Park Hotels, will provide the music.

The new venture will be under the direction of Gene Lowell Townsley, of New York and Washington, who was formerly an advertising man connected with Lord, Thomas & Logan, and also Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Rosslyn Business Group Hits Waterfront Plans

Disapproval of the plans proposed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the development of the Rosslyn waterfront was contained in a letter received from the Rosslyn Business Men's Association and read at the meeting of the Arlington County board of supervisors yesterday.

The letter further stated that a special committee appointed to make a study of the plans will submit other plans that it is hoped will be satisfactory prior to the meeting of the board of supervisors August 15.

Reasons for disapproving of the plans were not made public by the representatives who attended the meeting, but it was stated that they will be fully covered in the complete report of the committee.

The plans of the Federal commission provide for the establishment of a municipal wharf below the Key Bridge and for a comprehensive system of road and railway connections.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the Secretary of War regarding maintenance of the military road leading from the Highway Bridge to Fort Myer.

The letter is the result of order recently issued by the commanding officer of Third Corps area that the Government would no longer maintain Government roads outside the limits of Fort Myer.

2 POLICEMEN TAKEN BEFORE GRAND JURY IN RUM GRAFT CASE

Inspector Tells of Trap to Catch Patrolmen in Bribery Act.

THIRD MAN IS NAMED BY COLORED WITNESS

Charges Allege Acceptance of $10 in Marked Bills From Bootlegger.

Evidence in the extortion case against Policemen Frank J. Hospidor and Edward W. Gore, Fourth Precinct, charged with collecting graft from a colored bootlegger, was laid before the District grand jury yesterday. Earlier Judge Robert E. Mattingly held the two, following preliminary hearing.

A third policeman of the same precinct was implicated in testimony presented before Judge Mattingly by Frank Adams, colored, alleged to have given two marked $5 bills to Gore and Hospidor Tuesday night.

He was Policeman Oscar L. Fisher. Adams charged he had similar transactions with Gore prior to Tuesday night; that one night he paid Gore $10 in the presence of Fisher. Fisher was still on duty at the Fourth Precinct yesterday.

Both Released on Bond.

On recommendation of Michael F. Keogh, assistant United States attorney in charge of prosecution, Gore and Hospidor were allowed to remain at liberty under $1,500 bond each.

Immediately following the preliminary hearing, which was waived in Hospidor's case, though Gore fought the charges through Attorney James A. O'Shea, witnesses went before the District grand jury to tell their story. Besides Adams, they included Lieut. O. J. Letterman, a night inspector, and Sergts. R. C. Speith and R. W. Reed.

At the hearing before Judge Mattingly Lieut. Letterman testified he was standing nearby when Hospidor and Gore drove up in front of Adams' house Tuesday night. He said both men were in uniform, although they were supposed to be on foot patrol duty.

Money Is Found in Street.

Lieut. Letterman declared he saw Adams drop something into Gore's hat. He said that he and Sergts. Speith and Reed ran from their hiding places and that Speith mounted the running board of the car in which Gore and Hospidor were riding. Sergt. Speith was forced to draw a gun before the pair would stop, the witness testified. He said he saw Gore toss something from the automobile.

Letterman said he returned to the vicinity of the Adams home after the car was stopped and found two $5 bills, corresponding in their markings with bills he had given Adams for use in the case.

Although Attorney O'Shea tried to get Letterman to say it was possible for Adams to have thrown the money on the ground instead of dropping it into Gore's hat, he was unsuccessful. He brought out, however, that Adams had a police record.

Boy, 8, Found on Road, Tells Kidnaping Story

Charles Duvall, 8 years old, of Pendleton, Va., was picked up yesterday morning on the Washington-Richmond highway, south of Alexandria, by L. C. Painter, of Fairfax County. The boy's story was to the effect that he was kidnaped from his home in southern Virginia by two white men and a woman in a truck loaded with monkeys, and taken into Maryland. He said he had jumped off the truck in Washington and escaped his captors.

Capt. Heywood J. Durrer, of the Fairfax County Police, stated last night that the boy is staying at the Painter home, and will be brought to Fairfax this morning for questioning and better identification. Meanwhile the police are endeavoring to locate the boy's parents.

FRANK T. CASTLE SUCCUMBS

Veteran Photographer Dies After Illness of Several Years' Duration.

Frank T. Castle, veteran photographer in business here for many years and also attached to the photographic laboratories of the Department of Agriculture for several years, died yesterday at his home, 1332 Harvard street northwest, after an illness of three years.

Mr. Castle was 81 years old and had lived in Washington for the last 50 years, coming here from West Virginia. Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Ida G. Castle, and one son, Earle Castle, both of this city. Funeral services and interment will take place at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sunday.

Weapon Brings 180-day Term.

Robert Burns, colored, 23, 1032 Twenty-ninth street northwest, yesterday was sentenced to 180 days in jail by Judge Robert E. Mattingly in Police Court on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Police told the court that Burns dropped a long-bladed knife on the floor of his car after he was arrested on traffic charges at Thirty-first and K streets northwest Tuesday.

KELLOGG TO ATTACK 2 HENDERSON WILLS, CHARGING INFLUENCE

Will Also Protest Testaments on Grounds of Incompetency.

SANITARIUM, COLLEGE CUT OFF IN DOCUMENTS

Edelin Indicates He Will File Plea for Probate Soon of Last Instrument.

The last two wills of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson will be attacked on the grounds of incompetency and undue influence, attorneys for Dr. John H. Kellogg said yesterday.

It was these wills which cut Dr. Kellogg's Battle Creek College and Sanitarium from the favored position held under three previous wills. The testaments in 1930 and 1931 left nothing to them, but under the others the sanitarium and college were given the bulk of the estate.

In Consultation This Week.

Dr. Kellogg has been in consultation this week with the law firm of Frank J. Hogan, and members of the firm said yesterday he would take legal steps to break the two wills.

"How we will proceed remains to be determined," Nelson T. Hartson, a member of the firm, said, "but obviously we must attack the last two wills on the plea that Mrs. Henderson was incompetent and was unduly influenced."

Was Desperately Ill.

Dr. Kellogg said Mrs. Henderson came to him for treatment in 1929, was "desperately ill" and was "incompetent for months before she died."

Attorney George E. Edelin, executor under the last will, indicated he would file a petition for its probate shortly. A move for probate must be made soon in order to receive money and pay bills in connection with management of the estate.

Mrs. Leslie Grant Dies at Age of 62

Wife of Mint Director Was Active in Several Organizations.

After a long illness, Mrs. Leslie Hayden Grant, 62 years old, wife of Robert J. Grant, director of the Mint, died yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel, where she made her home.

She was born in Atlanta, Ga., and at the time of her marriage in 1894, she was a resident of Jacksonville, Fla. With her husband, she spent two years in Australia, in 1904 and 1905, where Mr. Grant was connected with Bewick-Moring & Co., of London, at the time that President Hoover was the managing director of that firm.

She came to Washington in 1923, from Denver, Colo., where Mr. Grant was director of the Mint at that place. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Pilgrims, and the Auxiliary of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. Survivors include her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Dunham, of this city, and a brother, A. A. Hayden, of Jacksonville. Funeral services and interment will be private.

CHRISTOPHER C. CURTIN DIES

Well-Known Railway Engineer to Be Buried Tomorrow Afternoon.

Christopher C. Curtin, whose 77 years made him one of the oldest engineers with the Southern Railway, died yesterday at his home in Alexandria.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Curtin; five daughters, Mrs. Annie Crane, Mrs. Eva L. Wolt, Mrs. Carrie Lee Vogt, Mrs. Catherine Lambert and Miss Jeanette Curtin; one son, James E. Curtin, and a sister, Mrs. Owen Selby. All except Mrs. Selby, who lives in Laurel, Md., reside in Alexandria.

Funeral services will be held at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow with the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, officiating. Burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

MRS. EFFIE GORDON RITES.

Funeral Will Be Conducted Tomorrow at Cedar Hill.

Funeral services for Mrs. Effie W. Gordon, of 2218 Thirty-second street southeast, will be held from the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment following in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Gordon died following a three weeks' illness. She was 65 years old and had lived in Washington all her life. Survivors include her husband, Herbert T. Gordon; two daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Ellbeck and Miss Elsie Gordon, and three sons, Charles, Herbert and Earl Gordon, all of Washington.

Homing Pigeons Reported Stolen.

Mrs. Mary A. Garner reported to police yesterday that ten or fifteen homing pigeons had been stolen from their coop in the rear of her home at 3577 Warder street northwest while she was absent.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A TENNESSEE optimists' club has decided to fine all pessimists within its jurisdiction $1. Absurd! Most people are so constituted they would figure it cheap at twice the money.

Flier, Wheel Lost, Lands Plane Perfectly; 5 Unhurt

Lieut. Boyden Brings Ship to Earth After Hop at Anacostia.

First Lieut. Hayne D. Boyden, Marine Corps flying expert, yesterday was called upon to land his plane and four passengers on one wheel when he discovered the plane had lost the other when he took off from the Naval Air Station at Anacostia.

Lieut. Boyden took off in a transport plane with four enlisted Marine Corps passengers, heading for Quantico. When the plane was in the air one of the passengers called the pilot's attention to the fact that one wheel of the landing gear was missing.

The flier wheeled and headed back to the Naval Air Station. There he made a perfect landing on the remaining wheel, bringing the plane to a stop without injury to passengers or equipment.

Lieut. Boyden is a native of Statesville, N. C. He has the Distinguished Flying Cross, presented to him in August, 1929, for heroism in Nicaragua.

LIEUT. HAYNE D. BOYDEN.

He was cited for leading a two-plane patrol and discovering a force of bandits under Sandino attacking a Marine detachment at Ocotal.

MAN CHARGES PLOT TO TAKE TAXI SHARE

Melvin Soper Claims Part in Protex-U Firm and Sues for $55,000.

Claiming a share in the Protex-U Cab Co., one of the taxicab fleets involved in the current rate-slashing war, Melvin Soper, 651 G street southeast, yesterday charged four persons with conspiracy to deprive him of his interest, in a $55,000 damage suit filed in District Supreme Court.

Those named were R. G. Gould, R. H. Woodward and Stanley A. James, of 805 Fifth street northwest, and James W. Wheat, 1436 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. Soper charged that about March 1 he entered into a partnership with Wheat, to operate taxicabs, to be known as the Protex-U Cab Co. He became general manager and devoted his entire time to the business, he said.

He charged Wheat introduced Gould to him about June 1, suggesting it might be well to bring him into the partnership. He said Gould offered him $10,000 for his share in the business, but he rejected it.

After that, Soper alleges, the four defendants entered into a conspiracy to get possession of his share of the business, took possession of his office and desk in his absence, and notified persons calling that he had no connection with the business. Soper is represented by Attorneys Vernon B. Lowrey and Frank J. Kelly.

Kiwanis Club Shown Broadcast of Program

Members of the Washington Kiwanis Club were shown how it looks in a radio broadcasting studio when a program is in full swing at their weekly luncheon at the Washington Hotel yesterday when the radiotone quartet of the National Broadcasting Co. presented a program.

The quartet went through its regular broadcasting act. William Abernathy announced. The quartet is composed of Lewis Asnis, first tenor; William Braithwaite, second tenor; Blaine Cornwell, first bass; Mr. Abernathy, second bass. Robert Gotta is the accompanist. The program was presented through the courtesy of Vincent Callahan, manager of Station WRC of the National Broadcasting Co.

Old Power Smokestack Leveled With Dynamite

Downtown Washington lost an old landmark yesterday morning when dynamite leveled the 150-foot steel and concrete smokestack at the abandoned Potomac Electric Power Co. plant, Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue. Its twin stack probably will come to the same fate in the next two or three weeks, when razing of the old structure is nearer completion.

Several blasts were required to topple the sturdy shaft, and the detonations were heard throughout the business section.

Condemned Fountains In Schools Replaced

Several thousand dollars have been spent in District schools to replace the type of drinking fountain condemned by the Health Department with a more sanitary variety, it was revealed yesterday by Assistant Superintendent of Schools Jere J. Crane, in charge of business affairs.

The sum of $2,000 was spent last year to replace the "bubble" type of fountain with the stream kind, Mr. Crane said. School authorities have asked for $2,000 more in the new budget to continue the work in 1933, he revealed. All new schools are being equipped with the improved fountain, Mr. Crane announced.

Father Seeks Missing Son.

Ira Garner, 766 Sixth street southeast, yesterday solicited police aid in locating his 15-year-old son, Melvin, who has been absent from the Garner home since Wednesday. Mr. Garner said the boy was wearing white trousers and a tan shirt when last seen.

POLICE RUM FORAYS RESULT IN ARRESTS

Nearly Score of Prisoners Booked for Possession; Evidence Seized.

Three men and three women, all colored, were arrested yesterday in three liquor raids made in quick succession by Sergt. R. A. Johnson and his First Inspection District squad. All were charged with illegal possession, except James Walker, 40, who was booked for disorderly conduct.

George Kelley, 32, was taken into custody at 915 Fourth street northwest in the first foray. A few minutes later the squad went to 461 Washington street northwest and arrested Marie Rich, 48, and Eloise Gray, 21. Both were released under $500 bond.

Walker and two others were arrested at 2355 Champlain street where half a gallon of alleged liquor was confiscated. Charles Harris, 38, and Edith May Johnson, 40, were charged with illegal possession.

Couple Accused of Possession.

James Anderson, 51, colored, and his wife, Rosa, 40, were charged with illegal possession of one-half gallon of liquor after police raided their home at 3 Fort Driver northeast. Both were freed on $500 bond.

Detective W. C. Wrenn was given a furious battle by a prospective prisoner when he and Detective C. S. Dwyer paid a call at 2 Allison street northeast. After the fast but short battle, three members of the colored family were charged with illegal possession. They are Ferman, Eunice and Norman Jones.

When the policemen entered the house, according to Wrenn, Ferman ran into the kitchen and dumped a bucketful of alleged whisky into a bucket containing disinfectant. In the fight which ensued, he suffered lacerations which required treatment at Freedmen's Hospital. Wrenn was less seriously beaten.

The mixture over which they fought was confiscated, to be examined for alcoholic content. Ferman was charged with assault, as well as illegal possession.

Three Taken in Raid.

Earlier in the day the same detectives raided a house on Shepherd road northeast and arrested Sue Pomer, 33; William Southworth, 50, and Pharaoh Robins, 50, all colored. All were charged with illegal possession of 2½ pints of whisky.

They reported that when the woman saw them approaching, she sent her small boy running into the yard with a bottle under his arm. He and the bottle were overhauled by the raiders.

Illegal possession of four pints of gin was charged to Howell Boulden, 23, of 2140 N street northwest, yesterday. He was arrested, according to police, as he was in the act of delivering the liquor which had been ordered by Policemen C. H. Warder and C. P. Flynn.

Three colored men were arrested yesterday when a police squad, led by Sgt. R. C. Speith, raided a house at 623 L street northeast. Nine half-gallon jars of alleged white whisky and 70 bottles of home brew were seized.

Illegal possession charges were lodged against Wade Shields, 30, of the L street address; Herbert Smith, 30, of 640 Callan street northeast, and William Gray, 21, of 644 Callan street northeast.

3,000 French Veterans To Come Here in 1932

The cry of "George Washington, We Are Here!" will probably be heard in the National Capital next fall when 3,000 French veterans who were members of regiments that fought side by side with the American soldiers in the World War come here to participate in the George Washington Bicentennial celebration.

Efforts will be made to have the French soldiers here September 6, Lafayette's birthday, it was announced by the District Bicentennial Commission. Congress has appropriated $50,000 for entertainment of the French veterans. Col. John Thomas Taylor, national representative of the American Legion, is in charge of arrangements.

Veterans Bureau to Begin Payments by Check Today

Veterans' Bureau employes will draw their first pay by checks today under the new system recently instituted by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs. In the past workers in this department have always received their pay in cash.

There has been two schools of thought in the bureau on the procedure of paying off the employes. Harold W. Breining, assistant director in charge of finance service, said last night. One held that it was more efficient to pay by checks, and the other that cash payment was the more efficient procedure.

Recently bureau officials decided to give the check method a trial, and Gen. Hines issued the order for it. Some employes in the past have asked to be paid by check as an added protection, but this was not the deciding consideration, Mr. Breining said. How long the trial will last is problematical.

REPORTED CAB RATE BOOST IN RUSH HOUR BEING INVESTIGATED

Public Utilities Body Also Is Planning Public Hearing on Controversy.

FORMAL NOTICE MONDAY DUE FROM COMMISSION

Companies Agree to Uniform Tariff Despite Refusal of Diamond.

Sliding scale taxicab rates, governed largely by traffic demand and weather conditions, are under investigation by the Public Utilities Commission which is also planning a general taxicab rate hearing.

The sliding scale rate is reported to be used by some of the smaller taxicab operators, who charge 25-50-75 zone rates in fair weather and during slack hours, and increase the tariff to 35-60-85 during inclement weather and rush hours.

Notice Expected Monday

The commission is expected to issue a formal notice Monday of its intention to consider the tariff schedule for taxicabs. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, it is expected, will have advised the commission by that time what action it may take in regard to regulating taxicab fares.

Taxicab companies, other than the Diamond Taxicab Company, a non-union organization, which agreed to return to the uniform rate, repeated their promise to continue the rate, in spite of the Diamond company's refusal to join them.

No Report of Rumor

The taxicab companies which agreed to the uniform rate operate about 1,000 cabs, while the Diamond company operates about 750. Diamond is now operating on a 20 cent zone basis while the others are charging a 25 cent zone rate.

The Utilities Commission had no report of the rumored advent of a new flat rate company, which, it was said, plans to place 400 cabs in service in the District. Richmond B. Keech people's counsel, said he had no knowledge of the formation of any such company.

Associates Honor District Engineer

Joseph W. Dare, Who Retires in September, Given Farewell Party.

More than 150 of his friends and colleagues attended the farewell party given at the Beaver Dam Country Club last night honoring Joseph W. Dare, 77-year-old District engineer, who will retire September 1 after a half century of service for the municipal government.

William W. Curtiss, one of Mr. Dare's associates in the department, was in charge of program arrangements. Aloysius S. Fennell, construction engineer for the District, served as toastmaster. Among those who gave speeches praising the retiring engineer's record were William Van Duzer, traffic director, and Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, highway engineer.

Mr. Dare, known familiarly as "Nubby," started work for the District in 1882 as an employe in the Highway Department. In the last few years he has had four retirement extensions because of his popularity and ability. Mr. and Mrs. Dare make their home at 1878 Monroe street northwest.
